

DAILY EVENING STAR.

PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON, (EXCEPT SUNDAY)

On 6th street, south of Penn. avenue, BY JOSEPH B. TATE.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION: Subscribers served by the carriers at six cents a week, payable weekly. To mail subscribers $3.50 a year; $2 for six months.

Table with 2 columns: Description of advertising rates and corresponding prices.

RECOMMENDATION TO AMERICAN POETIC TALEN!

$500 PREMIUM. A contest for poetic talent with a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

Advertisement for a contest or publication, mentioning a prize of $500.

G. L. GIBERSON, Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law.

Practices in all the Courts of the District, and attends to the prosecution of Claims before Congress and the Executive Department.

Office on Louisiana avenue near Seventh street Jan 3-

HOUSEKEEPERS' GOODS.

JOHN M. DONN & BROTHER have just opened and arranged a handsome assortment of Goods suitable for the season, viz:

Parisian Marble Goods, French China and Porcelain, French Cut Glass, and various other articles.

PLATED GOODS. Handsome Castors, Mugs, Tea Sets, Card and Cake Baskets, Goble's, Forks and Spoons.

Musards, Silts, and Napkin Rings. LAMPS. Solar, Ethereal, Hall &c.

BRONZED GOODS. Feners Dogs, Shovel and Tongs, Spoons, Canisters, Audubons, Tracings, Looking Glasses.

LOOKING GLASSES. Very large gilt frame, mahogany, and walnut Looking Glass, s, bracket Tables.

FURNITURE. Several handsome painted Chamber Sets, very cheap and good.

Bureaus, ofcs, Extension Tables, Chairs of many patterns and styles and material.

Be-stead, Beds, Mattresses, and Feathers in the bag.

China glass, stone, and crockery Ware in quantities, a large stock, well assorted, and cheap.

JAPAN WARE. Toilet Sets, Card sets, Cake Boxes, Bibles, Woodware, Iron Ware.

Checkers, of several varieties and patterns, 30 Cents a Doz. Their stock is certainly the most complete of any kept in the District or the city.

We invite a call from persons in want of articles in the line of housekeeping, and we flatter ourselves they can be accommodated at our establishment, at very low and reasonable prices for the quality as at any other place.

JOHN M. DONN & BROTHER, Pennsylvania avenue, bet. 10th and 11th sts. Dec 30 - 67

GREAT MEDICAL DISCOVERY!

Will soon testify, no stronger proof can be given, an essential trial of this wonderful Hampton's Vegetable Tincture.

Let the afflicted read: BARRELLVILLE, ALLEGANY COUNTY, (Md.) May 1852.

To Messrs. Mortimer & Moulbray: DEAR SIR: I wish to justify to Dr. Hampton's Vegetable Tincture, which I wish to form you that I was taken sick in the 10th day of January last, with an affection of the stomach, bowels, and kidneys. I was attended by four eminent physicians, for more than two months—without any benefit. I had some knowledge of the great virtue in Hampton's Tincture from one bottle which my wife had taken two years since.

I came to the conclusion that I would take no other medicine from my physician, but try the Tincture; and I am happy to inform you that I had taken it only a few days, but I feel its powerful influence upon my stomach. I have continued using the Tincture and am now able to leave my room, and can eat any common diet without much inconvenience or pressure on my stomach.

The afflicted or their friends are daily visiting me, to learn of the great virtue there is in this Tincture of Hampton's.

I expect to end you several certificates in a few days, especially from a young lady who has been confined to her room twelve months, with a disease of the head, affecting the brain.

Respectfully yours, E. W. HALL.

On the permanency of the cure hear him still another letter from the above: BARRELLVILLE ALLEGANY COUNTY, (Md.) October 13, 1852.

Messrs. Mortimer & Moulbray: DEAR SIR: I am happy to inform you that this day finds me in the enjoyment of good health, by the use of your Hampton's Tincture and the blessing of God. I am enabled to pursue my daily avocations as usual, and I have a great desire that the afflicted should know the great curative powers of the Tincture.

I am with respect, yours, E. W. HALL.

THE ALMOST MIRACULOUS CURES made by Hampton's Vegetable Tincture on our most respected citizens—men well known and tried—we challenge the world to show anything on record in medicine to equal it. Many hundreds who have felt its healing powers bear the same testimony.

