TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

FROM FORTRESS MONROE. Deserter from the Union Army Detected—Reports from Massachusetts.

FORTRESS MONROE, Sept. 6.—The hospital steamer Western Metropolis, sailed for New York last evening with five hundred wounded soldiers.

The steamer John Disney, while loading at the wharf at Portsmouth yesterday, sank, caused by the mismanagement of her cargo.

Dr. T. H. Bagwell, a prominent secessionist of Portsmouth, was, with his family, sent beyond our lines yesterday, not to return during the war.

Refugees have, for some time past, been coming to Norfolk in large numbers. Among them the authorities have just detected a number of deserters from our army.

The naval supply steamer Bermuda, from Pensacola, August 20, 5 p. m., arrived heretis morning.

From one of the passengers we gather the following reliable facts: During the siege of Mobile and up to the surrender of Fort Morgan, there were on the rebel side, one ship sunk by a torpedo, one burned through destruction of orders, and 300 men, one half of whom were killed or drowned.

From the rebel side, we have taken 1,700 to 1,800 prisoners, and the rebel vessels of the enemy; caused the gunboat Gaines to be burned by the rebels, and driven the remainder behind their obstructions. Three forts, with all their garrisons, were captured, with all their material, came on unconditionally surrendered. The rebel gunboat Morgan escaped to Mobile. The enemy blew up the gunboat to prevent her falling into our hands. The Union States game, the rebel gunboat, more than any other vessel. Commander J. R. Mulaney lost his left arm.

The second day after the surrender of Fort Mifflin, the enemy was making a desperate attempt on the beach, killing five men and wounding four of the Seminoles, killing two of General Granger's men, and taking both arms of one of the Seminoles. The pilot of the Hartford was also wounded.

Reports from Pensacola say that the rebel Admiral Buchanan is doing well, and will not lose his leg. Commander Murphy of the Seminole, in the capture of the rebel gunboat, Tennessee, is in hospital at Pensacola. The executive officer of the Tennessee, who is said to be a deserter, is on the United States frigate Potomac.

A salute of one hundred guns was fired here to-day at noon in honor of the victory in Mobile Bay.

SHERMAN. Enemy's Loss at Atlanta—Our Forces Improving the Victory—Particulars of the Result.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Herald's special Chattanooga dispatch of the 6th, advises from Jonesboro on the morning of the 2d.

Hood's army was then retreating, with Sherman hanging fiercely on his rear. The head of the rebel column was getting bristly with the rebel rear near Fayetteville, six miles from Jonesboro.

The fighting around Jonesboro has been very severe, the enemy was repulsed on all points. On the 30th, the 4th and 23d corps crossed the Macon line, five miles beyond East Point.

Meantime the 15th, 16th, and 17th corps and the 23d corps were engaged in a hard fighting with the enemy on the right, driving them across Flint river into Jonesboro.

Hazen's division of the 15th corps took possession of the city on the 2d inst. The enemy's position. Next day the enemy's position in masses on the 15th corps, but their repeated assaults were repulsed, they losing several General Anderson mortally wounded. Our loss was slight, as we fought behind works.

Hazen's division captured two flags on the morning of the 1st of September. The 14th corps, under Sherman, followed the rebel track for several miles. In the afternoon they assaulted the rebel entrenchments, and, after a desperate conflict, lasting two hours, they were repulsed. Our loss was slight, as we fought behind works.

A Nashville dispatch of the 5th to the Herald says it is believed here that Hood has been forced to retreat to Macon, via Augusta railroad. The rebels are reported to have a large force of men, and are making a rapid march on Macon, and reach it ere Hood can muster a sufficient force to oppose him successfully.

FROM MISSOURI. Rebel Force at Chalk Bluffs. St. LOUIS, Sept. 5.—A report was circulated on credible authority in Cairo, on Saturday, that a considerable rebel force under Shelby had appeared at Onak Bluffs, thirty miles from Cairo, on the Missouri river. The rebels were expected to attack Charlestown, while the remainder demonstrated upon Cape Girardeau. This is doubtless Tom Freeman's gang, and their coming an invasion into Missouri, as the last accounts from Shelby place him in the vicinity of Helena, where he has been operating for some time.

