HENRY NOLL, 775 Broadway, New York.

Established 23 Years

evening to verify his impressions of New-York, which he never had seen, and to the visitor's astonishment translated the shrieks of a cat in the courtyard. Upon Hooper's suggestion he again sought to find Maggie Hutchinson, and called upon an Atlantic liner outward bound from New-York. The next evening he was mentally transported to New-York again. He awoke with an exclamation about the villainy of a dramatic agent named Steindal.

Karl explained that Constantine and Steindal in New-York decided to make Maggie Hutchinson an offer to go on a concert tour, Constantine evidently having an ulterior motive. So intent was Karl in listening to the plot that he aroused in the Armenian's mind a vivid remembrance of the time he was rescued from the sea, and Constantine fell over the table, shrieking of sharks.

Karl received a telegram from his mother asking him to meet the Hutchinsons upon their arrival in London. After astonishing the hotel clerk with telegraphic manifestations, Karl met the voyagers. Maggie related a conversation between Steindal and Constantine which she telegraphically overheard coincidentally with Karl's experience.

Maggie went into a telegraphic condition and overheard Constantine planning to go to London for the purpose of murdering Karl. Grier had learned the same thing, and so he, his father and the author went to Liverpool to meet the steamer Constantine was on. While the vessel was still in the stream Karl exclaimed that the Armenian had jumped overboard, and that he had impelled him to do it. Constantine had done so.

Maggie sent Karl a telegram that she was leaving England and bade him farewell.

Constantine left Maggie all his property. The Hutchinsons settled in Italy.

Five years later the author was summoned to London by the elder Grier, who said that Karl was causing trouble over his "arranged" betrothal to the Hon. Nora Cazenove.

REVENGE

By Alexander Ricketts

I THOUGHT it an attractive proposition I was explaining, but Jones, all the time I was setting it forth, was apparently much more intent on flirting with a fly.

With that astonishing persistency of purpose which all bald-headed observers have recorded as the most notable characteristic of the species, the fly insisted upon alighting upon his desk, though every time it did so Jones menaced it with his ruler until it buzzed away. He could easily have killed it outright innumerable times, but he seemed content simply to keep it on the wing.

"See here, Jones!" I demanded, exasperated at last by his inattention beyond the point of further endurance, "why don't you kill that dratted bug and listen to what I'm telling you?"

"Don't want to," he replied, intent upon poking it up again. "What's it done to you, anyhow, to make you so bloodthirsty?"

"Well, let it alone, then, confound it!" I exclaimed sharply.

"Nixy!" he returned, earnestly watching for it to light again. "But go on with your scheme. I'm listening all right. Get up there, you rascal!" This last was addressed to the fly, which had lit on his ruler and was complacently rubbing its front hands or feet or feelers, or whatever they are, together.

"Well, I'm going over to Brown's office," I announced angrily, rising to my feet. "He's got sense enough to prefer making a bunch of money to playing tag with silly insects in business hours, anyway."

"Playing? Great Scott, I'm not playing with it! I'm teaching this pestilent fly," retorted Jones, stirring it up again, "a much needed lesson in deportment. I supposed you could see that for yourself."

"Eh?" I ejaculated blankly.

"Yes, sirc, that's what!" explained Jones, as he solemnly reached for the fly once more. "I was out pretty late last night to a card party, and when I tried to catch a cat-nap here a little while ago this fly impolitely persisted in trying to buzz into my ear, in spite of all I could do to drive it away, and keeping me awake. So I'm keeping it on the move just to show it how uncomfortable it is to have its rest interrupted every time it gets settled."

IN SOUTH JERSEY

HE was bearded and spectacled, yet he presented a half-fare ticket with the unblushing statement that, though he might not be a boy at the moment, he certainly had been when first he boarded the train.

"I don't know but what you were," was the comment of the humorist, who wore the conductional blue and gold. "I myself have been on this same train, man and boy, for something like thirty years."

How I Got My Hearing Back

By GEORGE H. WILSON

I WAS once a deaf man! I was so deaf that I couldn't hear a watch tick when held close against my ear. The Deafness came on by degrees, and first I hardly noticed it.

As it grew I noticed my friends falling away from me. Then my business chances began fading out. It was too much trouble to talk to a Deaf man.

Now, I want you to know that I was ambitious and had made large plans for my own future. I knew I had the Brains to succeed, if I could only get over that terrible curse of Deafness. It seemed to shut me out from all my Opportunities.

My Deafness set me worrying and thinking hard for a means of Cure.

For nearly two years I haunted the offices of Ear-Doctors. Then I tried about every quack remedy, and my money melted as fast as my chances for making more vanished. The end of it came at last, and I had to work out my own cure.

That was my salvation! First, I read nearly every book printed about the ear. Then I made a model of the hearing part of the Ear. Then I tried all kinds of experiments on this artificial Ear.

Whenever I worked out any device that looked promising on this artificial Ear, I tried it on my own living Ear. Night after night I worked on my experiments, with feverish hope and anxiety, for the result meant everything to me in this world. I am sure I worked harder, thought deeper and experimented further than any Ear Specialist had ever done before.

At last I hit upon the right idea, and I worked on this steadily for months, to apply it.

I found out how to increase Weak sounds, just as spectacles or eye glasses increase the size of small letters, in a book.

From that time on my progress was rapid, till I had a clumsy pair of Listening Machines.

Finally I worked the principle down so that it was contained in two little telephones.

These went entirely within the ears, where no one could see them, nor suspect me of wearing them. The only thing now left to do was to make them so soft and comfortable in the Ear holes, that one did not feel their presence.

I could hear as distinctly, with them in my ears, as I ever did before my deafness came on me. I could hear a watch tick three feet away, when they were in my ears, though I couldn't hear a sound from that watch when the "Listeners" were removed.

But a greater wonder took place a little later on. Removing the tiny telephones from my ears one day, to clean them, I held my watch up to my right ear. I was amazed to hear it tick clearly and distinctly without artificial aid!

I tried this again with a yard measure from week to week, with the "Listeners" removed.

I was delighted to find that each week I could hear the watch tick a few inches farther away.

My little Listening Machines had made the sounds so loud for my Hearing Nerves that they had no longer any straining to catch weak sounds.

"My Deafness set me worrying and thinking hard for a means of Cure."

This easy hearing rested these Ear Nerves so much that they soon got back all their old strength and keenness. That's what a famous doctor said.

Well, after I got back my hearing you'd be surprised how my friends came around, and talked to me. Why, I never knew I had so many friends, and I don't think I ever knew their value till I lost my hearing.

A thousand people in this city of Louisville, Ky., know the story of my struggles against deafness, and of my ultimate success,—greater than I had ever hoped for.

Since then thousands of deaf people, in this country alone, have recovered their hearing in the same way, and I wish you could read the letters they wrote me. I have published a book containing 400 of these letters, which I will gladly send you on request.

I think I understand deaf people better now than any other man in America, and when advice of mine can help them they are welcome to it. I can tell them how to recover their hearing, and I will tell any of them who writes me.

I can always be reached, by letter, care of The Wilson E. D. Co., 35 Todd Building, Louisville, Ky., and I'll send copies of the letters if you'll mail me just the postage, which is two cents.