BALTIMORE, July 6, 1852. Messrs. Mortimer & Moulbray: Gentles: Last September I was attacked with erysipelas, from which a dreadful ulcer formed on my right leg. Getting better of this, last November I took a severe cold, which led to what my physician told me was bilious peevishness, which led to a constant, deeply seated, and painful cough, having no rest day or night, and constantly throwing up from my lungs a thick matter. I became much emaciated, growing weaker every day, and keeping my bed the greater part of the time. My friends thought I had the consumption, and at times I was also of the same opinion. At the stage of my disease, after having tried many and various remedies, without success, a friend advised me to try DR. HAMPTON'S VEGETABLE TINCTURE, and procured me a bottle, which I now pronounce the greatest medicine I ever took. Before I had taken half the contents of one bottle I felt much improved; and now, having taken but two bottles, my cough and pains have entirely left me, and I am enabled to attend to business. I can truly say that, with the blessing of God, I have been restored to the health I now enjoy by the use of this most valuable medicine. Yours, WESLEY HOKK, Schrodler, near Saratoga street.

PORTSMOUTH, (Va.) Aug. 18, 1851. Mr. J. F. Bush—Dear Sir: While I am in general open to the Patent Medicine, candor compels me to state that I have great confidence in the virtues of Hampton's Vegetable Tincture. For several months past I have used it in my family, and in my special, loss of appetite, dizziness, and general debility, with entire success. So far as my experience extends, therefore, I take pleasure in recommending it to the afflicted as a safe and efficient remedy. VERNON ENKRIGHT.

DR. MORRIS'S Anti-Di-peptic Elix-ir.

THIS medicine has been in use for several years, and so great are its curative virtues that many cases which are considered incurable have been permanently cured by the use of one bottle of the Elix-ir.

Many persons are afflicted with uneasy and painful feelings after eating, in all such cases the use of the Elix-ir, according to directions will give the highest satisfaction, giving relief immediately and in a few days effecting a permanent cure.

Infants teething are often attacked with spells of vomiting. The Elix-ir on occasions of this character is the mother's best friend, as it is a few light doses restores the stomach to its wonted healthy tone.

In short no individual or family should be without a supply of this medicine.

Sold by C. T. TAYLOR, cor. of the 7th and Penn. ave. W. ELLIOTT, cor. of E and L sts. PATTERSON & NILES, cor. of 3d and Pennsylvania ave.

Advertisement for Dr. Morris's medicine, mentioning its benefits for various ailments.

Advertisement for Dr. Morris's medicine, mentioning its benefits for various ailments.

Advertisement for Dr. Morris's medicine, mentioning its benefits for various ailments.

Advertisement for Dr. Morris's medicine, mentioning its benefits for various ailments.

Advertisement for Dr. Morris's medicine, mentioning its benefits for various ailments.

Advertisement for Dr. Morris's medicine, mentioning its benefits for various ailments.

E. C. CARRINGTON, Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law.

Practices in all the Courts of the District, and attends to the prosecution of Claims before Congress and the Executive Department.

Office, east wing of the City Hall. Feb 17-

R. H. LASKEY, Attorney and Counsellor-at-Law.

Practices in the Courts of the District, and prosecutes claims of every description before the several Executive Departments and before Congress.

Office on Louisiana avenue near Sixth street. Dec 30-

THE STUDENT: A Family Miscellany and Monthly School-Reader.

EDITED BY N. A. CALKINS.

THIS work has now entered upon its sixth volume. It is a most interesting prospect than ever before. Its object—Physical, Moral, and Intellectual Improvement—have been so successfully carried out, as to meet the unqualified approbation of its thousands of readers. It is so arranged as to add to it every member of the family from the child to the parents. It occupies a broader field than any other magazine extant, and is eminently THE FAMILY MISCELLANY.

THE SUBJECTS treated in its pages embrace The Science including important discoveries; History, with the leading current events of nations, countries, and individual acts; Biography of distinguished persons, illustrated with portraits; Natural History embracing description and illustrations of plants, birds, fishes, insects, trees, plants, fruits, and various productions of nature. These are embellished, and rendered more interesting by pleasing notes, historical incidents, and illustrative anecdotes. Besides all this, a proper Museum is given, to gladden the happy home with pleasant sights.

