Motor 'Bus Lines.

From the Springfield Republican.
The development in England of motor car routes to supplement the railroads and trolley lines, of which mention was lately made, is progressing so rapidly this summer that the London Daily News makes bold to say that "a new era in the connection of rural districts with the centers of population has begun." These motor "buses" carry both passengers and baggage, run twenty-five miles an hour, and demand so little initial outlay that they reach towns outside of, the profitable trolley routes. A

American Cider.

From the New York Sun.
More cider is produced in the United States in a single year than in all the rest of the world in five years. But although American cider takes everywhere a high rank as a wholesome and pleasant beverage, it is nowhere accepted as a national

A Way to Clean Paper Money.

From the Philadelphia Record.
One of the tellers of a prominent savings bank was discussing some peculiarities of his business. "We get money over the counter in every imaginable condition. Most of the time notes are handed to us in a dirty, crumpled state that makes difficult handling but there is one depositor who always brings bills in an immaculate condition. This is an old German woman. The bank notes she hands in are as crisp as if they had just left the treasury. It used to puzzle me to account for the crisp-

The Handwriting of Plus X.

From the Westminster Gazette.
A graphologist has given his view of the character of Plus X, as indicated by his handwriting. "The large, round letters, ness of the old notes she brought along—notes that by appearance had been in use long enough to make them as limp as rags. So one day I remarked about it, and found to my surprise that the old lady carefully ironed all her bank notes. I thought her old-fashioned 'foolish' at first, but later it occurred to me that it would be a good thing if people everywhere ironed their bank notes. It would kill any germs."

Before and After Taking.

From Life.
Doctor Quackley—"Ah, um, you say the medicine I prescribed hasn't stopped the chills! Did you shake well before taking?"
Dummager—"Yes, and afterward, too."
Society.
From Park.
He: "Can't we just quietly separate without getting a formal divorce?"
She: "But I'm already engaged to another."
