NAME OF BALLINGER IN LAND FRAUD CASE

Witness Says It Was Erased From Book While in Receiver's Hands.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Testimony that the books of Albert C. Frost & Co. had been changed while they were in the hands of a receiver, today halted the trial against Mr. Frost and his four associates charged with Alaskan land frauds, and directed the inquiry into other channels. In the words of Judge Landis, before whom the trial is being conducted, "the question of the United States against Mr. Frost and other defendants is a small offense compared with the charge just made."

When A. C. Frost & Co. failed three years ago, George M. Seward, one of the defendants in the land fraud charges, was appointed receiver and the books were turned over to him.

On examination by D. B. Townsend, special assistant attorney general, W. F. Vandike, bookkeeper for Frost, testified that since the books had been turned over to Mr. Seward as receiver certain names had been erased.

Ballinger's Name on Them. Among the names which had been erased was that of Richard A. Ballinger, former United States land commissioner and Secretary of the Interior. Judge Landis questioned the witness himself.

"At whose direction did you erase the name of Mr. Ballinger?" asked the judge.

"The request of Mr. Seward and Mr. Frost," Judge Landis ordered the balliff to summon several United States deputy marshals. They appeared a moment later.

Work on Sea Wall Resumed. Will Be Completed During the Summer Months.

Under the direction of the United States Army engineer's office at this city, work on the sea wall along the reclaimed area of the Anacostia river flats, at the mouth of the Eastern branch, and on the dyke wall along the southern side of the Georgetown channel above the Highway bridge, has been resumed, and in the coming spring and summer months the work mapped out will be completed.

On the Eastern branch about a mile of stone and cement wall, like that about Potomac Park, is to be built. It extends from Gelsboro point to the big sewer across the Eastern branch from the sewerage disposal station and finishes up work started last year. The Georgetown channel dyke work is also the completion of work started last year.

Under the present contract about 200 feet of the wall remains to be erected. This will bring it to within 100 feet of the Highway bridge, and it is expected that the bridge, but when this will be decided has not yet been decided. The stone for this work and that on the Eastern branch, being furnished by the Columbia Granite and Drilling Company, and is being obtained from the quarries along the Potomac above Georgetown.

Tillman Talks of Martin. Latter's Progressiveness Puzzles Defeated Senator.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 22.—"I am not unhappy about it. Perhaps it was a special act of Providence to keep me from killing myself at work in the success of the Woodrow Wilson administration," said Senator B. R. Tillman of South Carolina today, discussing the election of Senator Martin to the chairmanship of the senate appropriations committee.

"What puzzles me," continued Senator Tillman, "is how Martin jumped over my head to become a progressive. If he was not progressive enough to be made chairman of the caucus, why should he have been made chairman of the appropriations committee?"

Senator Tillman passed through here today en route to South Carolina, where he proposes to "take a little turn in state politics" before he returns to Washington.

Farewell services were held Sunday in the old Methodist church building on West Market street, Harleston, S. C. Next Sunday the congregation will worship for the first time in the new $90,000 church on South Main street.

PLEA FOR CLAUDE ALLEN

Attorneys Striving for Writ of Error From Supreme Court Bench.

In a final effort to save the life of Claude Swanson Allen, convicted of murder and sentenced to die, his attorneys yesterday made appeal after appeal to various members of the Supreme Court of the United States for a writ of error that the case might be brought up for review by the highest court in the land. Up to a late hour last night, however, their appeals had been in vain. Unless one of the justices of the Supreme Court should grant the writ it is probable Allen will be sent to the electric chair next Friday.

Chief Justice Refuses. Chief Justice White was the first to turn down the request for a writ of error in the case of Claude Allen. Then the attorneys, D. C. O'Flaherty and R. H. Willis of Richmond, went to Justice Hughes for a writ. The attorneys declared that the writ Justice Hughes had made, but after he had considered the case they started out to visit each of the other justices.

The attorneys claim that their client, who participated in the Hillsville, Va., coal strike, was a member of the Tammany club and others were killed, has been "twice placed in jeopardy" for the same offense, violated the Federal Constitution. They spent part of yesterday looking up precedents and laying them before the justices of the supreme court.

Effort Continued. Last night Mr. Willis left here, but Mr. O'Flaherty remained in Washington to continue the fight for Allen's life. Any one of the justices of the court is empowered to grant such a writ of error as Allen's attorneys are requesting, and Mr. O'Flaherty stated last night that they intended to go the limit to save their client. He will continue his efforts today and tomorrow.

HEARD AND SEEN HERE AND THERE

By Earl Godwin.

Anglomaniacs go wild when they take a first look at the public house known as the "Green Shutters," on a steep side street in Hamilton, which is the capital of the English colony of Bermuda. It is long and low, has fine white exterior green doors, one marked "public bar" and the other marked "private bar." It has all the characteristics of an English inn, so you must not be surprised to learn that the very nicest of our American Anglo-maniacs go diving through the swinging green doors with a regular Devonshire thirst for ale as soon as they lay their eyes upon the place.

There were two fine characters standing in front of the "Green Shutters" one day not long ago. One of them was a real Englishman with a gray cap, and the other was a man named Tilden, member of Tammany Hall and a dozen social clubs in New York. He wore regular New York clothes of the type they wear up there to a clam chowder. His English friend, named Norman, had lived in New York eleven years without being

CATHOLIC BISHOP WINS

Maine Governor Signs the "Corporation Sole" Act.

AUGUSTA, Me., March 22.—Gov. Haines today signed the "corporation sole" act, whereby the Roman Catholic bishop of Portland remains "a corporation sole" and is given the additional power to establish parish corporations. These corporations are to be formed on the plans now existing in New York, Connecticut and Rhode Island, the trustees to consist of the bishop, six members of the pastor and two laymen selected by the first three.