OUR MUSEUM is a feature which attracts much attention from the young and old. This is filled with mental curiosities, composed of gems of knowledge, embracing both the latest productions of the present day and relics of former times, as found in philosophy, science, history, belles-lettres, and anecdotes. Among its varieties may be seen a list of words, sayings, questions from correspondents, their answers, also enigmas, puzzles, and other pebbles unconsciously picked up along the shores of reading.

THE PLAN OF THE WORK is unlike any other before the public. Several pages are devoted to articles in prose and poetry, from the best writers, embracing subjects of interest for the older members of the family and the advanced classes in school. The last Department contains a narrative of each voyage made in the world, and a list of the most interesting subjects, adapted to the capacity of the young. For Children a few pages on amusements with easy words and simple ideas, to teach the more serious or practical of nature. Teachers and Parents will find a portion devoted to useful suggestions relating to their duties and responsibilities. A record of events embracing a brief summary of the news, from month to month, is given. Its Literary Notices, Book etc., will acquaint the reader of the most able and character of new books, particularly of such as are suitable for the family, the student, or the school library.

A MONTHLY SCHOOL READER is one of the leading characters of this work. It is adapted to classes of different grades, and furnishes fresh and enlivening matter every month. This, in part, to the pupils a variety of useful information that cannot be obtained from their school books, while it develops a taste for reading. Its utility in this respect has been thoroughly proven, and hundreds have testified to its superior usefulness in the school-room.

THE AIM OF THE STUDENT is to develop intellect, interest, and instruct the mind, and to develop a love for learning, which will be actually useful in life. While its pages breathe a high moral tone, and inculcate one of our principles, they will be free from party and sectarian prejudices, endeavoring to do the greatest good to the greatest number.

THE STUDENT is published on the first of each month, containing THREE HUNDRED large octavo pages, with numerous illustrations, on the following terms:

TERMS, IN ADVANCE: Single copy 1 year... $1.00 (eight copies one yr... $8.00 five copies... $5.00) Five copies one yr... $5.00

POSTAGE ON THE STUDENT To any post office in the United States, when paid quarterly or yearly in advance, is only half a cent a month, FIVE CENTS A YEAR.

Our sample numbers will be sent gratis when desired. Please address all letters, to be paid to: W. L. WELLS, 131 Nassau-street, New York.

N. B.—Editors, Postmasters, Teachers, and Clergymen are respectfully requested to act as agents for this work. J. N. 14

F. A. TUCKER, MERCHANT TAILOR, UNDER NATIONAL HOTEL.

IS FULLY prepared to supply his customers and the public with the latest styles of wearing apparel, repairing and alterations, war-ble.

Members of Congress and strangers, visiting the city are invited to call and examine his work, and purchase of various goods, also a manufacturing, and all sorts of Cassimere, Veilings, &c. &c. Dec 10-

A CHEAP AND GOOD FAMILY PAPER.

THE WEEKLY PENNSYLVANIAN is published by Wm. H. Hop at 73 South Third Street, Philadelphia, at the low price of ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

This Journal will contain each week, Twenty-eight original and choice reading matter, comprising long and short stories, Tales, Fables, and Literary articles, News, both foreign and domestic, the proceedings of Congress and our State Legislature, and a full and complete Weekly Summary of the state of the World. It is published by Wm. H. Hop, at 73 South Third Street, Philadelphia, at the low price of ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

To those who have been in the habit of reading the PENNSYLVANIAN, it is unnecessary to say that the Journal will contain the most interesting and valuable material for the family. It is published by Wm. H. Hop, at 73 South Third Street, Philadelphia, at the low price of ONE DOLLAR A YEAR.

It has been our continued effort to make the Democratic masses a reading people, and we are pleased to find that they are becoming more and more every day. But our desire is to make them still more established.

Our Democratic friends throughout the Union, are called on to do in increasing the already wide circulation of the WEEKLY PENNSYLVANIAN, by so doing, the will not only be helping us, but also aiding in circulating a Democratic truth that will produce a glorious result. That our readers may be persuaded to help us, we offer the following inducements:

TO CLUBS. We will send to any address Six Copies for Five Dollars Twelve Copies for Nine Dollars Twenty-four Copies for Sixteen Dollars Fifty Copies for Thirty Dollars Single Copies One Dollar.

