Epilepsy, Fits

Every part of the body has its nerves. It's the channel through which energy—nerve force is transmitted. If too much nerve force goes to a part, it is irritated, causing pain, congestion, spasms, fits, epilepsy, etc. If not enough it is enfeebled, and if none at all, paralysis results. Dr. Miles' Nerve soothes the nerves, assists the nerve cells to generate nerve force, and in this way restores nervous energy.

"My eighteen-year-old daughter had fits for five years, as often as two and three a week. She began to take Dr. Miles' Nerve, and she has not had an attack for two months."

SWEET CHARITY IS BENEFITED

To Receive Proceeds of Fete at Friendship.

RESEMBLES A COUNTY FAIR

Grounds Dotted With Booths and Other Attractions.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF SHOWS

Names of Those Engaged in Entertaining and Collecting Coin From the Patrons.

The spacious and beautiful grounds surrounding the suburban residence of Mr. John R. McLean, known as Friendship, on Wisconsin avenue, yesterday and today resembled a county fair. The occasion was the annual fete, as a result of which a dozen of the local charities of Washington are benefited. The Tenleytown cars and Rockville cars were crowded, the rolling stock, too, having been augmented. Visitors also journeyed to Friendship in carriages and on horseback, in automobiles and on foot, and if there had been such a thing as flying machines they probably would have been employed. Several thousand persons attended the fete yesterday afternoon and more are expected today. The visitors, as a rule, were well supplied with coin when they arrived. When they left they were financial wrecks. Gentle bandits of the most persuasive type lay in wait from the gate on the roadway, up the length of the long drive, around the curving "Streets of Paris" and inside the "County Fair" inclosure. The fair highwaywomen have many things to sell, with chances on all sorts of raffles, paddles for the wheels of fortune, tickets for half a dozen different kinds of shows, candy and flowers and various other things. If they had the material to sell they sold it. If they happened to have run out they simply held the visitor up and took the coin, anyhow. The mere bestowal of a quid pro quo did not much matter. It was all "for the cause," anyhow. There were a dozen causes, the George Washington Hospital, the Legal Aid Society, the Prisoners' Aid, the Colored Home, the Polytechnic Society, the Washington Home for the Blind, the Republic and other charities that Washington supports.

Many Attractions Provided. The attractions ranged from a game of quito to a real fire and a fire engine.

A frame house had been erected especially to be burned, and the engine and the hook and ladder company were there to extinguish the flames in time to allow some more of the structure to be burned today. A troop of cavalry from Fort Myer did riding stunts. All sorts of animal shows, shooting galleries and vaudeville performances, palm reading tents and grocery stores were in evidence, and everywhere were girls with candy and notions for sale. If anything escaped the saleswomen it was not their fault, and if there was a person who escaped a scatheless effort will be made to capture him and put him on exhibition for real money today.

Even the precincts of the McLean home did not escape the general invasion. At a bridge party in the box garden Mrs. Taft carried off the prize and a musicale was given in the house where noted performers, both professional and amateur, vied with each other. A Chinese laundry with the tickets calling for prizes, maybe, and a Japanese wedding were features. Altogether it was a field day for the nimble nickel and the less lethargic dollar, and while the accounts will not all be cast up before tomorrow, it is safe to say that a big sum will be realized for the various charities represented.

Streets of Paris. Mrs. Chas. M. Frouke and the junior committee of the Working Boys' Home and Children's Aid Association arranged the Streets of Paris. It was one of the most novel of the many attractions.

The Streets of Paris lined both sides of the stone walk leading from the main driveway. There were half a dozen booths containing everything from a millinery store to a cafe chantant, with all sorts and conditions of performers and attendants.

