Bona Fide Circulation. Nearly everybody in Washington reads The Sunday Star. Last Sunday's circulation was by far the largest and best in the city, and the only sworn circulation in the District of Columbia.

The circulation of The Sunday Star on January 20, 1907, was 33,809. I solemnly swear that the above statement represents the number of copies of THE SUNDAY STAR circulated on January 20, 1907—that is, the number of copies actually sold, delivered, furnished or mailed, for valuable consideration, to bona fide purchasers or subscribers, and that none of the copies so counted are first or second class matter returned to the publisher in the case of several hundred sent to suburban agents, from whom a few returns of unsold papers have not yet been received.

Circulation of "The Evening Star." The sworn statement below shows that the circulation of The Star is what it is claimed to be. That its circulation is much greater than that of any other paper published in Washington, and that it is read more thoroughly than any other paper published in Washington, whether morning or evening. Fifteen thousand of The Star's regular subscribers take no other Washington paper whatever, depending upon The Star alone for news and advertising.

Of course, the constitution defines the separate duties of the legislative, executive and judicial departments of government, but in the law deputed to the court the naming of the school board its duties were not necessarily defined in detail regarding the delay with final settlement of the case as being merely the result of many others who have faced trial—a play for more time.

Said He Loved Her. Last night Miss Morris left her home in company with a male escort about 8 o'clock. Three hours later, when she returned, Glacken was waiting in front of the house. He did not accept her until the young man had left, but as soon as Miss Morris was alone he approached and upbraided her for her alleged neglect of him.

NO DECISION REACHED. ANOTHER CONTRACTOR OF CANAL CONTRACT TO BE HELD. Determination to Ask For Entirely New Bids Was Modified Last Night. It was stated today that the War Department was not in a position as yet to make any formal announcement of the plan for the disposition of the canal contract. Although it had been expected that such a statement would be forthcoming this morning, over night it was decided that another conference will be necessary, and this will take place at the White House this afternoon between the President, the contractor, and the War Department.

Rejection of All Bids. The question of rejecting all bids was discussed at the cabinet meeting yesterday, and, as stated in yesterday's Star, the decision had been practically agreed upon before the conference last night. Secretary Taft had made known to Mr. Oliver the decision that had been reached. If the arrangement is satisfactory to Mr. Oliver he probably will be given several days in which to make a final offer.

LEADED TO SAVE LIFE. Mill Workers Have Narrow Escape From Cremation. SOME MAY HAVE PERISHED. How Hampshire Cotton Factory Destroyed by Flames. EMPLOYEES PANIC STRICKEN. Building Not Equipped With Fire Escapes—Firemen's Search for Missing Interrupted by Heat.

DOVER, N. H., January 25.—Mill No. 1 of the extensive plant of the Cocheo Manufacturing Company, manufacturers of cotton goods, in this city, was burned today, causing a financial damage estimated at between $500,000 and $600,000, and possible loss of life. The fire broke out after the 500 operatives had begun work, and spread very rapidly. Several of the workmen and women jumped from windows, sustaining injuries. Others were taken from the windows in the upper stories. Persons thus rescued reported that some had been overcome by smoke in the burning building, and the flames immediately began to search, which was without result, until the heat of the flames drove them outside the walls. Meanwhile, officials of the mill were busy trying to locate all employees.

Had No Fire Escapes. The fire started from a hot box in the spool room, and before the frightened employees could make any effort to extinguish it the flames spread to the spinning room and swept through the big mill. There were no fire escapes in the place and the firemen, who were called to the scene, were unable to get out through the doors or windows. Those on the lower floor generally managed to get out through the doors or windows, but those on the fourth and fifth floors were not so fortunate. Employees on the fifth floor rushed to the fourth floor, where they were met by smoke and flames cut off their exit down the stairs, many leaped from the windows to the frozen ground. Some of the cooler heads remembered the fire ropes in the room placed there for emergency and attaching these to the window frames and the men were able to pull themselves up to the roof.

RESCUED BY FIREMEN. While the firemen were busy in getting their forces into an advantageous position for fighting the flames and helping out the people on the lower stories, four men crouched at an open window on the upper floor waiting for a chance to escape. Before they were discovered, an extension ladder was raised, but the imprisoned men, nearly unconscious from the smoke and heat, dared to venture upon it until firemen went to their assistance. James Connor, one of these men, stated that he had stumbled over what he believed to be unconscious persons. The mill is considered one of the best of the extensive plants of the Cocheo Manufacturing Company, which has many structures on both sides of the Cocheo river. The number one mill fronts on Washington street, with the river in the rear. A bridge connects it with the print works of the company across the river.