No Orders will be attended to unless accompanied by the Money. Address: Wm. H. Hop, Publisher of the WEEKLY PENNSYLVANIAN, No. 73 South Third Street, Philadelphia.

DAILY EVENING STAR.

MY MOTHER.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

My mother's voice! How often croops Its cadence on my lonely hour, Like healing on the wings of sleep, Or dew on the unconscious flowers.

I might forget her melting prayer, While 'twining pleasures maddly fly; But in the still, unbroken air, Her gentle tones come stealing by; And years of sin and madd'ning care, And leave me at my mother's knee.

I have been out at sea, Beneath a noon of sky of spring, When earth was arched like a bridge, And night had on her silver wing; When bursting winds and drowsy grass, And waters lapping to the light; And all that makes the pulses pass With wilder fleetness throng'd the light; When I was beauty, then have I With friend on whom my love is flung, Like myrrh on winds of Araby, Like zephyr on the evening's lamp is hung.

And when the beautiful, soft it re- Fung over all its golden chain, My mother's voice came on the air, Like the light of day on the rain; And resting on some silver star, The spirit of a bearded king, I've poured a deep and fervent prayer, That ere eternity might be— To ride in heaven, like stars by night, And read a living path of light.

THE PATTERN W.F.E.

BY DAISY. A creature easily passed by, Not lovely to the strong man's eye, Winnie Winlove is not a beauty, but she has a sensible, lovable, kissable face, which is not only good looking, but looks good; and then her dress is always so neat, her smile so bright, and her voice so sweet, that, though she would attract no attention at theatre or ball, she is the dearest ornament of a husband's home.

She is never "caught," call when you will; for her house, like herself, is the pink of neatness—not that stiff uncomfortable sort, which makes one dread to use the polished furniture; but an easy, all-permeating order, which seems so natural one scarcely wonders at it. If in accomplishing this her servants give her trouble, she does not "fight her battles over again" for the entertainment of her husband or visitors. She is not, in the usual sense of the term, accomplished—does not perform brilliant fantasies upon the piano forte, or sing incomprehensible Italian bravuras, but she plays a sensible accompaniment or dance correctly, with taste, and in perfect time; sings an English ballad with feelings and expression; and does either, when requested without putting on airs or requiring the stimulus of a large audience. She has actually been known to play and sing for more than an hour with no listeners but her husband and family! She does not dance, but as her husband does and likes to, she willingly attends balls and dancing parties, where her observing mind, keen appreciation of the ludicrous, and genial good humor, find no lack of entertainment. She does not speak "all the modern languages," but her English is well worth listening to.

She is not, strictly speaking, pious, (were this a fancy sketch, she would be, but as it is a portrait, the truth must be told;) but she has a heartfelt love of the good, the true, and the beautiful, and does the duty which lies nearest her to the best of her ability.— Cheerfulness is her chief characteristic; and promoting the happiness of her life. In matters of importance, if she and her husband differ in opinion, she states hers calmly, and listens to his reasoning with a mind open to conviction; but in trifles his wish is her will.

Is she ready for visiting or shopping, and he thinks it looks like rain, she lays off her bonnet and stays at home. Is she somewhat tired and indisposed for exertion, and he requests her to go out, she complies. Has she a new dress or cap to which he objects, it disappears.

She never wants to read when he wants to talk, nor to talk when he wants to read; never complains of his nerves; never makes any reply when he hints that breakfast is a

DAILY EVENING STAR.

MY MOTHER.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

My mother's voice! How often croops Its cadence on my lonely hour, Like healing on the wings of sleep, Or dew on the unconscious flowers.

I might forget her melting prayer, While 'twining pleasures maddly fly; But in the still, unbroken air, Her gentle tones come stealing by; And years of sin and madd'ning care, And leave me at my mother's knee.

I have been out at sea, Beneath a noon of sky of spring, When earth was arched like a bridge, And night had on her silver wing; When bursting winds and drowsy grass, And waters lapping to the light; And all that makes the pulses pass With wilder fleetness throng'd the light; When I was beauty, then have I With friend on whom my love is flung, Like myrrh on winds of Araby, Like zephyr on the evening's lamp is hung.

