

THE EVENING STAR

WASHINGTON, MONDAY, October 7, 1901.

CROSBY S. NOYES, Editor.

THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent Family Circulation much more than the combined circulation of the other Washington dailies.

In order to avoid delays, on account of personal absence, letters to THE STAR should not be addressed to any individual connected with the office, but simply to THE STAR, or to the Editor or Business Department, according to their purpose.

The Latest Yarn from Europe. The Venezuelan minister to France is quoted in Germany as authority for the statement that no armed rupture between Venezuela and Colombia has occurred.

For a fortnight the world was under the impression that a war was in progress in Central and South America, and that the danger was not a mere imaginary of the American reporters, and that not a shot had been fired.

It is true that it would only be a case of tit for tat. Here in the United States we are compelled to consume, almost weekly, yarns of European manufacturers about grave matters of state on the Atlantic coast.

But Europe should make no mistake either as to the existence of trouble between Venezuela and Colombia, or as to the attitude of the United States in the premises.

The suggestion that we are trying to mislead Europe on this point is preposterous. The United States would prefer that Europe had a correct understanding of matters, but it need not exert itself particularly to bring that about.

Shepard-Crocker, Low-Platt. The mayoralty campaign in New York has fairly opened, although Tammany's candidate, Shepard, has not yet been formally notified.

The intelligent voter in New York—and it is the intelligent voter who must be relied upon to awaken and turn the election toward reform—will not be deceived by such a confusion of the issues.

In a short time the debt of the United States will be more than a billion dollars. In an emergency any patriotic trust magnate could take the amount out of his vest pocket at a moment's notice.

By organizing a trust to fight the American tobacco combine, the British may arouse some patriotic sympathy over here for an institution that was once generally repudiated.

When the difficulties which missionaries are obliged to encounter are considered, the average person is almost tempted to leave the heathen to his fate.

It is hinted that crop statistics are as unreliable as the weather reports, the only reference being that so many people do not read them.

The war office will make allowances for the fact that Rudyard Kipling was always noted for his business of expression.

It looks as if neither England nor America can beat the Columbia.

The Stone Ransom Fund. The efforts to raise a ransom fund to secure the release of Miss Stone, the kidnapped American missionary now in the hands of Bulgarian brigands, have already yielded some results, but not in the necessary proportion to raise the full sum in short order.

On the Road to Pekin. A Pekin dispatch announces that word has been received from Sian Fu that the Chinese court has actually started on its way from there for the capital, the first objective point being indicated in a general way the route the caravan will take in approaching Pekin.

Mr. Bryan may still be loyal to free silver, but he is gradually ceasing to lean on it as an editorial topic.
