

M. B. Moses & Sons (OPEN EVENINGS.) These for Christmas Giving. Depend upon what you may buy here as being both superior in quality—the "proper" furniture, the "vogue" furniture—and priced at the smallest possible figures. Today your attention is invited to the most unusual display of music cabinets—more than fifty styles being shown. A gift piece could not be better selected. The exhibit of odd reception chairs offers the best of opportunity for the present choosing. Especially interesting are several dozen handsomely designed reception chairs, in piano polished mahogany finish, inlaid in tasteful design and upholstered in satin damasks and tapestries. Such a piece would be well placed in any parlor. A number will be sold at $6.20. Reception Chair, $6.20. Mahogany-finish Music Cabinet, $3.85. W. B. MOSES & SONS, F Street, Cor. 11th.

FUNK'S TESTIMONY Alleged Murderer Takes Stand in His Own Behalf. SWEARS HE IS INNOCENT OF THE CRIME. Insinuations Against Mrs. Brown, the Dead Man's Daughter. EVIDENCE HEARD TODAY. The understanding that the defendant would take the stand, and also that witnesses would be called to substantiate the important statements made yesterday by a witness for the defense, tended to increase the number of spectators today at the trial of Frank W. Funk in Criminal Court No. 2. When an adjournment was taken shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon it was with the understanding that the session beginning this morning should continue until the case had been disposed of. The defense should be closed. Therefore no session of the court was held last evening. Up to the time Frederick Degges was called to the stand late yesterday afternoon very little had been presented to the jury that was favorable to Funk. Degges' testimony, however, in the opinion of many, began the raising of a doubt that may possibly mean very much as regards the guilt of the defendant. Mr. Degges is a carpenter by occupation, resides at 500 I street southeast, and he testified intelligently and emphatically. He was subjected to a most searching and vigorous cross-examination. In substance the declarations of Mr. Degges were that between five and ten minutes before 6 o'clock the afternoon of June 23, 1898, he saw Funk in Washington Circle in company with a woman. Funk raised his hat to Funk in salutation and Funk responded in like manner. Mr. Degges said that he had not been approached by any one acting in behalf of the defendant, that he had volunteered his testimony and that it was correct in every detail. Mrs. Katie E. Clark, the defendant's sister, was the last witness to testify yesterday. She also testified in detail that she had seen Sophie Brown sitting in Funk's lap, had seen them kissing one another, and also that Sophie Brown had testified to the witness that wrongful intimacy existed between Funk and herself. First Witness Today. The first witness called by the defense this morning, John W. Drew, caused somewhat of a stir by making statements that varied as to time and other details from those of a number of the others who have testified before the jury. Mr. Drew said that in June, 1898, he was engaged in newspaper work, and on hearing of the homicide hastened to the Brooks home. The witness said he reached the home at 10 o'clock the evening of June 23, 1898; that Mrs. Brooks had been taken from the house; that no other reporters had at that time appeared, and that both the daughter of Mr. Brooks and the girl had returned home, and that Mrs. Brooks was not taken to the hospital till some time later. Mr. Drew testified that one of the daughters was hysterical and the other was apparently hysterical. One of them told the witness, he said, that she had frequently seen her mother counting money; that she (the mother) was very secretive about it; that the lady had gathered up her money when any one approached her, and that she did not seem to care to have any one know the amount of money she had. Maggie Brooks was recalled. She admitted that Drew was at her father's house the evening of the murder, but she denied making any statements to him regarding her mother's money. Evidence as to the good character of Funk, and also to the effect that early in June, 1898, when he exchanged his money for a license and money, was introduced by the examination of Philip F. Gormly, Thomas E. Gantt and William Johnson, who had worked with the defendant. Philip J. Dougherty, a law student, who resides at 1014 Massachusetts avenue, next door to the Brooks home, was called in the defense. It was desired to show that while a spectator in the court room one day last week the witness noticed significant glances and looks exchanged between Sophie Brown and Maggie Brooks while one of the two was testifying and the other was occupying a chair near the witness. The girl declined to answer the questions, however, and an exception was noted. In His Own Defense. Funk then testified in his own behalf. Every one present paid the closest attention to the story he told. He spoke in a jerky manner, but was composed and very much in earnest. After stating, in reply to questions of counsel, that he was suffering from a chronic complaint and recently underwent an operation at the Emergency Hospital, Funk began his narrative. "I arose about 8 o'clock the morning of the 23d of June, 1898," he said, "and went around to the Brooks home about 9 o'clock. I returned to Mrs. Buckley's and read for a while. I went back to the Brooks house for a while, then went to lunch, read a while and returned to the Brooks house about 2 o'clock. While there I made arrangements to meet Sophie Brown at the park at 2 1/2 o'clock, and Pennsylvania avenue at 4 o'clock. I met her in the park and we stayed there till 4:30 o'clock or 1:45 o'clock. She walked with me to the door of Mrs. Buckley's house. Supper was served unusually early that day—about ten minutes after 5 o'clock. "After supper," continued Funk, "I went around to the Brooks home. As I entered I heard Sophie Brown say from the rear room, 'Hold on, Frank.' I saw Sophie standing, and sitting near a table was a colored man. Sophie was looking at me, and she was usually very cordial. She came toward me and directed me to meet her in Washington Circle. "I went to the circle," Funk went on to say, "and waited until I began to grow impatient. Sophie finally came, however. She said: 'For God's sake, you have got to get out. The police have been to Mrs. Buckley's and to our house.' I replied that I had nothing to go on. She then drew from her pocket a roll of bills tied with a string. She took from the roll two new $20 bills, handed them to me and said, 'Take this and go fast.' She reached out as though she expected me to receive the roll of money. I put the money in my pocket, saying, 'Where did you get them?' She answered, 'My God, give me the money.' "The Money Discussed. "There was then possibly five minutes' talk about the money. I finally said, 'This don't belong to you,' left her, got on a street car and rode down town. "Funk then told that he alighted from the car while on Pennsylvania avenue between 9th and 10th streets, bought a sweater and a pair of bicycle hose in a bicycle establishment, and then purchased a pair of bicycle trousers and a coat at Dyrforth's store. He proceeded thence to a hotel, had supper, changed his clothing, proceeded to the B. and O. depot, purchased a mirage ticket, and as no train was about to leave went to the B. and O. depot and took a train for Philadelphia. "I got to thinking, though," said Funk, "and kept on to New York." "Why did you go away?" at this point asked the prosecuting attorney. "The temptation was great," replied the defendant, hesitatingly, "that roll contained more money than I had ever seen, and the police were after me. If I had thought a moment I never would have gone away." "When did you first hear of the murder?" counsel inquired. "Four days later while in New York," was the reply. "Because I saw that all the circumstances pointed to me," answered the defendant. "I would have touched a cent of the money if I had known it belonged to that couple." "Gentlemen," added Funk, turning to the jury, "I don't care to say anything more. I deserve it, like a man, but I did not strike that old gentleman." Fast Life Admitted. "You led a pretty fast life while in New