And when the beautiful, soft it re- Fung over all its golden chain, My mother's voice came on the air, Like the light of day on the rain; And resting on some silver star, The spirit of a bearded king, I've poured a deep and fervent prayer, That ere eternity might be— To ride in heaven, like stars by night, And read a living path of light.

THE PATTERN W.F.E.

BY DAISY. A creature easily passed by, Not lovely to the strong man's eye, Winnie Winlove is not a beauty, but she has a sensible, lovable, kissable face, which is not only good looking, but looks good; and then her dress is always so neat, her smile so bright, and her voice so sweet, that, though she would attract no attention at theatre or ball, she is the dearest ornament of a husband's home.

She is never "caught," call when you will; for her house, like herself, is the pink of neatness—not that stiff uncomfortable sort, which makes one dread to use the polished furniture; but an easy, all-permeating order, which seems so natural one scarcely wonders at it. If in accomplishing this her servants give her trouble, she does not "fight her battles over again" for the entertainment of her husband or visitors. She is not, in the usual sense of the term, accomplished—does not perform brilliant fantasies upon the piano forte, or sing incomprehensible Italian bravuras, but she plays a sensible accompaniment or dance correctly, with taste, and in perfect time; sings an English ballad with feelings and expression; and does either, when requested without putting on airs or requiring the stimulus of a large audience. She has actually been known to play and sing for more than an hour with no listeners but her husband and family! She does not dance, but as her husband does and likes to, she willingly attends balls and dancing parties, where her observing mind, keen appreciation of the ludicrous, and genial good humor, find no lack of entertainment. She does not speak "all the modern languages," but her English is well worth listening to.

She is not, strictly speaking, pious, (were this a fancy sketch, she would be, but as it is a portrait, the truth must be told;) but she has a heartfelt love of the good, the true, and the beautiful, and does the duty which lies nearest her to the best of her ability.— Cheerfulness is her chief characteristic; and promoting the happiness of her life. In matters of importance, if she and her husband differ in opinion, she states hers calmly, and listens to his reasoning with a mind open to conviction; but in trifles his wish is her will.

Is she ready for visiting or shopping, and he thinks it looks like rain, she lays off her bonnet and stays at home. Is she somewhat tired and indisposed for exertion, and he requests her to go out, she complies. Has she a new dress or cap to which he objects, it disappears.

She never wants to read when he wants to talk, nor to talk when he wants to read; never complains of his nerves; never makes any reply when he hints that breakfast is a

DAILY EVENING STAR.

MY MOTHER.

BY N. P. WILLIS.

My mother's voice! How often croops Its cadence on my lonely hour, Like healing on the wings of sleep, Or dew on the unconscious flowers.

I might forget her melting prayer, While 'twining pleasures maddly fly; But in the still, unbroken air, Her gentle tones come stealing by; And years of sin and madd'ning care, And leave me at my mother's knee.

I have been out at sea, Beneath a noon of sky of spring, When earth was arched like a bridge, And night had on her silver wing; When bursting winds and drowsy grass, And waters lapping to the light; And all that makes the pulses pass With wilder fleetness throng'd the light; When I was beauty, then have I With friend on whom my love is flung, Like myrrh on winds of Araby, Like zephyr on the evening's lamp is hung.

And when the beautiful, soft it re- Fung over all its golden chain, My mother's voice came on the air, Like the light of day on the rain; And resting on some silver star, The spirit of a bearded king, I've poured a deep and fervent prayer, That ere eternity might be— To ride in heaven, like stars by night, And read a living path of light.

THE PATTERN W.F.E.

BY DAISY. A creature easily passed by, Not lovely to the strong man's eye, Winnie Winlove is not a beauty, but she has a sensible, lovable, kissable face, which is not only good looking, but looks good; and then her dress is always so neat, her smile so bright, and her voice so sweet, that, though she would attract no attention at theatre or ball, she is the dearest ornament of a husband's home.

