how to talk to strangers, a faculty which a few possess naturally, but one which will soon fall into oblivion, unless women who aspire to increasing their husband's official halo will set about cultivating. Mrs. Straus smiles at every new comer who enters her drawing room at her Wednesday receptions, and follows that up with some pleasant remark which is bound to make even the most diffident feel sure of a welcome and to be glad they came. Mrs. Straus is fond of social life, is always well gowned and is such a good house-keeper that she selected a brand-new house for a Washington residence, and such a good comrade for her husband that she also chose one likely to be comfortable because built on high land during the summer months she may spend here with him.

Nemo Week
 EXTENDED TO SATURDAY MAY 18

The "Nemo Week" Sale inaugurated last Monday throughout the country from Maine to California proved a most remarkable success.

It was held in every store where Nemo Corsets are sold, and at the request of many retailers the Nemo sale will continue for another week, to give all those who could not take advantage of this event, another opportunity to find out what Nemo corsets really are.

The "Nemo Week" Sale demonstrated beyond a doubt the superiority of Nemo corsets. Every stout woman was enthusiastic in her praise of the Nemo Self-Reducing Corset. The hundreds of thousands of women who have worn these corsets cling to them, and refuse to wear any other, and the women who have not known the corset took the advice of their dealers and bought it.

The Nemo sale should also have many attractions for women whose figures are medium and slender, as there are many shapely models specially designed to meet the requirements of their individual needs.

Every woman owes it to herself to visit her dealer during the Nemo Week Sale.

Nemo Self-Reducing Corsets, for the tall and short stout women. $3.00 & $5.00
 Nemo Swan Shape, for medium and slender figures. $2.00 to $3.50
 Nemo Fashion, for medium and slender figures. $2.00 to $3.00
 Nemo Military Belt, for the Medium figure. $3.00

GREEN SALADS NOW.

Have Good Effect on Complexion and Blood.

Much is said and written about food for the workingwoman, but when one considers that food is to her what fuel is to a locomotive it will readily be seen that however she feels she must have it. Also is it of the most vital importance that she should have the best nourishment, and particularly in the spring, when the appetite lags and the "tired feeling" is ever present, must she tone herself with the right kind of meals.

I wish I could get any woman who is using her brain in any way to take to green vegetables and salads, all she can get of them, at this season. By salads I do not mean those of lobster and chicken, but crisp green ones—lettuce, endive, romaine and the like. Watercress is excellent, and good for the complexion, too, as it has a splendid effect upon the blood. All fresh greens have that, but watercress is a little fuller of the properties.

By all means eat these dishes with French dressing, a good olive oil and vinegar. The oil is nourishing and the vinegar appetizing. The addition of a little raw onion makes it even more appetizing.

Better finish your dinner with a salad just now than with a sweet.

A fresh vegetable diet for which the system is craving should include spinach, beet tops, string beans, peas and asparagus. The latter is only for the rich at present; for the timid does not quite take the place of it. Spinach is one of the most wholesome things that can be eaten, and it is impossible to have too much of it.

Fresh rhubarb I recommend highly just now, followed by the acid of the French way of cooking this makes it like a rich preserve and is not difficult. Instead of being stewed, the vegetable is put into a shallow earthen dish after peeling and cutting, and a large quantity of sugar is sprinkled over. No water is added.

This is put into a slow oven and should cook for two or three hours, not browning. At intervals it should be stirred gently and a little more sugar added. When taken from the oven there should be a small quantity of thick syrup. This is made by putting a small quantity of this into a dessert glass a great way.

There is no better breakfast for a working woman at this season than a baked apple, followed by some of them of cereal and cream. Instead of sweetening with sugar, a little pure golden syrup may be used.

Meat once a day now is enough, and for lunch or dinner fish should take its place. A woman who values her complexion is better off without fried fish, or fried anything, for the matter of that. Broiling, baking or boiling is better. Cold broiled fish with mayonnaise makes a delicious luncheon, and one that is in every way good for the system.

A social event of unusual importance was the presentation at the opera house on Thursday and Friday nights of a dramatization by Mrs. Oscar F. Carter of this city, of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch." The cast was made up of a number of talented amateurs from Alexandria, a younger set of society people. Everybody acquitted themselves most creditably, and a large sum was realized for the charity for which it was given. The cast was as follows: Mrs. Wiggs, Miss Mary Leadbeater; Jimmie, John J. Luckett; Asia, Miss May Lillian Dayley; Billy, Ernest Alfred Riley; Australia, Miss Louise Elizabeth Butts; Europa, Miss Goldie Christiana Everett; Robert Redding, Wilmer Joyce Walker; Lucy, Miss Mary Glenn Usher; Miss Hazy, Miss Julia Langhorne; Aunt Chloe, Miss Nellie Selden Usher; guardian angels, Misses Katherine Carroll Waller and Cleone Frances Riley.

