Oriental Rug Reductions

It would be difficult to find a subject of more real interest to the home-furnisher and deserving of greater consideration as an essential in the making of the home beautiful than that of the Oriental Rugs.

It's the interest that fascinates that centers about these exquisite Oriental productions, and makes sure their place as the highest class of floor covering.

A hundred or so are here—slightly damaged—but every one of them an antique, upward of one hundred years old. Needless to state the occasion is one of most rare occurrence when we say they are priced to sell at $3.50, $5.00, $7.50, $9.50 and $10.00.

Tomorrow and next week the Oriental Rug Department will have for you the opportunity that makes it possible to own one or more of these matchless rugs at a price wholly out of proportion to what they are worth.

CHARGES ON CHECKS

Effect of Regulation Made by New York Banks.

Present Stringency Looked Upon as an Indication of General Prosperity Throughout the Country.

The tightness in the money market in New York city is attributed in part to the policy of the banks in making a charge for the collection of checks except in the case of those that come from banks in certain places. The list of the latter include Boston and Providence in New England, Albany and Troy in New York, Hoboken, Jersey City, Newark and Bayonne, New Jersey, and Philadelphia and Baltimore. The charge varies from one-tenth of one per cent to one-quarter of one per cent. As there is no charge made for collection by the New York banks on checks received from correspondents in the places referred to, banks in other cities have very largely discontinued the making of such charges on balances on deposit in the New York banks, and, instead, have sent their money to Philadelphia or some other of the places above named. The result is that large sums of money formerly deposited in New York have been withdrawn.

It is estimated from this source alone the increase in the bank deposits in Philadelphia has reached the large sum of $50,000,000.

The practice of making no charge for the collection of checks has been in vogue for so long a time, and people have become so accustomed to it that the regulatory causes annoyance as well as delay in business transactions. Those who use checks in Philadelphia are not aware of the fact that the charge must be paid before the check will be received in satisfaction of the indebtedness, and this causes a good deal of complaint.

Those Who Deposit Checks. The inconvenience has not been felt by those who deposit their checks for collection in a bank, for the reason that the local banks have never attempted to collect such charges, but send the checks to a city which is exempt from this rule, and are known as one of the discriminatory places, and thence the checks are forwarded to New York.

A good deal of the money of the local banks which was formerly deposited in the banks of New York is now on deposit in Boston or Philadelphia. While, as stated, some bankers are inclined to attribute the present scarcity of money in New York to this cause, in part, at least, it is also thought that probably the main cause is the return of prosperity, which has brought about a revival of business in all portions of the country and a consequent use for the money held by local banks.

Hence, instead of having a large balance unemployed, the banks outside of New York find abundant uses for the money in meeting local demands. In this view the present stringency may be looked upon as an indication of financial health, as the stringency which is caused by the withdrawal of money to be hoarded is a sign of just the opposite.

Siberia in the Future.

Arminius Vambey in the Fall Mail. With regard to the future colonization of this outlying portion of the empire of the czar, there is no doubt that an unmistakable gain will be derived, for the growth of the population in Siberia, where an area of 13,000,000 square miles is inhabited by only 7,000,000 souls, and where the extraordinary wealth in minerals, woods and arable soil still awaits exploitation, will certainly proceed with greater strides than heretofore, without giving implicit faith to Russian official statistical data, it may fairly be assumed that, owing to the particular care the government has always taken as to further colonization, the number of agricultural Russian will probably avail himself of the offered facilities, and that the population in the best of the territory, which is Siberia, will increase. It may be objected that Russia, the most thinly populated country in Europe, will hardly find a surplus to provide for the newly opened territory, but it must be borne in mind that the Russian peasant is noted for his migratory propensities. At the time of the emancipation of the serfs in 1861, the agricultural proletariat having steadily grown—the annual amount is computed to be 800,000—there is no doubt that it will easily drift in an easterly and southeasterly direction, augmenting thereby the total of the population. The calculation that by the lapse of the next hundred years the above-mentioned area of 1,187,000 square kilometers will be populated by 100,000,000 or eighty millions is certainly exaggerated, and at all events inconsistent with the increase hitherto noticed in more favorably situated and more accessible centers of western Russia. Even in the most fertile districts of southwestern Russia, the density of population remains far below that of other European countries, for whereas one reckons upon one square kilometer in France 175, in Germany 95, in Belgium 210 inhabitants, in southern Russia we find only 48.

A Good Argument.

From THE HIB. There are times when a lawyer regrets the use of an illustration which a moment before has appeared especially felicitous. "The argument of my learned and brilliant brother," said the counsel for the plaintiff in a suit for damages, "is like the snow when it falls—it is scattered here, there and everywhere."

Wary of "Very."

From THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE. Writers should save the time of readers by abandoning "very" and giving an overworked word a rest for a few years. It has earned that rest. That word, as an adverb, is found less than twenty times in the King James translation of the Bible. The rarity of its use makes it count for all the more when utilized. When it is said that "the man Moses was very meek," one understands that he was meek beyond the custom of the Israelite of his day. When St. James says "the Lord is very pitiful," the "very" is full of significance. But if the word and the deed are not as heroic as the deeds recorded in the Bible were to be described by most writers of the day, there would be a "very" in almost every line.

