MOB'S WORK APPROVED

ANOTHER STORY OF CONDITIONS AT SPRINGFIELD.

CANDIDATES BUDDING OUT IN THE SPRINGTIME.

Special Correspondence of The Star. BALTIMORE, Md., April 14, 1906.

Coincidental with the budding of the trees this week came the "setting out" of booms and boomlets in the political nurseries. Never before in Baltimore has the candidate been so numerous. The "running for office" fever is not at all abating. The majority candidates galore, while the congressional bee is doing a land office business in at least the three districts which lie within or partly within Baltimore. In the democratic party this is especially noticeable.

There are today at least a dozen democrats hot foot after the mayoralty nomination, and they are all entering the lists and out of office. And an amusing feature of the situation is that a number of these candidates who have not a ghost of a show to win the nomination are taking themselves seriously and really believe that they are on the line of the main chance. In the republican camp, of course, it is understood that the race will be between Mr. Wacker and Representative Wacker, and consequently no other booms have cropped out.

In the third congressional district the situation is clouded by the fact that the intentions of the incumbent, Representative Wacker, are not known. It is possible that he will be re-elected, but it is also possible that he will be defeated. In the fourth district Representative John Gill will receive a renomination at the hands of the district voters. It is believed that he will be re-elected, but it is also possible that he will be defeated.

WILL MEET THURSDAY.

Conferees on the Statehood Bill Will Seek Agreement.

Conferees on the statehood bill will probably hold a meeting next Thursday. An effort has been made to get the conferees together for some days, but unavoidable engagements have prevented this plan from being carried out. It was expected that a meeting would be had tomorrow, but today it was learned that one member of the conferees could not be on hand for a meeting which was to be held today. It is hoped substantial progress may be made in bringing the two houses together.
