IN SPORTING CIRCLES

Columbia A. C. to Play Maryland A. C. Again Tomorrow.

TOUR OF THE COLUMBIANS

Prizes Donated for Winners in Bowling.

LOCAL CYCLING NOTES

The Columbia Athletic Club will play a return game of foot ball with the Maryland Athletic Club team at National Park tomorrow afternoon.

The weather tomorrow will in all probability be good and the Maryland team, from all accounts, will be one of the strongest that has represented the club for some time.

The Maryland team is a strong aggregation as regards weight and grit, but the backs are deficient in kicking, while it was the opinion of many that the reason for the non-working of the inter-city game Wednesday's game did not lie with the condition of the ground, but in the inability of the home team to get together.

The line-up of the Columbia team will doubtless be much the same as that which went against the Columbia "Varsity" team last Saturday.

Capt. Wells has given his men a good deal of practice with the game with Columbia in defensive work and the team works together in much better shape than it did last Saturday.

Hampton won. The referee erred in allowing a Touchdown.

With a team from which five of the best men were absent against an eleven the average weight of which was twenty pounds heavier and on an unknown field the Columbia Varsity team of this city succeeded in playing the strong Hampton A. C. team to a standstill yesterday.

It Pays To Read Our Shoe Advertisements

The thousands who have been converted this season into wearers of "HAHN'S SHOES" will tell you that it pays to read Hahn's advertisements, because by doing so they are saving foot-misery and perhaps one-half on their Shoe bills.

Children's. Ladies'. The "Ideal" Dress Shoes, ideal kid or boy calf, with heavy flexible soles.

Men's Shoes. This is only one of the 18 different styles of Men's Famous "Gem" Hand-made Winter Shoes.

WM. HAHN & CO.'S RELIABLE SHOE HOUSES, 900 and 923 7th st., 1914 and 1916 Pa. ave., 233 Pa. ave. s.e.

has added another trophy to its collection by capturing the handsome loving cup offered by the Myrtle Wheelmen of Baltimore to the out-of-town club making the best showing on Sunday's century run.

The team was composed of S. Ernest Phillips, Allen Hollander, Clifford V. Sparrow, B. Crest of Annapolis, George Myers, P. O'Connor, J. H. Glover, A. Eckloff and Harry Glover, all of whom made the start and passed in their check at the finish.

His Name Omitted. The name of Paris E. Brengle was inadvertently omitted in yesterday's Star from the list of members of the Arlington Wheelmen's team selected to race the Century Club team to Frederick and return November 10.

Starbuck's Suspension Removed. Chairman Mott of the L. A. W. racing board has notified J. Frank Starbuck that the suspension imposed upon him two weeks ago has been raised and the long-distance crack has begun active training for his return match with Jimmy Michael, which is to take place at Madison Square Garden Thanksgiving night.

Lehmann Welcomed by Harvard. R. C. Lehmann, Harvard's rowing coach, with his friend, Henry Willis, an English rower, and Captain Goodrich of the Harvard crew, returned to Cambridge, Mass., yesterday afternoon and were in Harvard's quarters by fully 1,000 persons.

Cornell's Boating Prospects. A call will be issued soon to the freshmen oarsmen at Cornell University to begin practice on the rowing machines in the gymnasium.

Marriage Licenses. Marriage licenses have been issued to the following: White—John W. Mueller and Louise Hefner.

An Unwelcome Tribute to His Talent. "Talk about impressions and impressions," said Albert Bruning, the other day, "I once made an impression on a Texas cowboy that nearly cost me my life. It was in Dallas, Tex. The company was playing 'Called Back' and I was the Macari, who is a bold, bad villain. It is needless to say that my cowboy had indulged in several stimulating drinks before entering the theater, which helped his imagination along."

President Robinson's Plan. A dispatch from Cleveland, Ohio, says that President Frank de Haas Robinson will propose a new scheme at the coming annual meeting of the National Base Ball League.

Mr. Robinson will also propose that the admission money returned to the spectators at the meeting in January, instead of in the spring. This is to give more time to consider it.

