PRICE OF STEEL RAILS

ANOTHER TARIFF DISCUSSION IN THE HOUSE.

Mr. Williams Continues to Insist Upon His Demand That a Quorum Be Present.

During consideration of the naval appropriation bill late yesterday afternoon a lively discussion occurred between Mr. Bates of Pennsylvania, Mr. Williams of Mississippi, Mr. Clark of Missouri and Mr. Payne of New York over certain statements made by Mr. Bates in relation to the price of steel rails.

The discussion took on a wide tariff range, a forerunner of still further tariff discussion as the session nears its close.

The speakers, except Mr. Foss, Mr. Meyer of Louisiana and Mr. Knowland of California, debated a feature of the bill, contending themselves, under the latitude furnished by "general debate," with discussing subjects in which they have a peculiar and personal interest.

It is expected that general debate will run today, the bill being taken up by sections tomorrow.

At the naval program carried in the bill Mr. Foss believed that it would meet with the judgment of the members of the House. He said that the highest naval opinion of the world, growing out of the recent naval conflict between Japan and Russia, was that the battleship was the real fighting ship. He referred to the Dreadnaught of the British navy and said: "We have provided in this bill for a great battleship more powerful than any afloat."

"How many American harbors could the Dreadnaught enter?" asked Mr. Underwood of Alabama.

"It could easily enter New York," replied Mr. Foss, "and possibly some other harbors. It has 28 feet draft and I think it would protect the coast by meeting the enemy at sea."

"Well," said Mr. Underwood, "it couldn't protect or enter any of the harbors in the southern or gulf states. It must necessarily have a large base of supplies."

"It would not be necessary for such a ship to enter any harbor," replied Mr. Foss. "It would protect the coast by meeting the enemy at sea."

At this point Mr. Williams, the minority leader, raised the point of "no quorum." The chair held the point of "no quorum" in order and there was a scurrying of pages to committee rooms and lunch rooms to bring in the absentees and a quorum was obtained.

"The building of a great battleship," said Mr. Foss in conclusion, "means notice to all the world that we propose to look after our interests not only at home, but wherever our interests may be—here or on another continent."

Again Mr. Williams suggested the absence of a quorum, and the business of the House stopped until the absentees were brought in.

Debate on the naval bill had proceeded listlessly for several hours, when suddenly an exceedingly interesting colloquy occurred during the address of Mr. Bates (Pa.). He had been talking about the "dumping" process which the democrats were using as an excuse for what he called the "tariff" on the foreign market as against the home market. Then passing to the consideration of steel rails, he said the price in England and Great Britain was $31.50; the export price in Great Britain was $25; in Germany the home price was $20, the export price $24; in France the home price was $21, the export price $25.50; in the United States the home price was $28, the export price $28.50.

He gave as a reason for selling steel rails in Canada and Mexico cheaper than in the United States that they were sold under the "sharpest competition."

Mr. Williams (Miss.), who had been listening to the tariff speech of Mr. Bates, suddenly asked for the authority that the English sell abroad cheaper than at home.

Mr. Bates replied that the information came from Mr. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation.

"An interested witness," replied Mr. Williams, "I challenge the gentleman to give me another witness, and if he can't do it now to put it in the Record later."

Then the name of Tom Johnson of Ohio was injected in the debate. Mr. Clark asked if the second largest manufacturer of steel rails in the country, when sitting on the floor of the House as a member, had not said that steel rails could be made at $12 a ton. "If you take off the tariff, and make plenty of profit to sell them at $10?"

Mr. Bates said he thought Mr. Johnson was one of the extravagant statements the gentleman from Ohio loved to indulge in.

Mr. Payne (N. Y.) said Mr. Johnson voted for the Wilson tariff bill, and voted for it notwithstanding the fact that there was a large protective duty on rails at that time.

Mr. Clark wanted to know who Mr. Payne said voted for the Wilson bill.

"This man Johnson," replied Mr. Payne, "and begged me on the floor of this House to vote against it, and I wish to heaven I had. I caught and applause on the republican side."

Anacostia and Vicinity.
A representative of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad was in Anacostia yesterday viewing the situation with reference to the extensive improvements contemplated by the company to its terminal freight facilities here. It was learned the work will not be long delayed and that the company may expend $15,000 in additional trackage and buildings.

Private E. H. Carriek of the Anacostia section of the fire department has gone to Boston, Mass., to spend his annual leave. Private Curry Thrift of the company, who visited Westmoreland county, Va., on his vacation, has returned to duty.

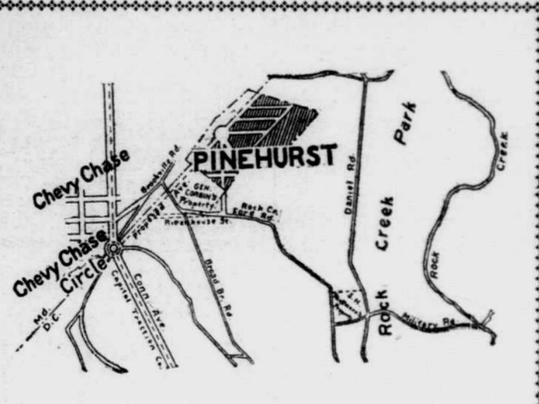

The Methodists of Anacostia have subscribed the sum of $40 to be used toward aiding the victims of the San Francisco disaster. The amount was collected through the Anacostia Methodist Episcopal Church. A number of Anacostians went to Grange Hall, at Oxon Hill, Prince George county, Md., Wednesday evening, to attend an entertainment held in the hall for the benefit of the Oxon Hill public school. The affair opened with a dramatic performance, followed by a dance. Miss Marlow, the principal of the school, was in charge.

The Men's Club of the Anacostia Methodist Episcopal Church has planned an athletic meeting, to be conducted in Anacostia under its direction. Memorial day, the first event of the kind to be held in the town. The program will consist of running and jumping contests, vaulting, hammer-throwing and shot-putting, to be concluded with a base ball contest between married

Pinehurst

Come out to Pinehurst tomorrow and select a lot for a home in the choicest part of the Chevy Chase section.

Our representatives will meet you at Chevy Chase Circle between 1 and 5 P. M. to show you the property.

Large lots 3c. to 15c. foot.

SATURDAY AFTERNOON will afford an excellent opportunity to visit Pinehurst—and see the wonderful development and improvement which has been going forward the past winter. 33d St. in Pinehurst is now being macadamized, and many other improvements are being pushed rapidly. Several nice residences are in course of construction and others are planned for this season. The entire neighborhood is improving and progressing along the best possible lines. Gen. Corbin's new $30,000 residence will adjoin this property—and there is every evidence of a high-class, select and refined residence section.

Pinehurst is the most desirable portion of the picturesque Chevy Chase and Rock Creek Park section—with a commanding view of the entire District. It is covered with beautiful forest trees—and every lot in the subdivision offers a splendid natural building site.

Large lots at 3c. to 15c. foot on very liberal easy terms. Money loaned for building purposes.
