

LORD LONGBOW—HE WINS ANOTHER DECORATION.

"At a masked ball in Rome, which I attended in the guise of a donkey, with me valet as the hind legs, I observed a villainous-looking bandit approaching a certain member of the royal family, who was present incog."

"The sounder had a dagger in his hand. Hastily heaving loudly to attract his highness' attention, I purposely backed me hind legs between his highness and the bandit."

"Through a hole in the hide I planted a straight right upon the desperado's conk. Needless to say, he went to grass, so to speak, and the police immediately hurried him away in duress via, old chap."

"I at once removed me headpiece, and, being recognized by his highness, was decorated with the order of the double cross upon the spot—I mean upon me manly chest, old top."

WANTED TO GIVE PROOF OF CHRISTIAN SCIENCE
Alleged Insane Virginian Sends Telegrams to President Wilson and Others.

Fred J. Thompson gave his account as thirty-two years, and said he was from Dry Fork, Pittsylvania county, Va., last night when Detective Cornwell arrested him and held him to answer a charge of insanity. A bank book taken from him showed a small deposit in the First National Bank of Danville, Va.

What He Said in Telegrams.
The copy of the telegram he said he sent to the President reads: "If you desire absolute proof of Christian Science drop your duties and visit me at room No. 23, Lexington Hotel, this morning. Use every human precaution; travel incognito; shall I expect you?"

Would Register "by Time."
A railroad ticket taken from Thompson at police headquarters when he was searched was evidence of the fact that the conductor had failed to collect his fare. Last night Thompson entered the Raleigh Hotel, placed his watch on the counter and demanded that he be registered by time, although, it is stated, there were no hands on his timepiece.

YACHT CLUB MEMBERS PLAN OYSTER FEASTS

Annual Roasts of Two Local Organizations Scheduled for Tomorrow.

Both the Capital and National yacht clubs of this city have arranged for their annual outings and oyster roasts tomorrow, the former at Marshall Hall and the latter at River View. At the headquarters of the clubs, at the foot of 4th and 8th streets, power craft owners are today making preparations for the run down the river.

Races to Marshall Hall.

The Capital Yacht Club, in addition to the oyster roast, has arranged for races to Marshall Hall between its sailing craft in one class and the power boats in the other, and the winner of each event will be presented with a "Knight's Seamanship" as a prize. The race for sailing craft will start this evening at 4 o'clock, and the entries will be the yachts Nememoshah, L. F. Hewins, owner; the Freya, George H. Briggs, owner; the Serena, B. C. Crutt, owner, and the Bess, Charles E. James, owner.

Reduced Rates Via Ches. & Ohio Ry.

NEW JUVENILE COURT URGED BY MALACHITES

Proper Care of Children Declared Essential to the Nation's Welfare.

The need of a new juvenile court and detention home for children in the District was advocated in resolutions adopted by the Knights and Ladies of the Malachites of the World last night at a meeting at 1111 U street northwest.

William H. Price offered the resolutions, setting forth that inasmuch as the children of all races are taken to the juvenile court for misdeeds and other reasons, it is only well and proper that they should be conducted into a well appointed place with proper ventilation and environments.

Supreme Governor W. A. Adams, the district deputy, delivered an address in which he declared that any nation that forgets its children and their welfare is tearing the very vitals away from the body politic, and will soon fall into decadence.

Arrangements were completed at the meeting for the first grand reception of the organization to be held the evening of October 22 at Odd Fellows' Hall, 1606 M street northwest.

STORY OF PANAMA CANAL.

Col. Goethals Gives Indorsement to Work of Frederic J. Haskins.

While the Panama canal will ever stand as a monument to American skill, efficiency and endurance, it is suggested that in another sense it will be a monument to Col. George W. Goethals. So complete has been the command of this one man over the great undertaking that has united the world by dividing the land, that when he says that a book contains an accurate and dependable account of the construction of the canal it is testimony that cannot lightly be set aside.

Big Feeling

By WALT MASON

How trying is that haughty gent who's all swelled up with self content each blessed minute: who arrogantly stares you down, and seems to say: 'I own the town, and all that's in it!'

He struts along the village streets and doubtless thinks the folks he meets are him adoring; he might come down two pegs or three if he could hear them bitterly his folly scoring.

No man should swagger till he's shown he occupies a place alone, won by his labors; till he has gained such great renown he has excuse for looking down upon his neighbors. And men who win that sort of thing have too much sense to strut, by jing, they're meek and humble; they know that those who swell around with eyes too high to see the ground will some day stumble.

Not wealth or fame or boundless power should swell our bosoms for an hour—we are but mortals; the sexton gets us all at last, and when our little jaunt is past, the gray world chortles. One stiff that's buried in the mold is just as stark and just as cold as any other; the big man, planted, has no edge upon the pauper; by the hedge, his little brother.
