CARROLL ORCHESTRA

A New and Thriving Organization of Musicians

UNDER CARROLL INSTITUTE ADSPICES

Something About the History and the Membership.

ARE DOING GOOD WORK

The Carroll Institute, although primarily a society organized for literary pursuit, has, within the past few years, branched out into other fields of usefulness to its members.

Miss Claudia Moore Mrs. Kittle Berry.

Miss Claudia Moore Mrs. Kittle Berry. plays in a manner that elicited great praise. The young woman will probably witness the light comedy work by the club, the management now considering the question of presenting the play of David Garrick at a not far distant day.

Rev. D. J. Stafford, D.D., assistant pastor of St. Patrick's Church, and a well-known Shakespearean scholar, has taken an active interest in the work of the institute, and will lend his aid and advice to the Dramatic Club in their future work.

A few months ago it was decided to organize, as an additional feature to the institute, a society for the study of instruction under the late Prof. Rudolph Bernays, pupil of Joachim Raff, and Mr. Minster played in Prof. Bernays' orchestra for several years previous to assuming the

During the summer months the orchestra has kept up regular rehearsals, and on September 1 the services of a permanent director were secured in the person of Mr. S. Minster, a young musician well known to Washingtonians. Mr. Minster was for five years under the personal and special instruction of the late Prof. Rudolph Bernays, pupil of Joachim Raff, and Mr. Minster played in Prof. Bernays' orchestra for several years previous to assuming the

Dr. Dieffenderfer, H. Bredekamp. musical directorship of the Stuart Robson Dramatic Company for the seasons of 1893-94. The institute allows the orchestra to have its own officers, which at present are as follows: President, Mr. Wm. H. Lepley, Secretary, Mr. S. Minster, Treasurer, Mr. W. E. Dieffenderfer, the president of the Washington City Dental Society; treasurer, Mr. Wm. S. McCarthy, and secretary, Mr. R. O. Holtzman, real estate dealer. The librarian is Mr. H. Bredekamp. The orchestra at present consists of twenty-four musicians, divided up in their several parts as follows:

First violins—Herman Bredekamp, Theodore Urtan, Ernest Schuchman, H. B. M. Gatti, L. F. Von Winapfin.

Second violins—Wm. S. McCarthy, M. Hanlin, Alfred H. Gawler, Viola—N. Adams, W. A. Hadger, "Celli—Wm. F. Doyle, Paul Finckel, Bass—B. J. Iseman, W. C. Brown.

Tenors—E. Joannini, A. J. Gill, Clarinet—T. J. Taylor, Piccolo—F. A. Berry, Cornets—Dr. W. E. Dieffenderfer, Wm. H. Lepley, Trombones—Hans Farnsey, W. J. O'Brien, Drum—Isaac Scott.

olic Churches. The latter church has just secured her as the soprano for his newly reorganized choir.

Miss Claudia Moore, the other lady singer, is also well and favorably known in Washington. She is a soprano, and has been heard in the choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and at present is the soloist of St. Andrew's Church choir. She has also been heard in the choir of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and at present is the soloist of St. Andrew's Church choir.

Miss Wainwright in "An Unequal Match." For the final performance of the Carroll Institute's engagement at Albough's, tonight, will be presented Tom Taylor's delightful comedy, "An Unequal Match," in which Miss Wainwright will assume the difficult role of Heister Grazebrook, and one which requires that consummate grace, tenderness and sympathy that, in the "alteration," bring out the versatility for which Miss Wainwright is so justly famed.

Albough's Grand Opera House.—Among the dramatic treats announced for next week is the engagement of the renowned tragedian, Frederick Warde and Louis James, at Albough's Grand Opera House, in a series of magnificent Shakespearean and classic revivals. This is announced as the last season of the tragedians together, and their endeavor is to terminate their association with even greater credit than they began it. The first of the plays to be taken up is "Richard III," which has not been done in this country for many years. The public will doubtless be well pleased to welcome again Poina, Gadsbill, Baroloph and the other members of the staff, the witty rogue, ardent coward and versatile har; also the rollicking Prince Hal and hot-headed Henry Percy, of whom it was called. The play will be elaborately mounted with special scenery, costumes and music. Mr. Warde will play Prince Hal; Mr. James, Falstaff; Guy Lindsay, Hotspur; and Beverly Turner, King Henry.