The final passage of the bill today was followed by an announcement that the six members of the executive committee of French-Canadian Catholics, who were interdicted two years ago on account of their agitation for the dissolution of the corporation sole, had been condemned again by the church authorities. An official letter from the consular congregation in Rome received by Bishop Walsh characterized the acts of the committee as "impudent, stubborn and rebellious," and warned them to abstain from all further agitation of the matter.

SOCIAL WORKER CALLS ON PRESIDENT WILSON

Ardean Foster of England Explains Work Done to Save Women.

Ardean Foster, international commissioner of the British Federation for the Emancipation of Sweated Women, Girls and White Slaves, presenting a letter from British Ambassador Bryce, was permitted yesterday to explain to the President the purposes of his organization. President Wilson expressed sympathy with the movement represented by Mr. Foster and wished well for it and for Mr. Foster's efforts in America.

Commissioner Foster is lecturing in the United States on the British movement. His appeal is not only on the plea of humanity, but he asks help on the ground that undesirable immigration from the British Isles to the United States has been increased through the organization he represents.

For Minimum Wage. A minimum wage for women, Mr. Foster indorses as a step in the right direction. He does not, however, believe that it is the right way to prevent vice among women.

He illustrates one unhappy working of the minimum wage system, as it operates in the match-box-making trade in England. Ten shillings a week, approximately $2.50, is the pay of a match box maker, considered by the match manufacturers as compliance with a minimum wage scale.

The match boxes are made in the home. The woman is required for her $2.50 to turn in 10,800 boxes and also to pay out of that sum for hemp and glue used in making the boxes. The quantity of glue is an impossible output for the one match box maker. Consequently she farms out the labor to her relatives and neighbors, further reducing the cost of the proceeds. The aims of the federation are almost entirely precautionary. The ranks of ungraded women are almost entirely filled from the wage-earning class, it is declared, and usually through inability to make a living wage and absolute necessity. To provide a fair return for labor for those too old to be trained in special lines of endeavor and to equip the growing girls for a field of work to which they may be fitted is the aim of the society.

MADE A BRIGADIER GENERAL. Col. Hugh L. Scott Is Personal Friend of President Wilson.

Col. Hugh L. Scott of the 3d United States Cavalry, who has just been appointed a brigadier general to succeed Gen. Edgar Z. Steever, who was retired yesterday because of disability incurred in the line of duty, is a personal friend of both President Wilson and Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, chief of staff, and is one of the best known officers in the army. He is from Kentucky, and was graduated from the Military Academy in 1876. Most of his service has been in the cavalry arm. Considerable of his early service was passed on the Indian frontier, and he is regarded by one of the greatest authorities in the United States on Indian languages, and also on the sign language.

He was in charge of Geronimo's band of Apache prisoners of war at Fort Sill, Okla., and following the Spanish war he was adjutant general of the Department of Havana, being closely associated with Gen. Wood, then governor general of Cuba. He subsequently accompanied Gen. Wood to the Philippines, and served as a governor of the Subic Bay, during which time he abolished slavery in that province.

On returning to the United States in 1906 Col. Scott was appointed superintendent of the United States Military Academy, and served in that capacity until relieved by Maj. Gen. Barry. At present he is stationed with the 3d Cavalry at Fort Sam Houston, Tex. and probably will be assigned to the command of the 2d Cavalry Brigade, in that state, recently held by Gen. Steever.

The unrest among women is the most significant feature of modern life, the most important world problem. Why do women break windows, organize parades and speak in the streets? Why do women demand the ballot? Why do women insist on a larger voice in the affairs of mart and forum?

The Modern Woman makes reply: "For thousands of years woman stayed at home and kept house. She reared children and cooked and washed and sewed. About a hundred years ago machinery began to invade her domain. One by one her arts were taken from her, until now she is cooking and the washing and the sewing are done largely by machinery in factories under the direction and management of men. The State even helps in the rearing of her children in the public schools. Woman's province has been despoiled. Most of her home work has become a public work managed by men.

"The modern woman wants back her rights. She demands for the protection of her home and her family that the factory work be pure and good, that the surroundings of her children be wholesome, that her babies be not sacrificed for money. In short, she demands a voice in the control of all the influences that affect the home, even though 'home' is no longer confined by four walls but is as broad as the State."

As this demand becomes more and more insistent those who object to a change in the status of women become more and more pronounced in their opposition, so that a controversy of the first magnitude is waging.

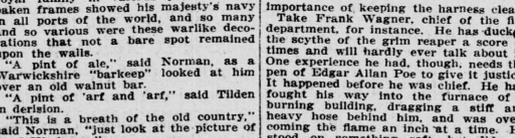

A most exhaustive account of the activities and aspirations and accomplishments of modern women, giving the facts upon which the whole controversy is based, but without "taking sides," will appear in a series of daily articles by Frederic J. Haskin beginning in this newspaper on Wednesday, March 26.

Every fireman has had experience enough to know that the ordinary man for a lifetime. Every veteran "smoke eater" has enough thrills in his chest to supply a novel and a chunder writer with material for a handsome volume, but the trouble of the thing is to get them to do it. It's a bromide to say that they all shade off with death every time the bell in the engine house clangs out the message that a fire has started somewhere and human lives are imperiled. That's about as unimportant a detail as washing faces in the morning, and really they don't think of it as much about that as they do about the

Another European sovereign who met a similar fate and who also made a point of singling out American naval officers for his personal attention was Carlos of Portugal.