Assessment on the Disloyal Citizens of Boone County. St. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Gen. Rosecrans, being satisfied that the citizens of Boone county have been co-operating with and encouraging bands of bushwhackers and other outlaws, and that these outlaws are only supported by the disloyal mother and two sisters, was recently shot while on a steamer lying at a wharf by a party of these villains, and ordered an assessment of $100 on the disloyal citizens for the benefit of the mother and sisters of said woman.

Woodbridge, Baxter, and Morrill are re-elected to Congress by overwhelming majorities. The Senate is unanimously Republican. The House will not contain over twenty Democrats.

FROM CALIFORNIA. Dreadful Steamboat Explosion—160 Persons Killed and Wounded. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—The opposition steamer Washoe exploded her boiler in the river last night. The upper part was shattered, and the water, the only support of the fifty passengers were killed and wounded. Fifty persons are dead, or will soon die. The boat was running at a high rate of speed.

Missouri Democratic State Convention. ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 7.—The Democratic State Convention to-day, nominated Thomas L. Price for Governor.

SPEECH OF SECRETARY SEWARD AT AUBURN, N. Y. On Saturday last the people of Auburn, N. Y., (the home of Secretary Seward), rejoiced over the victory at Mobile and Atlanta, and the Secretary of State being at home, an immense concourse of people, headed by a band, paid him a visit and called him out for a speech. He gave them one of his powerful and eloquence, and referred most happily to his victories at Atlanta and Mobile, and enjoyed Farragut and Sherman as they deserved.

With regard to Atlanta Mr. Seward said: "The victory at Atlanta came at the right place. The rebellious district is in the shape of an egg. It presents equal resistance on its sides, but if you could break the neck of the egg at either of the two points, Atlanta and Atlanta, the whole must crumble to pieces. While Sherman, under Grant, has been striking the big end, Meade, under Grant, has been striking the small end, and the whole shell will now be easily crushed, for it has grown brittle with the exhaustion of vitality within."

May not add to the victory at Atlanta comes in good time, as the victory in our Bay does, to vindicate the wisdom and the energy of the war administration. Farragut's fleet was not only a victory, it did make it. It was prepared by the Secretary of the Navy, and he that shall record the history of this war truthfully and impartially will write that since the days of Carnot no man has organized war with so much wisdom and skill as the Secretary of the Navy.

Mr. Seward then referred to the fact that many good men had become dissatisfied because of the delay in the nomination of a successor. Referring to this division of sentiment, he said: "But why should you be dissatisfied, especially at this juncture, divide the people? And why should I, a member of the Executive Administration, allude to it on such an occasion as this? The answer is at hand. The Executive Administration to surrender its powers to the people, and the people to designate agents to assume and exercise them four years. You recall the Executive Government in a condition very different from that which you found it practically expelled from the whole country south of the Delaware, the Ohio, and the Missouri, with the most of the army and navy, and the rebel forces were in the hands of the insurgents, and a new and treasonable confederacy, with the indirect but effective co-operation of foreign Powers, establishing itself on the soil of the United States, and the Government back to you, with last conquering armies and a triumphant navy, with the hateful Confederacy falling in pieces, and the rebel States one after another turning to their allegiance."

Mr. Seward then proceeded to argue that Mr. Lincoln was of right entitled to the Presidency for the next four years. He was constitutionally elected President of the whole United States, and his prerogative to rule over the whole country had been usurped from him.

"The war is maintained on our side to suppress the rebellion, and to preserve the States back under the authority of the constitutional President. The war is at a crisis. It is clear, therefore, that we are fighting to make the Administration of the United States, under the United States, under the election of 1860, to continue until the 4th of March, 1865. In voting for a President of the United States, can we wisely or advantageously select a practical person whom with force and arms we are fighting into the Presidency? [No, no!]

"You justly say 'no.' It would be nothing less than to give the very object of the war to the rebel States. The moral strength which makes our loyal position impregnable would pass from us, and when that moral strength has passed away material forces are no longer of any avail. Our loss is slight, as we fought behind works."

Hazen's division captured two flags on the morning of the 1st of September. The 14th corps, under Sherman, followed the rebel track for several miles. In the afternoon they assaulted the rebel entrenchments, and, after a desperate conflict, lasting two hours, they were repulsed. Our loss was slight, as we fought behind works.
