

MAKERS OF THE NATION

DR. BRISTOL'S ESTIMATE OF THE BOYS IN BLUE.

Memorial Services Held Under Auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic.

It has long been the custom of the Grand Army of the Republic to hold sacred memorial services on the Sunday preceding Decoration day in honor of the men in blue who gave up their lives in defense of the flag and the Union in the sixties. Following this impressive practice, the Department of the Potomac, in accordance with the order of Commander P. Tasker, assembled last night at the historic Metropolitan M. E. Church, 4 1/2 and C streets northwest, to hold the annual memorial service. There was a full attendance of veterans and kindred organizations, including the Woman's Relief Corps, which filled the edifice and listened to the eloquent eulogy of the old soldiers by Dr. Frank M. Bristol, pastor of the church. Commander A. F. Tasker presided, and Chaplain Henry S. Stevens, Senior Vice Commander P. P. Entrikin and Junior Vice Commander Thomas H. Martin assisted in the services. The church was decorated with blossoms and American flags. The central section of the main auditorium, being flanked on each side by the ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps, congregational singing and responses made up the exercises.

Day of Holy Memories.

In the course of his oration Dr. Bristol said: "This is a day of great and holy memories. While here we meet among the monuments of such illustrious soldier dead as Grant and Logan and McKinley, these walls seem to recede, this ceiling to be lifted up, and through the shades of the night there breaks the golden glory of a vision of other days. You do not see these flowers, these flags, these people; you do not hear my voice, the organ's thunder or the choir's chant. Other scenes greet your vision, other voices salute your ears. You see again the quiet village of your boyhood days, the green fields and the golden brooks, the happy valleys bathed in light, the hill slope and garden and wood of well-known paths and old-fashioned trees and flowers that you saw in the days of your plows, the hay stacks, the old farm—they seem to call it by your father's name. There comes before your vision the little schoolhouse up the village street, or on the prairie, or at the mountain's foot. And faces, too, shine in this sweet and golden glow of memory—old, familiar faces which you see only in vision today, the faces of the boys and girls and neighbors and of the home of other days.

Cloud Hides the Sun.

"But you see a cloud creep along the sky and hang on the mountain; it hides the sun and it holds the thunders; it throws its dark shadow on village and town, on the hills and streams, the vales and prairies, and it lets forth the terrible, swift lightning. And the boys and girls stare, mothers sigh and sweethearts weep. War, black-visaged war, spreads forth her dreadful wings and hovers with its fearful, ominous shadow over the land. And a new music startles the air. It's the screech of the life and the roll of the drum, the beating of the flags and the hear the cheers, and march behind the band and watch the girls wave their hands and their kisses at the boys who are going to the war. It seems but yesterday you went. And all the country came into town and all the town went down to the train to see you off. Then, neighbor said to you, 'Look after Tom,' or 'Keep an eye on Will,' and everybody said, 'Good-by, take care of yourself.' And you shouted good-by, mother, good-by, father, good-by, boys, good-by, girls; good-by, everybody, and were off in a big burrah—off for the war.

Found Dead in Bed.

Mrs. Annie Gibbs Dance, colored, fifty years old, was found dead in bed this morning in her room at 145 N street northwest. Mrs. Dance came here from Norfolk about five months ago. Coroner Nevitt found that her death was due to heart disease and gave a certificate accordingly.

Capt. Judson on the Battle of Mukden.

Capt. W. V. Judson, Corps of Engineers, who was one of the American observers with the Russian army in Manchuria, delivered a lecture at the Army War College building, on Jackson place, this afternoon on the "Battle of Mukden." The attendees were confined to the officers and the lecture was regarded as confidential.

Vanity Masquerading.

A young woman decided that she must do something toward the spiritual and worldly welfare of her fellow beings. So she left home and joined an order of devotees, and she now engaged in the pressing her acquaintances, herself and a section of "the slums" with her heroic self-sacrifice and her lofty ideals. She left behind her at home: Item—An old father who has only such care and attention as servants can give him. Item—A household of servants who, through lack of guidance and direction, are learning to be dishonest, shiftless, incompetent, worthless.

Troubles Near an End.

Belief Expressed That Workmen and Employers Will Agree.

The statement was made this afternoon by an officer of the Journeymen Painters' Union to a Star reporter that the differences existing between the journeymen painters and the paperhangers on one side and their employers on the other will reach a settlement this evening.

Hats and Headaches.

On a windy day the leverage on the roots of the hair when the large and flapping headgear is endeavoring to sail away is one of the causes of the headache of which most women complain after a buffeting by the elements.

COLLEGE YEAR CLOSES

SIXTEEN YOUNG LADIES TO GRADUATE FROM TRINITY.

Commencement Exercises Inaugurated Yesterday With Baccalaureate Sermon and High Mass.