Robert Mantell, the famous romantic actor, will follow James and Warde at Albough's, opening Monday, October 22. He will play the part of "Hamlet" in "Hamlet," "Monbar," "Corsican Brothers," and in a new play, which will be seen for the first time on stage.

The First Philharmonic Concert.—One of the great events of the musical season promises to be the concert on October 18, in Metropolitan Hall, by the Philharmonic Club, the phenomenal soprano, Ellen Beach Yaw, the extraordinary success on her initial special excursion in the city, she made long distances to hear this remarkable singer, who possesses the hit-or-miss quality of compass, the voice of nearly four octaves, from G below the alto clef to high E in altissimo. The leading musical circles of the country are replete with praises in recognition of her art, and she has caused everywhere she appeared. She will be supported by the distinguished artist, Antonio D'Amico, violin virtuoso, who in concerts at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and elsewhere gained the reputation of one of the foremost artists in the country. The orchestra will be conducted by one of the foremost artists in the country, the relative of Camilla Urso and an artist of great distinction. On Wednesday afternoon, from 2 to 4 o'clock, Miss Yaw will hold a recital in the parlors of leading society ladies at the Carroll Institute, and all music lovers will greatly enjoy the acquaintance of the charming young prima donna.

Lubricate Choir Singers.—Tomorrow night the Jubilee Choir Singers will present their second concert, with an entire new program, at Albough's Grand Opera House. The success of their first concert, which was repeated, both at a large house and most enjoyable performance of the sweetest music in the world. The box office opens Sunday at 4 o'clock for the sale of the reserved seats at 25 and 50 cents.

Kerman's Lyceum Theater.—The attraction of the Lyceum next week will be the French Folly Company, in connection with C. A. Sampson, who is acknowledged to be "the strongest man on earth." "From early youth he has kept increasing," he said, "and in a short time I began to give exhibitions. The work is very wearing, and I am obliged to train carefully and systematically. I do not smoke, and for that is worse for the muscular tissues than smoking, except in two hours a day and take the best of care of myself." He breaks silver dimes and quarters between his fingers with astonishing ease, and performs many other marvelous feats. The French Folly Company will form the other portion of the big program; in the company are such well-known names as Bennett and Gannon, in anatomical, knots and twists; Lowry and Hanley, Van and Leslie, and others.

The Seidl orchestra.—The first concert of the series to be given during the season by Mr. Anton Seidl and his Metropolitan Orchestra occurs Tuesday evening, October 23, at Metzertott Music Hall. The soloists for this concert are Miss Lillian Blauvelt, soprano, and Miss Lotta Mills, pianist. A brilliant program is announced, and the orchestra at present consists of twenty-four musicians, divided up in their several parts as follows:

First violins—Herman Bredekamp, Theodore Urtan, Ernest Schuchman, H. B. M. Gatti, L. F. Von Winapfin.

Second violins—Wm. S. McCarthy, M. Hanlin, Alfred H. Gawler, Viola—N. Adams, W. A. Hadger, "Celli—Wm. F. Doyle, Paul Finckel, Bass—B. J. Iseman, W. C. Brown.

When he went in the drug store he asked permission to leave his satchel there while he took his wife and child to dinner and the accommodating druggist kindly consented. Of course he wanted to put the satchel in an out-of-the-way place, but this did not satisfy the owner of the satchel and he wanted to put it in a more conspicuous place. This caused the trouble, and when an attempt was made to put out the excited man, blows passed and a large crowd soon gathered about the place. Policeman Emmert soon dispersed the crowd and arrested Hobbitzell for disorderly conduct. He forfeited $5 collateral in the Police Court today.