A flower booth was in charge of Mrs. Jas. Mitchell, assisted by a corps of flower girls. The hat store was in charge of the Misses Colton, created a conspicuous and remarkably reasonable prices were sold, together with an attractive line of veils and Mrs. O'Donnell Hinckley had a most attractive booth, where one could purchase parasols, dainty neckwear, belts and many dainty and charming articles for personal use and adornment. A French pastry shop was in charge of Mrs. Richard Weightman and Mrs. Rae, who had the finest assortment of cakes and chefs. Delicious bonbons and cakes were sold, warranted free from pain, aches or other harmful effects.

There was a toy store, where everything to delight the childish heart was on sale. One might have a glass of refreshing lemonade from a working boy, presided over by Miss Rebecca Collier.

The Parisian sorceress read one's character at a foretold the future in her book. Tea was served at tables in the shady arbor, with cakes, coffee, sandwiches and lemonade or ice cream from the House of Mercy booth. Mrs. Ridgely and Miss Helen Frouke were assisted here by an attractive group of young women. In the cafe chantant, afternoon tea was served at small tables, while one could listen to the excellent vaudeville performance under the direct supervision of Mrs. Frouke and Mrs. Ker. Mrs. Thomas C. Noyes, as a charming French flower girl, sang dainty French songs.

Coupon tickets, at a dollar each, were sold, which were good for one photograph taken from 6 o'clock to 10 o'clock on the premises or at their studio in the city.

The Vaudeville presented an excellent bill from 6 to 8 o'clock under the direction of Mrs. N. Monroe Hopkins and Miss Edith Miller. The music was furnished by a portion of the Marine Band. Miss Laura Harlan was in charge of the committee on music.

A quartet, consisting of Mr. Andrew Bradley, Miss Edith Miller, Miss Edith Miller and Mr. Geo. O'Connor, sang to their own accompaniment on guitars and banjos. Miss Stephanie Trescott, a debutante of this season, gave a delightful exhibition of fancy dancing.

Prof. Monroe Hopkins thrilled and puzzled the audience by his magic. Mr. Newton Gulick, dressed as Pierrot, gave amusing and delightful songs. Mrs. Piquette Mitchell was seen in charming Spanish dances.

An octet, under the direction of Miss Laura Harlan, rendered a number of beautiful selections. The members of the octet are Miss Laura Harlan, Miss Heald, Mrs. Hooe, Mrs. Lee Phillips, Miss Mary Royce, Miss Edith Spofford and Miss Laura Wells.

The program was concluded with an amusing one-act play, entitled "An Amateur Triumph." The cast consisted of Dr. Alfred Francis Hopkins as Mr. Sydingham, Mrs. Neville Monroe Hopkins as Mrs. Syngam, and Miss Olivia Howard as Christina, the maid.

A large number of young married women, society girls, and debutantes assisted in the care and at the booths, and several well-known men acted in the capacity of policemen, "barkers" and sandwichmen.

At the Theater Comique. One of the features of the fete was the "Theater Comique" under the management of Mr. Bentley, who offered real vaudeville artists and theatrical stars of prominence. Mr. Bentley had Mr. Edwin Arden and his entire company of players to assist him in the production of high-class vaudeville. An added attraction was the appearance of Miss Clara Kummer, the author of "Nora's Ark," who rendered several of her latest songs. A large number of young ladies from Fairmont Seminary assisted in fancy costume and served as "music masters." Mr. Bentley appeared as "Herr Herrytwin," the music master and teacher of typewriting. Miss Edith Luckett played the role of Helen, "a well-read girl who does not know her own father," and Mr. Arthur H. Deibert was seen in the part of Henry Stanton, "a professional kidnapper of Christmas trees, wives and babies." Miss Elizabeth Forney, Irwin Cosgrove, Edward H. Hines, Miss Florence Bean, Miss Imogene Taylor, Mrs. Thomas Japoyes, Mrs. Clifford Berryman, Mrs. Misses Schaefer and several artists from each of the local theaters also appeared.

