THE POLICE COURT.

Most of the Cases Today Were Drunk, Disorderly and Vagrants. The court dealt with numerous cases of public intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Nearly All Were Sent Down to the Farm for Various Terms. Many defendants were sentenced to reformatory for their offenses.

When the Police Court opened this morning there were plenty of lawyers on hand, but there was a scarcity of money in the pen, and the result was that legal advice was not in great demand.

Like many of her kind, she went from bad to worse, until she got on a level with the many female vagrants who are victims of strong drink and unfortunate circumstances.

Now she has the appearance of wearing clothing from "hand-me-down-town," and her face shows that she has been dissipating.

"For the last year she has been living at the Mission," said Supt. McMichael. "She's a good worker, but for the past month, she's more especially during the past ten days, she has been drinking."

"That kind of work she does?" "She works in a laundry at the Mission," he answered, "and also does some outside mending."

"Why she charged with vagrancy when she has a home at the Mission?" the court asked. "She's been out of there," said the officer.

"And," said Supt. McMichael, "she has been coming there and abusing people so much that I thought for her own protection and the peace I would have her arrested."

"Where will she go now?" "She claims that she has a home at her sister's," said the officer.

"I admit that I was drinking," said Minnie, "but I thought for her own protection and the peace I would have her arrested."

1,020 shirt waists, 33¢.

Worth $1 to $2.98. Cash or Credit. We have just bought 120 dozen women's shirt waists from the foremost maker of Baltimore—cleaned up his entire stock.

The lot consists of lawns, percales, batistes, dimities and French Zephyrettes in hundreds of different patterns—including the popular linen colors, Dresden effects, mourning waists, fancy stripes, checks and plaids—with attached and detachable collars—some with two of the latter—some with plain white collars and cuffs.

Waists that were made with care as to details—with perfect-fitting yoke back, the largest sleeves and the most stylish collars and cuffs—and not one in the lot like of which has sold this season for less than $1 to $2.98.

This offering seems absurd, but 'tis true. We will make no money on them, but we will have brought you here and you will have become acquainted with the store, which is worth ten times the amount we would make on them were we to mark them at a profit.

And you may have them on credit—and you may pay the bill as best suits you—so much per week or month. That is liberality, indeed. Can we do more?

Of course this offering will attract crowds, which means that you should come early, for you know the choicest waists will go first. We have engaged extra salespeople and made extra preparations to handle the crowds.
