

THE EVENING STAR.

With Sunday Morning Edition.

WASHINGTON. WEDNESDAY... October 20, 1909

THEODORE W. NOYES... Editor

Entered as second-class mail matter at the post office at Washington, D. C.

THE STAR has a regular and permanent family circulation much larger than the combined circulation of the other Washington dailies.

In order to avoid delays on account of personal absence letters to THE STAR should not be addressed to any individual connected with the office, but simply to THE STAR, or to the Editorial or Business Department, according to tenor or purpose.

Kings, Czars and Presidents.

While King Alfonso holds the center of the stage we may expect the gossips to put him through all the sensational poses and paces. He is now, we are told, cowering in his palace at Madrid, a victim of fear.

For years the gloomiest stories have been circulated about the Czar of Russia. In one he has been represented as a physical coward, dissolving in tears at any moment of excitement.

In this way outside opinion is too much molded by falsehood and exaggeration. It is easy to believe that government in both Russia and Spain is hard, and according to our lips unprogressive.

The Ferrer episode has brought out a strong protest in this country, but uttered in a much better way than has been the same feeling in Europe.

Still, with all our precautions, three of our Presidents have been assassinated, and, of all on the list, personally the most amiable and popular.

Reduction of Infant Mortality. The health officers of many municipalities have in recent years directed their attention to the high rate of infant mortality.

New York city is dealing with the physical condition of school children, and giving object lessons in cleanliness, and in giving close attention to the mouths, eyes, ears and noses of children.

Opera. Opera for Europe under American auspices? Such is the announcement. The beginning will be in Paris.

Mr. Taft has achieved an original triumph in offering a series of speeches which give little or no encouragement to the epigram chasers.

Esquimos betray their inferior civilization by turning their backs on lectures and banquets and going back to pemican and gundrops.

The difficulty of maintaining an attitude of judicial dignity during a New York mayoralty campaign cannot be overestimated.

It is now said that Mr. Knox has no sense of humor. But events in the State Department have not been such as to encourage a man to look on the happy and careless side of life.

A Kansas Insurgent.

William Allen White, the distinguished Kansas journalist, is not in office or seeking office, but offers his party now and then observations on men and measures intended to support good use.

Mr. White is of the insurgent school of republicans. He rates what is called Cannonism as both a party and a public evil, and early overthrows. The people will retire Mr. Cannon, and will be in full possession of the party.

There was a man—about Mr. White's age, and of similar temperament—who a few years ago ran for President, and was defeated.

ships and turbine steamers and labor-saving devices belong to an advanced era. The workers in medical research are of a later product than the tertiary age.

And yet there is something helpful about those who persistently live in the past. They throw the shadows that heighten the contrast between the present and the years that have gone.

Again the base ball situation has resolved itself into the hopeful state, which makes it anybody's pennant for next season.

It will be interesting to know how Mr. Roosevelt's luggage is handled by the customs officials when he comes back.

The Secretary of State refrains from saying enough to entitle it to be called a Knox-Crane controversy.

Explorers should not despair. The north pole is as hard to reach now as it ever was.

The importance of Beverly, Mass., passes with that of the straw hat.

SHOOTING STARS.

BY PHILANDER JOHNSON.

The Making of Names. "I want to make a name for myself in politics," said the ambitious youth.

Another Question. Here is another question which may do for conversation: Is foot ball quite as rough a game as popular exploration?

Parental Cares. "One of your daughter's suitors has a distinguished ancestry."

Variations. "Aren't you tired of this Cook controversy?" "Which do you mean?" asked Mr. Sirius Barker.

Slogans. "Look here," said the constituent; "are you going to make any more anti-trust speeches?"

October. Loan's time is over. You've got to step along. De wind is blowin' chilly.

The Maryland Tomato. "Tis an ill wind that blows nobody good—a platitude, but one that finds consistent corroboration and support in the stern facts of existence.

A Good Roads Inquiry. Representatives from the states of Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, comprising the Southwestern Good Roads Association, are now in New England.

Another Discovery. Peary and Cook differ even in the spelling of the two Eskimo names. Cook writes them "Etukishuk" and "Abwahlah," while Peary writes them "Etukishuk" and "Ahppe-lah."

Gloating. Every one in the United States now knows where Detroit is—especially since Saturday.

Surrender! From the New York Tribune. Down in Yorktown, Va., public attention was focused on the surrender of Lord Cornwallis to Gen. Washington.

Reverence for the past is one of the most admirable traits of the human make-up, but appreciation of the present makes more sure for the happiness of the human race.

Notable French Millinery.

THE notable distinction of our Millinery is more apparent each succeeding week, and already not a few of the exclusive types have gained widespread recognition.

Millinery is due to the conception of true genius in the profession, and not to the mere selection and purchase of models.

French Model Hats are very expensive, as the duty is high; but we produce Hats of French materials for our patrons which equal and often surpass the French models, at less than half their cost.

Come and enjoy this style show. Something new every day. Second floor, Tenth st.

Boys' Smart Clothing.

WHY not clothe your boys with clothing that is absolutely correct in every detail, as well as the very best obtainable for service? It is the most economical, as it retains its smart appearance long after the ordinary kind is worn out.

We clothe all ages up to 17 years—providing every requisite for their complete outfitting.

The assortments for this season represent an unusually wide variety of all the most desirable fabrics, and at specially attractive prices.