Specials from 6 to 10 tonight that will crowd the store. This coupon & 19c. tonight. This coupon & 79c. tonight. This coupon & $2.75 tonight. This coupon & 5c. tonight. This coupon & $1.98 tonight. This coupon & $1.69 tonight. Fancy boxes of Irish Linen Stationery, paper and envelopes to match, 25c. value, for 17c. Choice of Puff Boxes, with jeweled and oxidized top, 25c. value, for 19c. Choice of Baby Pins, Jeweled Brooch Pins, Padlock Bracelets, Jeweled Rings, Garter Buckle, and other jewelry, 25c. value, for 19c. Men's Pure Silk Black Handkerchiefs, of extra large size and heavy quality—regular 50c. quality—tonight only 25c. Half a dozen pairs of Men's Fine Grade Two-Threaded, Man's Half Hose, in black and tan—full seamless, with double heel, toe and sole—in a box—tonight only 69c. Hand-painted Silk and Satin Handkerchiefs and Glove Cases—in all colors—worth up to $1.50—only tonight at 69c. Men's Pure Silk Black Handkerchiefs, of extra large size and heavy quality—regular 50c. quality—tonight only 25c. Choice of many different kinds of Pure and Toilet Soap Candles—freshly made from the best ingredients—priced from 10c. to 9c. Men's Neckwear—in Tecks, Four-in-Hands, Imperials, Puffs, etc.—and all the colors and patterns—in a box, 25c. tonight 29c. Men's Plaid Harvard Mufflers, reversible and warmly lined—all sorts of patterns and colors—only tonight for 19c. Men's Slippers, of vic kid, Russia calf, etc. in Everett, opera and Roman shapes—chamois lined—regular $1.25 value—only 83c. tonight for 83c. Boys' Rubber Coats and Mackintoshes, the latter with capes and plaid lining—regular $2.50 and $3 values—in the Boys' Room of this store—tonight for $1.89.

