IN THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

FRESHENING UP AT THE WHITE HOUSE NEARS THE END.

Home-Comings of Travelers and Other Plans—Personal Notes.

The changes and improvements now going on in the White House are in the direction of adding to its accommodations for guests and also for the maid servants. The repairs are being rapidly made, and the finished effect is almost in sight. The hedges which inclose the garden in small areas near the south portico have been removed. Concrete walks are being laid, so that there will be nothing in future to cut off a view of the mansion near the south porticoes. The colonial garden remains, but has a small fountain in the center.

There will be five new bedrooms and three bathrooms when the work on what was formerly the attic is completed. Only two are of recent planning, as the other rooms have been hitherto used by the maid servants, for whom other quarters in the extreme west end of the section under the roof are being arranged. Dormer windows now pierce the roof where additional lighting and ventilation was required and the view from them over the garden trees to Potomac Park and the river is quite the best of the house.

It is thought that the furniture used by earlier occupants of the house and since stored in the attics will be in place in the new rooms, thus adding to their historic interest.

Freshening processes in the way of new paint are going on in the entrance hall and the main corridor, the east room having received its changes early in the summer.

EDWARD L. ASHTON DIES

FROM ACCIDENTAL WOUND

Victim Receives Charge of Gun Trying to Get Through Wire Fence While Hunting.

Edward Lee Ashton, seventeen years old, of Capitol Heights, Md., died about 9:20 o'clock this morning at Casualty Hospital from a gunshot wound which he accidentally self-inflicted yesterday afternoon.

In company with Charles Harris young Ashton went hunting for squirrels yesterday afternoon several miles from his home in Capitol Heights. The two boys had bagged several squirrels when suddenly a bird flew over their heads. Ashton shot it. The bird fell into a clump of bushes in a nearby field. They started after it.

Harris had gotten through a wire fence into the other field. Ashton was to follow. Suddenly the report of Ashton's gun was heard and Harris returned to see what his companion had shot. He was horrified, upon reaching the fence to find Ashton hanging in the fence with a hole in his side. In trying to get through the fence Ashton had inadvertently discharged his gun and the full charge of a shell entered his right side.

Companion Carries Ashton for Aid. Picking up his companion, Harris carried Ashton on his back for some distance to a farmhouse. The occupants were away, and he then carried the wounded boy to Johnson's farmhouse. A physician was summoned there. He rendered first aid and then started for Casualty Hospital with the wounded boy in a wagon.

Physicians at Casualty Hospital had been notified of the accident and the ambulance from that institution, with Drs. Kelly and Bannan, met the wagon on the road. The boy was transferred to the ambulance and rushed to the hospital.

An operation was performed immediately. It was found that the shot had entered the stomach, passing through the lowest rib, tore away the lower border of the right lobe of the liver and lodged in the stomach.

The dead boy was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Ashton.

Radical Changes in the styles of Women's Fur Coats

We urge you to come in and look at our Paris models of Fur Garments. These will show you the accepted styles for the coming winter.

They are simply exquisite, but so changed in design that the coats of past seasons will be absolutely impossible.

When these new garments appear the Fur Coats of 1911-1912 will be classed with the hoop skirts of civil war times.

Fortunately for you the new styles are shorter and the coat you now have can probably be altered to conform to these late ideas without requiring additional material.

Our workrooms are now in position to do such work promptly, but the time is getting very short when we can offer you reduced prices for it.

Bring your coats to us at once and we'll gladly tell you what can be done to give you a fashionable garment at the very lowest cost.
