NIGHT CAMP FOR SICK

Red Cross Plan to Use Christmas Stamp Fund.

WESTERN IDEA ADOPTED

Value of Isolation in Consumptive Cases Recognized.

MONEY MAINLY FOR LOCAL USE

Eighty Per Cent of Total Receipts to Go to State Branches for Tuberculosis Sufferers.

As a natural sequence to the successful construction and maintenance of day camps for consumptives from funds gathered during past Yuletide seasons, it was explained at the national headquarters of the Red Cross Society yesterday afternoon, a large portion of the money gathered from the sales of the Christmas stamps this year is to be devoted to the general establishment of what is known as "night camps" for the white plague sufferers of the nation.

The idea of the night camp originated in Pittsburgh and was first carried upon in order to provide a place where persons suffering from the incipient stages of the disease might obtain the natural night rest under atmospheric and sanitary conditions which would assist attending physicians in their treatment. The night camp, it was said, is designed to afford material relief to the infected man, woman or child who may be compelled to labor for a livelihood and whose condition permits them to continue their daily labors.

A general establishment of these night camps will fill a crying need in hundreds of communities where there are persons suffering from tuberculosis, but who must continue at their daily toil. The camps, it was also explained, will in many instances be an important factor in the prevention and segregation of the more advanced cases of the disease.

Plan of the Camp.

The scheme of the night camp, as modeled after those in several cities of the middle west, and the general idea which the Red Cross Society has in affording relief, is the construction of single and double houses or shelters similar to those in use in the day camps, but who must continue at their daily toil. Each evening they are to be given a substantial dinner, necessary medical attention, clean, sanitary bed clothing, and in the morning, before they leave for their work, a simple breakfast of strengthening foods. The camp in a way will be the medium of segregation in that it eliminates the necessity of the patient in the day camps at his home and in a large measure reducing the danger of family infection.

Growth of the Movement.

The annual appeal for funds to fight the white plague at this time of the year by the Red Cross Society has grown into a stupendous national movement, and extends from the largest industrial centers of the country to the smallest rural hamlets. Responses to the present appeal have been received alike from the great inhabited east side of New York city, the plains of Oklahoma, the villages of New England, the mountains of Tennessee and the mining camps of Colorado.

It is hoped this year to sell 50,000,000 stamps, or $500,000 worth, before Christmas day.

mas day. Of this $500,000 there were sent out in orders from various state and territorial headquarters of the society 38,000,000 stamps for the opening of the sales since these orders were filled requests for 6,000,000 more stamps have been received, bringing the total number up to 44,000,000. The society's ambition will be realized if other requests for stamps in the next week or two amount to 6,000,000 more. It is thought there will be no great difficulty in disposing of this additional amount.

Division of Proceeds.

The proceeds from the stamp and postal card sales are to be divided on the basis of 20 per cent and 80 per cent between the national headquarters and branch societies of the states and territories. The 20 per cent which the national headquarters is to take will be devoted to defraying the expenses of printing, postage and maintenance of the balance is to be held as an emergency fund for general relief work and also to pay the preliminary expenses of the Christmas stamp sale.

Sales Show Increase.

Yesterday's sales of stamps and postal cards throughout the city, it was announced last night, was even more satisfactory than those of Friday. Receipts in all the places where a daily account of the sales is kept showed that, with few exceptions, the amount of money taken in was slightly in excess of the day before. In several of the department stores, however, the sales of the day were about one-third more than that of Friday.

Miss Boardman Lectures on First Aid to Injured

Miss Mabel T. Boardman kindled the enthusiasm of the members of the Federation of Women's Clubs of the District of Columbia for the first aid work of the American Red Cross Society in an address at their monthly meeting last evening. Miss Boardman gave a brief review of the work of the Red Cross in this country and in Europe, spoke of the vast opportunity that presented itself to the American women in this line of philanthropic work, and outlined various plans for systematizing and broadening the scope of the work in the District and elsewhere in this country. The enthusiastic applause that greeted her address, which was listened to with great attention, made it quite evident that the representatives of the women's clubs of the District will give her hearty support in her plans for developing the work of the Red Cross Society. On the completion of her address those present showed their appreciation of what she had said by a rising vote of thanks.

First Aid to the Injured.

"First aid to the injured," said Miss Boardman, "was originally for relief work in times of war, but after the great disasters that are constantly occurring throughout the world, such as that at San Francisco and Messina, it was realized that a general knowledge of how to administer first aid relief was quite essential. In France, Germany, Italy and England first aid courses have been arranged for some of the work in the District and elsewhere in this country. At first the work in this country was only spasmodic, but it is gradually being systematized and extended. The War Department has detailed Maj. Lynch, who was the medical attaché of the army during the Russo-Japanese war, to aid the Red Cross in its work. Only recently the Baltimore Gas Company declared its willingness to pay a surgeon to instruct a list of those who become qualified to administer first aid will be posted throughout the works, so that in case of accident it will be possible to know to whom to apply for relief.

Overcoming Woman's Impulse.

"First-aid work is something that every woman should have some knowledge of. Accidents are occurring at all times, and most women at present when they see an accident feel like running away from it. If, however, you know what to do in case of accident, you would be so occupied in your attempts at relieving suffering that you would not think of the horrors of the scene."

Invited to Join Committee.

"I think the women ought to take up this work in this country. In France and other European countries the women who had training in first-aid relief did valuable service after the earthquake in Messina, and also in the war in Morocco. We would like to have a representative of every woman's club in the District on the supply committee of the Red Cross which would be prepared to furnish clothing and other articles in times of war or of disaster, such as that of San Francisco. This committee could organize subcommittees on proper packing of the supplies and on marking them, so that when they are needed in large numbers they could be taken up without confusion. We hope to call a meeting of this committee in the spring, and we trust that many of them in the District will be represented on it."

LOVER SHOTS GIRL'S FATHER.

CAMILLA, Ga., November 27.—Pursuing his eloping daughter, who had run away from home with Columbus Huey, T. J. Sellers, one of the wealthiest farmers of Mitchell county, was shot to death in the public road ten miles southwest of here this afternoon, when he caught the fleeing couple. Leaving his body in the road, Huey and Miss Sellers, it is alleged, went on, driving rapidly in a buggy, intending to complete the elopement with a wedding. The sheriff of the county was informed by telephone of the tragedy and in person on the trail of the fleeing man and girl.