Louvre Glove Co. Are Offering Special Christmas Attractions. A Large Assortment of GLOVES. In spite of the great advance in the value of Gloves we make no change in our prices. Our latest European importations are Ladies', Men's and Children's Dressed Kid Gloves, in all the most desirable shades, from $1 up. See our Acme Pique Walking Gloves, $1.00. And many more attractive novelties to be found at our NEW STORE, No. 931 F Street. Open Every Evening.

Some Special Umbrella Hints. Furs at Reduced Prices. Gloves make sensible gifts. Men's 50c. neckwear, 39c. tomorrow. Handkerchiefs in infinite variety. These will make acceptable gifts.

GOLDBERG'S 922-24-26-28 7th St., running through to 704-6 K—"The Dependable Store."

Toy buyers will reap a harvest. Magic lanterns "cut." Child's pianos reduced. Dolls' Furniture, consisting of Chiffoniers, Washstands, Bureaus, 4-wheel Go-carts, Dolls' Writing Desks, etc., all are for 19c. Dolls' Summer Cottage, with porch, etc., for 39c. Boys' complete Printing Outfit, including Baltimore Jobber No. 2 Printing Press, and large box of type. Worth $1.48, for 98c. Reversible Blackboards, with eraser, worth 25c., for 19c. Extra large size Slides, with steel spring runners—sold at $1.39—now 98c.

That Rich Flavor! White House Coffee is a blend of two of the finest coffees produced in the world. It costs a few cents more than ordinary coffee. Try it and see why? Sold in Washington by the following grocers: D. T. Donohue, Cor. 11th and B Sts. W. A. L. Hunt, No. 503 4 1/2 St. S.W. M. McGonigle, No. 227 Pa. Ave. S.E. Rowe & Hunt, Cor. 12th and S Sts. M. Oppenheimer & Son, No. 508 9th St. A. J. Bradley, N. Capitol and B Sts. G. E. Altomus, No. 2816 14th St. B. A. Weiss, Cor. 5th and Ridge Sts. T. H. Pickford, Cor. 9th and La. Ave.

White House Coffee is a blend of two of the finest coffees produced in the world. It costs a few cents more than ordinary coffee. Try it and see why? Sold in Washington by the following grocers: D. T. Donohue, Cor. 11th and B Sts. W. A. L. Hunt, No. 503 4 1/2 St. S.W. M. McGonigle, No. 227 Pa. Ave. S.E. Rowe & Hunt, Cor. 12th and S Sts. M. Oppenheimer & Son, No. 508 9th St. A. J. Bradley, N. Capitol and B Sts. G. E. Altomus, No. 2816 14th St. B. A. Weiss, Cor. 5th and Ridge Sts. T. H. Pickford, Cor. 9th and La. Ave.

Men's 50c. neckwear, 39c. tomorrow. Handkerchiefs in infinite variety. These will make acceptable gifts.

Men's 50c. neckwear, 39c. tomorrow. Handkerchiefs in infinite variety. These will make acceptable gifts.

Do Not Approach Embarrassment. The Navy Department officials do not apprehend any embarrassment on account of the placing of the Columbian iron works in the hands of a receiver, as reported from Baltimore. It is assumed that the receiver will continue with the government work, and a slight delay is the worst matter that is apprehended now. There is not much work in progress on account of the navy at the Baltimore yard—the Tingey, a twenty-six-knot torpedo boat, and the submarine boat Plunger comprising all of the naval construction under way there. To Meet at Marine Barracks. A board of marine officers has been appointed to meet at the marine barracks in this city tomorrow morning for the examination of candidates for appointment to the Marine Corps. The board consists of the following named officers: Col. James Forney, president; Col. G. C. Goodloe, Col. F. L. Denny and Capt. C. S. Radford, recorder.

York, did you not?" asked Attorney Baker. "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in this city for murder. The reply of the defendant was: "I know of the murder, but surely they have caught the murderer by this time." "You bet I did," declared Funk, "a little too fast." Continuing his recital, Funk said he proceeded from New York to Altoona, Pa., in company with a "Coney Island girl," named Lizzie Cohen, but who was known as Pansy Parker. From Altoona he went to Pittsburg, where he met his father, who told the defendant that he was wanted in