tintype photo gallery, German booth dispensing coffee and apple cake, Japanese rolling game, fortune-telling and gypsy strollers were among the attractions. Robert Bell's Juvenile Shakespeare Company, assisted by the George Washington Quartet, and fencing clubs showed in different tents. Ice cream, sandwiches, popcorn and peanuts were all dispensed, and soap bubbling, a pony game—in fact every side show typical of a county fair was in full blast. One of the features of the county fair show was the sketch work of the cartoonists from the local papers. Will Chandless and Clifford Berryman of The Star and Felix Mahoney and Jack Smith were all on duty and turned out everything from crayon sketches of pretty girls to pictures of Teddy bears, portraits of pet fox terriers and pastel landscapes neatly framed while you waited. The ladies who attended the various booths and shows were Mrs. George H. Brown, Mrs. E. B. Rose, Mrs. M. McKay, Mrs. R. R. McKahan, Mrs. J. Collins, Mrs. S. N. Smith, Mrs. A. W. Pratt, Mrs. J. Hall Lewis, Mrs. Schmitt, Mrs. C. J. Bell, Mrs. Bertha Frances Wolfe, Mrs. C. E. Munroe, Mrs. S. E. Lewis, Mrs. Walter Harban, Mrs. Boyce, Mrs. Yarrow, Mrs. Herman Walbridge, Miss Jessica Terwilliger and a mysterious veiled lady who told fortunes incognito, but who proved on further investigation to be Mrs. Wm. H. Moses. Nordhoff Guild's Exhibit. The Nordhoff Guild provided some of its most attractive features. A marvelous Dutch tulip garden was presided over by Mesdames Hough, Paul, Tweeddale, Elye and Whitaker. A substantial Dutch supper at most moderate prices was served by pretty girls in costume presided by Mrs. Barr. The famous Nordhoff Guild candy was ably dispensed by Mesdames Stetson, Cornwall and Moses, aided by a bevy of attractive girls. Mrs. Schooley poured soft drinks for the thirsty, assisted by Mrs. Wilkie. The moving pictures tent afforded an excellent resting place for the weary and entertainment pleasing and instructive. Mrs. Padgett, president of the guild, welcomed the general public to the undentable attractions it had to offer. Mrs. Allen, watchdog of the guild treasury, and Mrs. Burnett, its corresponding secretary, acted as cashiers. Other members of the guild assisting were Mesdames Frazer, Fox, Howgate, Letzell, Polonaze, Pitney, Bryan, Hughey and Miss Wilcox. The Christ Child Society had a variety of wares, but mostly eatables and drinkables to sell. The work of the poor children which the society has in charge was represented by specimens of basketry, ready-to-wear garments, trimmed hats and dolls. Mrs. A. P. Davis, Miss Stanton and Miss Mildred Merrick were in general charge. Mrs. James Dudley Morgan and Miss Monnier sold fruit punch and Mrs. Thomas Carter, Miss Force and Mrs. Hanna Taylor were also in charge at the various tables. Hamilton Bell, who was a Teddy bear guide to the booth, was a great success. The Homeopathic Hospital had a booth on the main road where chocolates and other sweets were sold. Its attendants were very smart and distinctive costumes—white mull dresses with fancy aprons with tiny brown bows, and lace and muslin bow caps with brown ribbons. Those in charge were Mrs. T. L. Macdonald and Mrs. Le Droit Barber, with Miss Kaufmann, Miss Eleanor Granger and Miss Kate MacCartney among the assistants. One of the most attractive and pleasing booths at the fete was the handkerchief and linen booth in charge of Mrs. Wm. J. Zeh, who was assisted by Mrs. Geo. Knox, Mrs. Frank Crosswath, Mrs. Julia Demorest, Mrs. Franklin Sanner, Mrs. Gordon Emery, Mrs. Geo. Fields, Mrs. Wm. Dyer and Mrs. Jas. Warrington. The charity fete at Friendship was organized and conducted under the chairmanship of Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, assisted by Miss Catherine Ridgely. If you want work read the want columns of The Star.