NAVY OFFICERS' RIGHTS. The Senate Considers a Resolution of Inquiry. Senator Hale today called up his resolution directing the Secretary of the Navy to investigate whether impertinencies of naval officers and friends in favor of the naval personnel bill are in violation of executive orders and regulations prohibiting such activity. The resolution was opposed by Senator Dick, who took the position that the general movement in favor of the personnel bill was not in conflict with the President's order, and Mr. Hale replied that what is proposed to do is to have the Secretary of the Navy inquire whether there have been infractions of the regulations. The position was taken by Mr. Daniel that the resolution proposes to deny to naval officers the right of free speech. This argument he contended only to civil employees. He then questioned the right of a commander of men in the army or navy to make regulations which would sever communication of these men with the representatives of the people in the House or in the Senate. He was suggested by Mr. Daniel that there was no haste in passing the resolution, and that it should be referred to a committee for a report. The committee, who followed the Virginia senator, agreed. Mr. Heyburn questioned the legality of the President's executive order prohibiting employees of the palace and the navy from receiving measures affecting their positions. Mr. Tillman asked the date of the order, and Mr. Hale replied that it was issued in 1892. He stated that it had been permitted to go unchallenged for a long time, and that if it was not to be challenged, it should be discovered. Mr. Heyburn said he had charged only the executive order, and was mistaken in his power, and that everybody in like position is liable to mistake. After his visit to Von Buelow his majesty took his usual morning walk in the Thiergarten, and then returned to the Chancellors' Palace, in order to discuss the latest returns. The emperor came out of the palace smiling and seemingly in the best of humor, almost gaily acknowledging the salutations of the crowd waiting to see him. Emperor William will be forty-eight years old tomorrow, and some one remarked that the country had given him a fine birthday present "in checking the growth of red republican socialism."

RACER HAD CLOSE CALL. Fred Marriott Badly Shaken, But Not Seriously Hurt. Special Dispatch to The Star. ORMOND BEACH, Fla., January 25.—Fred Marriott, according to the physicians this morning, is getting along well, and will suffer no permanent injury from the thrilling accident that overtook him yesterday. At first he complained that he could not see out of one eye, but last night his sight was returning, and it is announced that no ribs were broken. He received a terrible shaking up as he turned over, however, and his head is black and blue from contact with the ground. He is now being treated in a little about the upset last night, and places the responsibility on the guilty that has caused Stanley and his driver to come down all this week. He lost consciousness following the loss of the steamer received in going over the depression. It is true the hood came off, but that was an accident that did not prove a fatal factor. Marriott was going at terrific speed, being determined to break his last year's world's record of 22:12 seconds for the mile. He had made two trials, the second being his best time so far this week, and as the tide had come in he was sure that he would break the record, or at least make a very close one. He had broken the record, but certainly would have come close to it. He has the fastest mile in the world's history, and with living after having been dumped out at a rate of speed faster than any express train travels.

KAISER IS PLEASED. SUSPENDED BY ALFONSO. Parliament Sessions Cut Short by Spanish King. MADRID, January 25.—King Alfonso today issued a decree suspending the sessions of parliament, as it had become evident that Senator Maura, the conservative leader, who formed a cabinet yesterday, with himself as premier, could not command a majority in the chambers. An early submission to the people of the issue between church and state, through a dissolution of parliament, and new elections, is the only means of clearing up the situation. The clerical and the reactionaries are jubilant, as the mere fact of the conservatives being in power will give them a very great advantage at the polls.

Thaddeus L. Vandervick Dead. PHILADELPHIA, Pa., January 25.—Thaddeus L. Vandervick, a prominent attorney of this city, died suddenly today from heart disease. Mr. Vandervick had a large corporation practice, and at one time was mentioned for a seat on the bench of the supreme court of Pennsylvania. He served in the Engineer Corps of the United States navy from 1862 until 1871, when he resigned to take up the practice of law. He was sixty-five years old. Ashore Of Cape May. CAPE MAY, N. The river and harbor appropriation bill was reported to the House today and will be taken up for consideration next week. There has been added to the item for the Buffalo breakwater $300,000 to equal damage caused by the recent storm on the lakes.