A wedding of unusual interest, which took place in Richmond Wednesday last, in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Landstreet of 923 Park avenue, was that of Miss Martha Landstreet, great-granddaughter of President Andrew Johnson, to Mr. Robert J. Wingham, a prominent young bank official of Richmond. The bride was charming in white satin and old lace worn with a specially trained band and a chorus from William and Mary College of Williamsburg, Va., will render the musical part of the program.

Cotton Figures.

At a cotillon given recently for one of the dancing classes at a prominent Brooklyn school three of the prettiest figures were the confetti, the rose and the pom-pom.

For the first the girls received dainty fluffy parasols of various colors and the boys boxes of ribbon confetti. As the girls marched in the boys at a signal threw out their confetti streamers trying to corral a parasol and partner.

In the next came in holding a Japanese parasol from the outstretched rim of which depended a number of red ribbons. The girls and the chicks released by a reception for relatives and intimate friends. The crowd of the chicks released by a reception for relatives and intimate friends. They will live in Richmond when they return.

Richmond Society

Special Correspondence of The Star.

RICHMOND, Va., May 11, 1907.

Two social events of prime importance kept society folk belonging to the gay contingent busy on Friday last. One was the dance given in the ball room of the Jefferson Hotel, with lovely decorations and to the accompaniment of delightful music by the Richmond German band.

The other was a reception and ball at the Masonic Temple celebrating the 114th anniversary of the Richmond Light Infantry Blues, the crack military organization of the city. The decorations and refreshments were most elaborate, and the gowning of the women of fashion present was something gorgeous.

Those receiving were Gov. and Mrs. C. A. Swanson, Miss Mary Custis Lee, Col. and Mrs. Cuthbert, Major and Mrs. E. W. Bowles, Capt. and Mrs. R. P. Burwell, Mrs. Andrew J. Montague, Mrs. C. A. Walker, Mrs. W. C. Mayo, Mrs. Archer Anderson, Mrs. Frances Scott, Mrs. Peyton Wise, Mrs. Barton H. Grundy, Mr. Adolph Osterloh, Mrs. W. S. P. Mayo, Mrs. Preston Soland, Mrs. C. O. B. Cowardin, Mrs. Henry L. Valentine, Mrs. George Abille, Mrs. S. J. Julian Oppenheimer, Mrs. William Rufin Cox, Mrs. Clarence Wyatt, Mrs. J. Enders Robinson, Mrs. B. L. Purcell, Mrs. Joseph Bryan, Miss Lucy Claire Atkinson, Mrs. Alfred Gray and Capt. Kent and Palmer.

A large representation from the National Society of the Colonial Dames spent the week end in Richmond, going down to Jamestown Island on Saturday to witness the presentation of the Dames memorial building, erected over the foundations of the old Jamestown church. The president of the National and Virginia Society of Colonial Dames, Mrs. William Rufin Cox, made the presentation and Mr. Joseph Bryan of Richmond accepted the building on behalf of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. The members of the National Society of Dames forming the executive group of the Jamestown committee—Mrs. Ella Chaussey and Miss Alice French of New York, Mrs. Charles Gustaf Harrison and Mrs. Henry F. T. DeWitt of Detroit were present, as were a number of other distinguished visitors, including Mrs. Donald McLean, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; Mrs. Justine Van Rensselaer Townsend of New York and the vice regents from eleven states of the Mount Vernon Association, which will hold its annual council next week.

The entire party went from Richmond to the island by the steamer Pocahontas. Luncheon was served on board and the return trip, Mrs. William McC. Ramsay of Westover accompanied the Dames, their guests and friends to the island, which left 5 o'clock tea by way of an inspiration.

Mr. James Bryce, British ambassador to the United States, arrived in Richmond yesterday. With Lady Evelyn Gray, daughter of the British ambassador, who accompanied him, he is the guest of Gov. and Mrs. Swanson at the executive mansion. He will be given a dinner Sunday evening, and his tented camp will be at Jamestown Island. The celebration will include impressive open-air ceremonies, in which Mr. Bryce will take part. The governor of Virginia will be the orator of the day, and a specially trained band and a chorus from William and Mary College of Williamsburg, Va., will render the musical part of the program.
