FROM ATLANTA. Advice from Gen. Sherman, received to-day, cover operations down to last night.

The work of investing the city is fast going on. There was some hard fighting yesterday, resulting in a repulse of the enemy in his efforts to dislodge our troops.

Gen. Palmer advanced his line to more advantageous position. Our loss during the day was small.

According to report, the rebels have been anxiously fortifying Atlanta, first by an extensive line of rifle pits nine miles in length, covering an interior line of fortifications protected by abatis, and interlined with an inner series of rifle pits.

The position of the city is, however, not favorable for defense, and it is evident that the rebels do not count upon being able to hold it by the aid of its defensive works.

P. S. We learn, since writing the above, that the Sherman has torn up some five miles of the railroad between Atlanta and Decatur, and, on one portion of his lines, holds a position overlooking Atlanta, and from which it can be shelled, if necessary.

There was considerable fighting going on on Wednesday, as well as yesterday, we learn, resulting advantageously to us. Everything is progressing most favorably to us, according to all reports from that quarter.

A DESTRUCTIVE BLOW. We understand that Garrard's cavalry destroyed at Rossville, Georgia, woolen factories which turned out thirty thousand yards, and cotton factories making three hundred thousand yards of cloth monthly, besides a paper and a starch mill and other factories.

These rebel cloth mills thus destroyed by Sherman's cavalry, have been employed and run on rebel government account, and have been a leading source of supply for the rebel army.

THE REPORTED FIGHT AT LEESBURG. No confirmation of the reported fight at Leesburg has been received here. If a fight had taken place yesterday at Leesburg, which is in the Department of Washington, it would doubtless be known at Gen. Auger's headquarters by this time, but no information of the sort has reached there.

NAVAL CAPTURES. The Navy Department has received information of the following captures: On the 10th instant, the sloop Hope, of Nassau, N. P., loaded with nineteen bales of cotton and nine boxes of tobacco, from Savannah, was captured by the U. S. steamer Ladond while attempting to run out of Sapelo.

The cargo of the Hope has been sent to Philadelphia, and the vessel is being repaired. On the night of the 26th of June, the sloop Mary, of Nassau, N. P., was captured by the U. S. steamer Norfolk Packet, off Mosquito Bank, Fla. A happy smile irradiated his features, and he first turned toward the point of impingement and then at the smiling steamer, with exclamation, "That was a good com!"

The unfeeling remark was heard by some soldiers standing near, and produced, as might naturally be expected, considerable indignation. -New York World.

INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU. Commissioner Lewis has gone to his home in Pennsylvania on short visit. During his absence Mr. Hollins, the able Deputy Commissioner, will run the Internal Revenue machine.

THE PRESIDENT'S FEELING FOR THE SOLDIERS. -During the time that the rebels were in their bombardment of Fort Stevens, Mr. Lincoln happily wrote in a paper, within the walls of that fortification. A shot from the enemy passed into the fort, and striking the projection, glanced off, the ball entering the leg of a soldier, who, in the excitement of the moment, exclaimed, "That was a good com!"

The unfeeling remark was heard by some soldiers standing near, and produced, as might naturally be expected, considerable indignation. -New York World.

There was no "bombardment" of Fort Stevens, and no incident there to serve even as a foundation for the World's transparent lie. Why cannot those copperhead papers maintain some consistency in their vilification of the President? While the New York World, as above, describes him as in the midst of the fight making cold-blooded jokes at the expense of the wounded, the New York News insists that he was concealed in abject terror on board a gunboat in the river during the visit of the Confederates.

The publication of the new literary paper, "The World," has been discontinued in consequence of the late times, so on our publishers generally.

GREELY AND SANDERS' CORRESPONDENCE.

A letter from the President - His views on the Restoration of Peace - How the Correspondence Originated.

BUFFALO, July 21. - The correspondence with the rebel agents shows that Messrs. Clay, Holcomb, and Sanders asked, on the 12th, of Horace Greeley, the protection of the President or Secretary of War to visit Washington.

Greeley, in reply of the 18th, understanding that they were bearers of a proposition from Richmond looking to peace, tendered a safe conduct of the President.

They replied they were not accredited with such propositions, but were not confident of the employment of their Government, and felt authorized to declare, if the circumstances disclosed in this correspondence were communicated at Richmond, that they would be safe conduct to Washington, and thence to Richmond.

Mr. Greeley answered that that state of facts being materially different from that understood to be the case, he would not be able to give them the safe conduct which they desired.

After some further correspondence in relation to the safe conduct, which was refused by President Lincoln, the following was received from the latter:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, Washington, July 15, 1864. To whom it may concern: Any proposition which embraces the restoration of peace, the integrity of the whole Union, the abolition of slavery, and the maintenance of the Constitution, and which comes by and with authority that can control the armies now at war against the United States, will be received and considered with the same freedom and candor as any other substantial and collateral points; and the bearer or bearers thereof shall have safe conduct both ways.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN. To Hon. Horace Greeley, Major Hays, on the 20th, in a note, asks Holcomb and others if they have any communications from the rebels, and if so, to send them to him, regretting he has been delayed by any expectation of an answer to his communication delivered to the President of the United States.

The letter to Mr. Greeley, after alluding to the tender of a safe conduct to Washington on the hypothesis that we were duly accredited, and that the rebels were anxious to look to the establishment of peace, says this assertion was accepted as evidence of an unexpected but most gratifying change in the policy of the rebels.

INTERNAL REVENUE BUREAU. Commissioner Lewis has gone to his home in Pennsylvania on short visit. During his absence Mr. Hollins, the able Deputy Commissioner, will run the Internal Revenue machine.

THE PRICE PAID IN NEW YORK YESTERDAY FOR THREE-YEAR SUBSTITUTES WAS $300, AND FOR ONE-YEAR SUBSTITUTES $300.

THE FORTIFICATIONS OF ATLANTA. -The correspondence between the President and the rebels, as published in the New York World, speaks thus of the fortifications of Atlanta: "Ascending a high hill which overlooked the city, he got a splendid view of the doomed city of Atlanta, with its network of fortifications, and saw the city from the river all the way up to the city there is a succession of earthworks, which he saw in the distance, and he was strongly fortified place."

DISAPPOINTED. -The Richmond Equivocal of the 20th inst., states that whether the capture of the city was or was not the object of the late raid, its fall was most anxiously expected until late news brought the knowledge of the fact that the rebels had withdrawn from the city.

ADVANCE IN PRICE. -At a meeting of the proprietors of the Boston weekly press on Monday, it was resolved that the subscribers agree to advance the rates of subscription to our respective journals, from 20 to 30 per cent, by August 1st.

A rebel paper in Southern Georgia inquires, if General John Johnston could hold the line of the Chattoahoochee, where is he to make his stand? This is the very question which Johnston himself has been called upon to answer to General Sherman.
