Gratitude Shown by a Dog. About five years ago there came to Cramps' shipyard a stray terrier dog, who, by his friendly ways, soon made himself welcome about the watchman's box at the main entrance gate on Ball street and among the men working just inside the gates. Watchman Stafford named him Charley, and saw to his getting food. One day Charley had the misfortune to get one of his feet crushed under a car on Beach street, and Policeman Gillen of the eleventh district, who does duty about there, bandaged the wounded foot and cared for it until it got well. Ever since then Charley halts his feet and comes to meet Gillen whenever he comes around, barking and rubbing against him as a mark of friendship. When the Brooklyn was launched last week Policeman Gillen was in line with the men of his district in the yard, and Charley went in search of him. When he found his friend he gave vent to his joy to such an extent as to draw attention from the thousands of people standing around.