The American Way.

From THE VITTA PRESS. Emergency makes heroes, and in this country there is no lack of that sort of stuff from which heroes are made. When a steamboat crashed into a ferry boat the other day in New York harbor an ordinary truckman shouted out in the gangway "women and children first," and his command found obedience. The engineer on that same boat stood by his machine till the first wrecked and the water up to his arm pits. That was the American way and it does credit to our people and our nation.

Providence and Expansion.

From THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. We can be stout party men and still remain Americans in the larger sense. The man who cannot perceive the hand of Providence in an accidental occupation of the Philippines will be unable to see it in any of the large movements which have shaped the face and character of our world. We cannot confine humanity in our own special chest.

A Gentle Hint.

From THE LOUISVILLE POST. If the Chicago students who are going to the Kentucky mountains to study sociological conditions make the mistake of looking like revenue detectives, some of them may return to Illinois in an refrigerator car, instead of as perishable freight.

A New Bit of Doggerel.

From THE MILWAUKEE WISCONSIN. Tippecanoe drops Mason, too.

Ladies' $15 & $18 suits for $10.

Cold type cannot adequately convey the value of the offering. You must come and see the garments themselves—note the style—the fine workmanship—to appreciate it. They are the result of special purchase, certainly. A prominent maker made the mistake of overproduction—and paid the penalty. They embrace the finest Homespuns in all shades of gray and blue—and fashionable Venetians and Cheviots and navy and black. Jackets are cut in all the latest effects, and all silk lined. No more fashionable or more thoroughly tailored suits have been turned out this season. The values range from $15 to $18. They're all marked ten dollars.

$14.98 for suits worth $22.

A worthy companion value from our regular stock includes the offering of Suits, which any store would charge you $22 to $28. These are the finest Manufacture Suits of Imported Broadcloth and Venetians, in navy, royal and black. Nobby, short-tail jackets, in double-breasted, tight-fitting and softer styles—all silk-lined—thoroughly fashionable skirts. Possessed of every little detail that marks the swell tailor's garment.

An unusual silk waist value.

A special lot of Ladies' Exquisite Tulle Silk Waists, in black and a complete line of the most fashionable colors, such as turquoise, royal, cerise, lavender, heliotrope, red, &c., which are the regular $10.00. These are the finest in the very newest effects—double front and back—finished in the best dressmaker style.

$8 & $10 golf capes, $5.98.

Last week's spirited selling of Golf Capes will be eclipsed tomorrow—when we put on sale a special purchase of Capes made by our buyer in New York this week. They are in all the smartest styles—and in a great variety of Scotch plaids—with hoods and others with flounces edged with fringe. They are the regular $8 and $10 kinds. These go at $5.98 tomorrow.

A NOVEL DRESS HANGER.

A Simple Contrivance That Fits Against the Wall of Any Room. From Harper's Bazar. There are many different devices for the care of clothes, now that fashion demands that a woman's garments shall not only be made in good style, fit well and be becoming, but shall always be in order. This is not so difficult when there is a capable maid at hand to take the garments to be ironed, to brush it, press it and put it in order generally. A woman, however, who has no maid—and statistics prove that there are more who do not have them than those who do—must find some other device for keeping clothes in shape. To throw a skirt or a wrap over a chair when it is taken off is a very foolish thing to do, for every one knows, for if left lying on the chair the garment soon becomes wrinkled and shabby looking. It is not always possible to hang it in a closet with other clothes, as it may be dusty, and yet there is not always time to give the needed brushing and then there is the question of space.

IRONING TABLE LINEN.

There is an Art in Giving it Luster and Brilliance. From the Kansas City Star. There is more in ironing table linen than has been dreamed of in many housewives' philosophy. There is no reason why table linen of even a coarse quality should not have a glister and shine that is the peculiar property of all properly ironed linen. It is not the starch, but the starch is given them "body," but if the starch was avoided and the linen properly laundered and used with silence cloth beneath it, it would look far better. We cannot deceive folks into thinking a coarse table cloth is of the finest damask texture, but we can give every one a look as well as properly ironed as one far more costly improperly laundered.

IRONING TABLE LINEN.

The only points to be observed are these: Iron the linen before it is dry and iron it until it is perfectly dry. This will insure perfect results. Avoid starch in linen as you would upon silk or such fabrics. It is entirely out of place. Table linen should be ironed in the same way as table cloths, and all fancy foldings avoided. Sometimes in hotels fancy foldings are used, but in the home the napkins be folded in plain squares and be ironed so perfectly that their glister will be an attractive feature of the table decoration.

We Must Complete the Work.

From THE NEW YORK TIMES. The evidence which the Philippine commission submits as to the incapacity of the Filipinos in their present stage of development for the task of governing themselves is merely supplementary to other evidence, sufficiently convincing that we have already received about them. Certainly nobody who wishes them well will any longer argue that it is our duty to "scuttle out" of the islands in no reason why the home table should not look as well every day as far as these points go, as when it is set for "company."

25c. petticoats, 19c.