The commencement exercises of Trinity College, near the Catholic University of America, were begun yesterday morning at that institution with a solemn high pontifical mass, Monsignor Diomedea Paleonzo, the apostolic delegate, being the celebrant. The baccalaureate sermon was delivered by Rev. John T. Creagh, D.D., of the Catholic University, and each day throughout the week will be notable for special exercises, culminating Friday in the conferring of degrees by Cardinal Gibbons and an address by Charles J. Bonaparte of Baltimore.

Trinity College is one of the latest of the new Catholic institutions for the higher education of women, and is in its fifth year, having been opened by the Sisters of Notre Dame of Namur in 1900. The college course is of four years, and during the week there will pass from the college sixteen young women who have had the benefit of the college curriculum and graduated with high honors.

Baccalaureate Discourse.

The music for the mass was rendered by the students of the college. In consonance with the late "motu proprio" bull of Pope Pius X, the Gregorian chant was used, Dumont's Sixth Tone Mass (Gregorian harmonized) being the program. Rev. John T. Creagh, a member of the faculty of the Catholic University of America, delivered the baccalaureate sermon in connection with the mass, taking for his theme, "Wisdom in Education." He spoke, in part, as follows:

Each day during the week at Trinity will be crowded with events of moment to the participants and the friends. At 5 o'clock this afternoon the dramatic society will appear in Tennyson's "The Princess." Tomorrow afternoon at the same hour there will be the concert by the Cecilia Society. The class day exercises will be held Wednesday at 4 p.m. Thursday morning at 10 o'clock and at 11 o'clock. At 5 o'clock the graduation of the college takes place, and in the afternoon at 2 o'clock there will be a meeting of the advisory board.

From the London Mail. Another attempt is to be made to sell Craig-Y-Nos, the beautiful Welsh palace belonging to Mme. Patti (Baroness Cederstrom), the world-famous singer. The announcement is made that it is to be sold at a price regardless of "cost or associations."

The American Woman.

The American woman is a somewhat glittering creature. Usually she is what the vernacular—"perfectly straight" as well as invariably she is very alert, very articulate, very self-confident. Her commercial instinct is strong, and in all her dealings she has a remarkable eye to the main chance. These may be qualities of eminent value in the evolution of the social system of a young country. In fact, she is she rather loudly claims to be, the very blossom and crown of things feminine. But here, in the old world, she is not so sure of her own conditions very different, but women are made of slower, heavier, yet more passionate and dangerously inflammable stuff. Light without heat appears to be common enough in her case. In ours it is practically unknown. And so it is not possible for us to go the lengths she does in certain directions—like dress and flirtation as examples—without definite and highly undesirable results. It follows that the existing light without heat appears to be common enough in her case. In ours it is practically unknown. And so it is not possible for us to go the lengths she does in certain directions—like dress and flirtation as examples—without definite and highly undesirable results.

STREWING OF PLOWERS

DECORATION OF THE GRAVES OF IRISH PATRIOTS.

Services Held Yesterday Under Auspices of Emerald Club and Irish-American Union.

The graves of thirty patriotic Irishmen who sleep beneath the green sward and foliage of picturesque Mount Olivet cemetery, were decorated yesterday afternoon by the members of the Emerald Club and the Irish-American Union, with appropriate and impressive ceremonies. At 3:30 o'clock the procession formed at the gate of the cemetery and marched to the several graves of the Irish patriots. On each was placed a basket of flowers containing a small United States and Irish flag. The procession wound up at the grave of Dr. Thomas Devlin Reilly, where two addresses were made, one by P. T. Moran, district superintendent Ancient Order of Hibernians, and the other by P. J. Hattigan, editor of the National Hibernian. In speaking of Dr. Reilly, who was a leader in the insurrection of 1848, Mr. Moran said:

Reverence for the Dead.

"No people are more noted for their attention to this doctrine of revering the dead than the Irish, and especially worthy of attention is the way they have kept the grave of this earnest patriot green. In all the struggles for independence the motives of Dr. Reilly were active and sincere. He was an untarnished patriot. Time and time again the British tried to win him, but everything they used proved unsuccessful. Bribes of money and offers of office, offered like failures. His name is, like that of George Washington, an inspiration to all liberty-loving people. Rev. Father Boyle was a man of the old school, and his name also should be an inspiration.

Competition has greatly reduced the cost of Sewing Machines in the last few years. $50.00 was, at one time, considered a fair price for a good Sewing Machine. Today the same grade of machine can be bought for just one-half. Still the old prices hold good in many places, because you can pay for it on the installment plan—a little down and so much a week or month until it is paid for. To pay twice as much as an article is worth is false economy. Why not put the dollar or two aside until you have the required amount and pay cash? It saves you just about 50 per cent. Our Sewing Machines at $18.00 and $25.00 are the equal of the $50.00 and $60.00 machines that you pay for on the installment plan. They are thoroughly up to date—steel bearings, hardwood cases (highly polished and prettily ornamented), fully running, simple adjustments and fully guaranteed. Of course, we have them as high as $40.00. Our salesmen will be pleased to show you the different models and demonstrate their respective merits. Second floor, G st.
