HIKE TO THEIR CAMPS.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Forced to take an Unexpected March.

A "hike" that was not on the scheduled program occurred when the sixty campers of the Y. M. C. A., with their leaders reached Edgewater, Md., yesterday afternoon, and learned that their fifty-foot motor boat had broken down in Annapolis and could not be repaired in time to take them to camp.

Without hesitating the entire camp set out on foot around the shore of South River to the camp site. The five miles were covered in good time.

By nightfall the camp system was running smoothly, and at the campfire last night Editor Raymond Ellison read the first issue of the camp paper. The boat has been repaired and went into service this morning.

William Knowles Cooper, general secretary of the Washington Y. M. C. A., will dress the boys at their Sunday afternoon service tomorrow at 3 o'clock.

CAPITALIST KILLED BY AUTO.

T. F. Coleman, Dazed by Lights, Walks in Front of Machine. LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 29.—Thomas F. Coleman, sixty-five years old, a retired capitalist and relative of the Duponts, powder magnates of Delaware, was struck and killed by an automobile near this city last night.

He was walking along the road with his hands out when an automobile driven by Henry Gould, Jr., bore down on them. Though fully warned, Mr. Coleman was dazed by the automobile lights and walked directly in front of it. The machine ran over him and he died before physicians arrived.

FIND SUICIDE PACT VICTIM.

Body of Young Woman Is Discovered in River.

CHICAGO, June 29.—The theory of the police that Miss Nellie Valentine, twenty-three year old and Adolph Bach, twenty-five years old, entered into a suicide pact because his parents objected to their marriage, and ended their lives in the river January 6, was partly confirmed yesterday when the body of the young woman was found floating in the river at Roscoe street bridge. The body, though much decomposed, was identified by Mrs. Marie Valentine, mother of the young woman.

DECLINE IN BLISS PERMITS.

Although establishing this month a new record for 1912 in the number of couples tied for the altar, the number during a month, Dan Cupid was forced to admit today that he had not "corralled" so many as he did in June, 1911. The total number of marriage licenses issued since June 1 up to noon today was 450, while the books show that in June of last year 490 couples secured "bliss permits."

Clerk Kroll, Cupid's lieutenant, who hands out the licenses, was unable to decide on the cause of the failure, equal the record of last June. He suggested, however, that perhaps it is that this is an election year with its doubts and probabilities, has caused many to delay their nuptials until after the Thanksgiving business, always late, will be better augmented this year.

TRAINED BY HIS WIFE

Bolton S. Wippeny Arrested on Charge of Desertion.

WAS UNDER ASSUMED NAME

Alleged He Abandoned Spouse Sixteen Years Ago—Temporary Truce Mutually Accepted.

NEW YORK, June 23.—Bolton S. Wippeny, member of a prominent Philadelphia family, who lived in Yonkers for about fifteen years under the name of David Nally, has been unmasked by his wife Gertrude, who had not seen or heard from him since he left her, about sixteen years ago, in this city. She caused his arrest on a charge of abandonment, and yesterday afternoon he was before Magistrate Harris in the domestic relations court.

"So now, Mr. Nally, tell his honor your real name," shouted the wife. He admitted he was her husband. The hearing was postponed for two weeks on application of his counsel, Thomas J. Higgins of 300 Broadway. Meantime, Wippeny is to pay $15 a week for her support. He said he would try to prove she was not entitled to support by him.

Revelation Causes Stir. The revelation caused a stir in Yonkers, where "Nally" is well known. He has been in the piano business there for years and has attended service regularly at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

Wippeny's father was J. Bolton Wippeny, a woolen manufacturer, who amassed a fortune in the civil war period. He retired many years ago and died April 3, 1910, leaving his millions to five children and cutting off his eldest son, Bolton, with a weekly income of $90 for having married Miss Gertrude Denhart of Philadelphia, at one time Austro-Hungarian consul in New York.

Bolton showed musical talent at an early age and his father wished that he should be the best Philadelphia teachers for that purpose, but he was not to be. He studied the music until he met Miss Denhart in 1890. He was twenty-seven years old, she eighteen. A few months later they eloped to Albany, N. Y., and were married. The bridegroom's announcement several months afterward brought the news to New York. He never went again to the home at No. 1432 North Broad street while his father lived, but kept in communication with others of the family.

Adopts Another Name. He and his bride came to New York to live, but he soon disappeared. Under an assumed name he settled in Yonkers and fell safe. He returned to his music with his old-time enthusiasm and paid his way by tuning pianos and occasionally selling one. Finally he was able to establish himself in the business.

His wife hunted for him in vain until about a month ago, when she received information that he was living in Yonkers. She entered his store. He did not recognize her until she had said, "Well, Bolton Wippeny, how do you find your new life?" He found himself highly embarrassed.

The wife did not carry long, but went direct to the domestic relations court and got a warrant. "Wippeny is wondering what effect his naming will have on his future in Yonkers."

"You know I feel quite established here now," he said to report; "I am sure I have not done any wrong."

Younger Brother's Secret Marriage. J. Harold Wippeny, a younger brother of Bolton, contracted a stir in Philadelphia and Narragansett, by marrying Miss Beatrice Kelley, a Philadelphia photographer's model, in November, 1907. The marriage was kept secret a year. Harold had been engaged to Miss Inez Sprague of Narragansett, the grand daughter of Gov. Sprague of Rhode Island. But she got married to Harry W. Hines of Providence, R. I., in June, 1908. The silence of the Rhode Island supreme court.

ALONG THE RIVER FRONT.

Arrivals. Schooner Edith Verrall, lumber from Nomin creek, at 10th street wharf for L. A. Clarke & Son, schooner Lewis Worwick, for Norfolk, Va.; schooner John Taylor, light, for Occoquan to load cord wood back to this city; tug boat Ruth K., for the market here; schooner Minerva, at Georgetown, with a tow of sand and gravel carrying lighters from digging pits along the river; tug boat Ruth K., domatoes from Fort Potts, Md., for the market here.

A June wedding of much interest is that of Miss Alina Bonay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ashton Bonay of New York, and Mr. John W. Wilbur Chapman, jr., eldest son of the Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, the noted evangelist, who is now in Australia.

The wedding will take place June 29 at 10 o'clock in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, New York. The Rev. Dr. Edgar Whitaker, pastor of the church, will perform the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Marcus A. Bronson of Philadelphia, uncle of the groom. The bride will enter the church alone, gowning in white satin charmuse, trimmed with princess lace, wearing a point lace veil, which will be held in place by real orange
