Kid Gloves at 69c. Remaining stock of 59c Kid Gloves reduced to, per pair, 39c.
Last season Kid Gloves were sold here at 59c a pair. Aiming to give best of service the least price for 1904-05 Palais Royal Gloves will be 69c per pair. The effort has been made to offer as good as usual $1 Kid Gloves and ask only 69c a pair. A miracle has not been wrought—but both the maker and the Palais Royal are to be content with an infinitesimally small profit on each pair, relying upon the vast numbers of pairs sold.

These "as good as usual $1 Kid Gloves," of the 1904-05 season, are of Glace Kid, in all the correct autumn shades, finished with two clasps. While recommended as the best possible low-priced gloves, it must not be forgotten that the Palais Royal's $1 Pique Sewed Gloves are superior—and that "the best are the cheapest." We guarantee these Gloves at $1 a pair, and would rather you pinned your faith to them.

New Autumn-Winter Styles. Saturday Sale of Sunday Needs.
The picture is of the new coat of waterproofed material, in three-quarter and full lengths. The back is a feature—pleated and with half belt. They are man-tailored and satin lined. The Palais Royal quotes price surprises—$7.98 for $10 values and $9.98 for $15 values. For sale with Umbrellas, at 11th street door.

Best Possible $5 Garments. Coats. Waists. Skirts.
The coats are in the new autumn style of black and tan covert cloth and cheviot, satin or taffeta silk lined. The waists are of reliable silk in the newly fashionable plaid effects. The skirts are made of all-wool cloths, sponged before making up and guaranteed to retain their shape. The Palais Royal aim has been to give best possible garments at $5 and not deal in the inferior imitations that can be profitably sold at a less price.

New Waists at $1.98. Choice of bright colors, cream, white and black, in mohair, albatross and flannel waists, in attractively new styles. $1.98—but they look worth much more. So do the new White Waists of heavy Irish linen, for autumn wear, made with pleated fronts.

The 1904-05 Ready-to-Wear Hats. Only $2.75, $4 and $4.50.
They don't look cheap looking and they are not vulgar. Their best recommendation—very unlike the usual low-priced hats. Ladies of refinement and culture will enjoy the trying on of such hats. The variety will prove surprisingly large and includes all the new phases of hats from smallest toque to largest "picture" effects. Ready tomorrow morning.

The new light and heavy-weight stock collars, some worth 50c, are only 25c.

5c Handkerchiefs. 12c
500 dozen Handkerchiefs, with hand embroidery initials, just from Ireland. The wonder is how they can be profitably sold at 10c—how about 5c? The Handkerchiefs offered at 12c are from Switzerland, with lace and embroidery borders, making them splendid values at 19c and 25c.

Pears' Glycerine Soap, 8c Cake. Soap Boxes Free Again.

UP-TO-DATE STORIES

Pete Yetter, the Oldest Active Cop in This Country. INCUBATOR GRADUATES

HOW ST. LOUIS POLICE CATCH AUTO SCORCHERS. An Heraldic Coat of Arms Worked Out in Flowers in Pleasure Park.

Still active and wiry despite his seventy-nine years, Peter F. Yetter, familiarly known as "Old Pete," of Trenton avenue and Dauphin streets, Philadelphia, Pa., is acknowledged to be the oldest policeman in active duty in the United States.

This "daddy of cops" is a familiar figure in the northeast section of the Quaker city, his beat being the seat of the business section of Kensington. Everybody is acquainted with him and the fathers of sons whom he good naturedly scatters when they play some mischievous pranks, declare that he looks scarcely a day older than he did, when he chased them a quarter of a century ago.

Policeman Yetter was born on June 15, 1827, in Philadelphia. The laws then relating to age limit of the appointees to the police force were not as strict as they are at present. Now, a man, except he be an old soldier, cannot get on the force if he be over forty years old.

When "Old Pete" became a policeman on September 5, 1874, times in the Quaker city were far more strenuous than they are now. There were several hot-headed gangs of young men who rejoiced in such appellations as the "Snapper Gang," the "Fish-towners," the "Pulverizers," etc. But it was no joke for the policeman, for in those days there were no patrol wagons and the police were compelled to walk their prisoners to the lock-up in momentary danger of being set upon by a prisoner's friends.

Yetter's beat was located in the tough section of the city where the streets were the headquarters of the service nowadays. They don't know whereof they speak. All the older men will tell you of the hard times we often had in landing our prisoners. Many a time we had to fairly carry a "drunk" on our backs or borrow a wheelbarrow. And when people were injured, when the hospital ambulance wasn't available, we had to carry them to the hospital on hand stretchers. Many a battle, too, we had with the friends of prisoners trying to take them away from us. Those days were indeed strenuous times for policemen. I feel just as good now as I did a dozen years ago, and as capable of performing active duty. I like the work, although my people have tried to get me to give it up. I could still give many a younger man a tussle.

Extraordinary Baby Show. Without doubt, the most extraordinary and unusual baby show on record the world over was that recently held in New York, being a congress of infant incubator graduates, the novel affair proving conclusively to the average mother that science in this age is accomplishing marvelous results in saving babies.

The team has already established a good record for itself, not yet having suffered a feat at the hands of any of the many strong-coupled teams which it has encountered this season. The driver, Birkenmeyer, mother of the ten ball players, keeps the score of every game played.

Catching Scorchers. St. Louis is the first city in the United States to inaugurate the use of the modern automobile in the apprehension of automobile scorchers, having recently invested in an up-to-date car, costing $1,500, to be manipulated by the "motor cops" of the police department.

A section of the top floor of a new four-story brick mill building at Charleston, W. Va., collapsed yesterday under the weight of a large quantity of wheat, killing Thomas H. Harris, aged forty years, shipping clerk of the milling company.
