BUFFALO BACK FROM MANILA

Cruiser Made the Trip Across in Forty-Four Days.

Many Officers and Men Aboard Who Took Part in the Manila Bay Fight.

The New York Tribune this morning says: The second big batch of Dewey's fighters to reach this port arrived yesterday on the United States cruiser Albatross. They are exceedingly quick run of forty-four and a half days. The cruiser brought back 599 men in all from our fleet in the Philippines, including 215 who took part in the great naval battle of Manila Bay. These comprise 49 men from the Olympia, 90 from the Boston, 55 from the Baltimore, 14 from the Petrel, and 7 from the Concord. They are nearly all long-term men whose time of enlistment has expired, and after being landed at the navy yards today they will be discharged. Among them are 30 officers and 42 marines.

Some of the officers are: Paymaster John R. Mottin, Captain Dutton, and Lieutenant R. S. Robinson of the marine corps, all of the Boston; Lieutenant A. G. Rogers of the Montezuma; Ensign S. Wilson of the Monocacy; Ensign Stephen Douglas of the Monocacy; Ensign Lang of the Manila, one of the captured Spanish gunboats, and Dr. R. S. Blakeman of the Concord. They are, following, who are naval cadets, are coming home for their examinations: D. S. Mahoney of the Monterey, W. H. White of the Olympia, W. R. Sexton of the Montocacy and J. F. Landes of the Olympia.

Bravery of Cadet White.

Cadet White, at the taking of Manila, was put in charge of the tubboat Marcelo, for the purpose of carrying messages to and fro among the fleet. The tubboat Caliao was ordered close to the shore, and White ran the Marcelo close up beside her and joined in the bombardment. Dewey was greatly pleased with the young fellow, and though he acted without orders, and recommended him for promotion. White would not talk about this affair yesterday. His comrades, however, told the reporters of it, while White blushed like a school girl.

Another man who attracted notice by his bravery is about the Buffalo, a man William Oliners of the Boston. After Manila had been captured he was put on board the Manila, a captured Spanish gunboat, which one day sailed to Manila. Along with him, Navigator Williams called for volunteers to go ashore with him and pull down the Filipino flag that was hoisted on a little fort, surrounded by trenches. Oliners and another man volunteered, and with Williams in the lead, the three advanced boldly on the fort, and when they were within a few feet of the entrance, whether it contained a garrison or not. Fortunately for them it was deserted, and they brought back the flag in safety. The colors were sent to Dewey, who highly complimented the men.

The admiral is the idol of all these men, though he says he is terribly strict disciplinarian, and many of the boys complain that fines have eaten up nearly all the charges for overtime they have against Uncle Sam. Capt. Hemphill of the Buffalo says Dewey is by no means falling in health. He is as lively as a cricket, and can get up a ship's ladder as quickly as any officer in his fleet. He gets up every morning at 5 o'clock, and between that hour and breakfast time, 8 o'clock, transacts a big part of his business. Every place at which the Buffalo stopped, every way home the people wanted to know when Dewey was coming.

The men are glad to get back to America, and, as if to express the intensity of their joy, the Buffalo flies a "homeward-bound" pennant which is 280 feet long.

An Unsettling Trip.

There was no exciting incident of the trip. The men experienced considerable discomfort from the heat while passing through the Red Sea and Suez canal, which they said was worse than any they had felt in the Philippines. While crossing the Atlantic the ship was delayed by a heavy fog, and the Buffalo was without much cargo, and rolled to an extent which at times equaled that of the men's own ship. The men say they were in New York harbor through a misunderstanding which they knew nothing of until they were several days from Manila.

These men shipped from the Pacific coast and expected to be paid off and mustered out when they reached Mare Island. They say that means they were to be sent home before being paid off. They were sent from Manila, and that when they asked if they could take passage on the Buffalo and get home to New York, they received assurances that they might. Just before they sailed from Cavite the Solace arrived, and they learned she was going to take other passengers to San Francisco. It was too late, however, to change their plans. They say that when they were several days out papers were presented to them by the officers on the ship, and these turned out to be waivers of their transportation to San Francisco. They say that means they will be sent home from the Brooklyn navy yard, and from New York must pay their way home.

Before coming into port the men drew up a letter setting forth these statements, and asking that they be shipped to their point of embarkation. The men say there are two reasons why they want to be sent home before being paid off. They admit that if they get their money in New York many of them will have to tramp or "freight" it across the country. The other reason is that they will save money by having the government send them home. They think they are entitled to this. Many of the men now reaching home have been serving extra time. In some cases their enlistments expired before Dewey sailed for Manila, but they remained in the navy because the outlook was for war. These men went through the battle and the hard service which followed it, although entitled to shipment home as long ago as four months. Other men are only three months overtime, but a considerable number remained for the chance of a battle after their terms had expired. Among the Pacific coast men, some say they have not been in the United States for four and six years, having been aloft on foreign stations throughout their enlistments.

The boys are rich in mascots, which include goats, monkeys, pigs, etc. Apprentice Earl Summerville of Boston brings a monkey, which he has named Agaido. The "monkey" was rescued by Summerville in a small boat from the wreck of the Don Juan de Austria.

Capt. Hemphill is proud of the Buffalo's fast run from Manila. Her actual steaming days numbered only thirty-seven, and her average speed was 13 1/2 knots. She left Manila on March 23, and spent three days in Singapore having her bottom scraped. She left here on December 7, and took 110 days to reach Manila. THE RECENT LYNCHINGS

Representative White of North Carolina Takes Them as Theme for Address.

Tribute to the Loyalty and Self-Sacrifice of His Race—Other Addresses.

The meeting yesterday afternoon at the Second Baptist Church of the local branch of the National Afro-American Council was presided over by former Lieut. Gov. P. B. S. Pinchback of Louisiana, and was attended by an audience which packed the large structure to its doors.

The principal address was by Representative George H. White of North Carolina, who spoke on "The Recent Lynchings in the South, and the Duty of the Colored People." In part Mr. White said:

"Possibly at no time in the history of our freedom has the effort been made to mold public sentiment against us and our progress so strongly as is now being done. The forces have been set in motion and we must have sufficient manhood and courage to overcome all resistances. A race of people with the patience, forbearance, physical development and Christian character and womanhood which has characterized us during the past 285 years will not bow at the bidding of any man or set of men, and we will not permit the blood of our fathers to be shed in vain.