An Intelligent Jurymen. One of the curiosities of the jury system, and a sample of the intelligent comprehension of the average jurymen, came to light in Buffalo recently, and some of the persons interested in a recent case of considerable importance wonder how near justice comes to being done by the twelve good men and true who make up the juries of our state and federal courts.

Readers of the Commercial will easily remember the two weeks long trial of Col. Charles B. Gaskill of Niagara Falls before the federal court on the charge of being the president of the bank, and the trial of the First National Bank of Niagara Falls. The jury, it will be remembered, disagreed, nine being for acquittal and three for conviction.

One of the witnesses before the jury in this trial was Philip Warren, the former bookkeeper of the bank, and he was kept in the court room throughout the trial because of his familiarity with the books and his ability to turn to whatever account was desired.

Yesterday one of the jurymen, one of the men who had been on the jury with Mr. Warren on the street in this city, stopped to speak to him. The jurymen said: "What brings you to Buffalo again so soon?"

Mr. Warren replied that he had been employed in Buffalo nearly all the time since the trial of the bank, and was a resident and a voter of the city now.

"Why, when did the bank fail? What bank failed the juror in a surprised tone. "The First National Bank at Niagara Falls, more than a year ago, the one Col. Gaskill was charged with having helped to wreck," said Mr. Warren.

"Gosh!" exclaimed the jurymen. "You don't mean to say that that bank failed—shut up—do you?"

"Why certainly," said Mr. Warren, "that was what the trial was about."

"Well, by jingo, I didn't get onto that," said the jurymen, amazedly. "I thought the jury had been getting even with Col. Gaskill for losing some money for them. Say, if I'd known then there were transactions had broken that bank I'd felt mighty differently about it, I tell you. By gosh, I wish I'd a-know'n."

Comment is useless. Pine Supply of the Northwest. From the Northwestern Lumberman.

A pioneer lumberman at Duluth, Minn., is reported to have lately said that it was a crime to ship a foot of lumber from that district to the eastern markets, as every stick of it would be needed on the western prairies within a few years.

Wisconsin would either have been cut or taken out of the market. What is left is rapidly going into the hands of a few owners, and the big operators should be in a hurry to cut it. The mills of Duluth Superior will at the end of this year have manufactured the logs stripped from an area of 100,000 acres. The logs which are being denuded. It is this man's idea that the pine is so rapidly disappearing that the government should take the matter in hand and reserve every acre of timber land in Minnesota north of range 60.

Of course, he means all the timber land remaining in the hands of the government. But there seems little prospect of the government doing any such thing. It even allows the reservation pine to be sold off. There is no reason to think that there will be any halt to the present rate of cutting pine until the whole shall have been exhausted. The large owners may become more conservative as their holdings diminish and measures for the suppression of fires shall become more effective, so that the supply of pine for owners of stumps will be as rapidly as the market will bear for fear that their pine may be damaged or destroyed by conflagration, liable any year. If they were satisfied that their pine was reasonably safe from fires they would cut and market it in a more conservative way than they now do.

Thousands of Live Lobsters. From the Shipping World. Ten thousand live lobsters formed the queer cargo recently delivered from a Spanish schooner to the order of a firm at Marshfield. The feeding of such a numerous living freight was not over by the simple expedient of placing the creatures in a compartment of the hold through which sea water was allowed to flow, carrying with it the necessary food supplies in the form of small pieces of crustacea dear to the crustacean palate. Whatever else the cargo may have comprised, the lobster portion would, I should imagine, be exempt from the usual process of being stowed away with 10,000 live lobsters would be too serious an undertaking.

An Uromantic Enoch Arden. From the New York Tribune.

A venerable Schenectady woman was confronted the other day by the specter of her returning husband, who had left her forty-eight years before to go to California and grow up with the country. She had heard from him for a few years, and then, all letters ceasing, she reached the natural conclusion that he was dead, and married again. Her second husband died in due time, and she was left in the weeds of her double widowhood till the return of her original spouse, who came back dead broke at eighty-one, having entirely failed to grow up with the country to which he emigrated. The interest of his homecoming is thus reduced to extremely slender proportions, and the Schenectady novelist who makes a romance of it will have to get up early in the morning.