She is never "caught," call when you will; for her house, like herself, is the pink of neatness—not that stiff uncomfortable sort, which makes one dread to use the polished furniture; but an easy, all-permeating order, which seems so natural one scarcely wonders at it. If in accomplishing this her servants give her trouble, she does not "fight her battles over again" for the entertainment of her husband or visitors. She is not, in the usual sense of the term, accomplished—does not perform brilliant fantasies upon the piano forte, or sing incomprehensible Italian bravuras, but she plays a sensible accompaniment or dance correctly, with taste, and in perfect time; sings an English ballad with feelings and expression; and does either, when requested without putting on airs or requiring the stimulus of a large audience. She has actually been known to play and sing for more than an hour with no listeners but her husband and family! She does not dance, but as her husband does and likes to, she willingly attends balls and dancing parties, where her observing mind, keen appreciation of the ludicrous, and genial good humor, find no lack of entertainment. She does not speak "all the modern languages," but her English is well worth listening to.

She is not, strictly speaking, pious, (were this a fancy sketch, she would be, but as it is a portrait, the truth must be told;) but she has a heartfelt love of the good, the true, and the beautiful, and does the duty which lies nearest her to the best of her ability.— Cheerfulness is her chief characteristic; and promoting the happiness of her life. In matters of importance, if she and her husband differ in opinion, she states hers calmly, and listens to his reasoning with a mind open to conviction; but in trifles his wish is her will.

Is she ready for visiting or shopping, and he thinks it looks like rain, she lays off her bonnet and stays at home. Is she somewhat tired and indisposed for exertion, and he requests her to go out, she complies. Has she a new dress or cap to which he objects, it disappears.

She never wants to read when he wants to talk, nor to talk when he wants to read; never complains of his nerves; never makes any reply when he hints that breakfast is a little late; never objects to his smoking; never teases him to give her new furniture, dresses, etc., knowing that when he can afford them he will do so without being asked. She never looks grum, or calls him "my dear" in that carefully softened, but portentous tone, which strikes terror to the heart of the henpecked husband, when he brings an unexpected visitor to dinner; never asks what kept him when he comes home late; and, climax of wifely amiability, never objects to his kissing all the young ladies that visit them!

Her health never compels her to leave him four or five months every summer to the house-keeping of servants, and the ennui of loneliness; or, worse still, the discomforts of boarding, and the society of ill-bachelor friends.

Her children—of course she has plenty—are never tormented about keeping clean and taking care of their clothes nor screamed over and petted when they happen to fall; nor paraded for exhibition when they get new garments, nor scolded or neglected at any time. They are well governed, well bred, active, healthy and happy.

Her faults, of course she has some, are mostly those that lean to virtue's side, and are, in her husband's estimation, amply counterbalanced by the antithetical virtues of being fond, yet reasonable; clear-sighted, yet confiding; wise, yet womanly.

How FLORENCE WAS RID OF BEGGARS.—Many years ago an ingenious plan was adopted by the Grand Duke to rid Florence of beggars. It was proclaimed that every beggar who would appear in the grand plaza at a certain mentioned time, would be provided by the Duke with a new suit of clothes, free of cost. At the appointed time, the beggars of the city assembled, and the Grand Duke causing all the avenues to the square to be closed, compelled the beggars to strip off their old clothes, and gave each one, according to promise, a new suit. In the old clothes thus collected, enough money was found concealed to build a beautiful bridge over the Arno, still called "the beggars' bridge," and the city, for the time being, was relieved of beggars by which it had been previously overrun, as none would give to the well dressed individuals who implored charity, not believing their tale of distress.

BANKRUPTCY.—Two merchants were standing in Wall street, discoursing on bankruptcy, when one of them perceived a real live Yankee lumbering down the street, with a knife and stick in his hand.

"Now for some sport," ejaculated the merchant—"We'll ask his opinion on the subject of bankruptcy, or rather his ideas." He now hailed the Yankee with "Hollo, friend, can you tell us the meaning of bankruptcy?"

"Well, I reckon I kin—and skin me if I don't."

"Please explain."

"Well, you jist lend me a five for about three minutes."

"Here it is, friend—now proceed."

"Well, now, I owe Zeke Smith fifty cents; Sim Brown, the tailor, five dollars for this ere coat, and you five."

"Well," said the merchant, "now give me my five."

"Oh, git out! I'm a bankrupt, and you come in for your share with the rest," and he left the astonished merchants.

TO RESTORE FROZEN PLANTS.—The following is worth testing: Order a tub of water deep enough to immerse the whole plant; bring the pots out of the cold one at a time, and put them in the water about five minutes. Take them out, drain off the water, and dry them in a dark room, and keep the temperature at fifty or sixty degrees for a few days, and your sick patients will recover.