FINDS PELLAGRA CAUSED BY AN UNBALANCED DIET

Public Health Service Believes a Proper Varied Food Will Eradicate the Disease.

That the substitution of a mixed, well balanced varied diet for the restricted, one-sided diet will prevent and eradicate the dread disease of pellagra is the conclusion of the federal public health service commission which has been investigating the pellagra problem in the south.

In a report today the commission, which is headed by Dr. Joseph Goldberger, announces that as a result of its investigations it has reached the conclusion that pellagra is not a communicable disease, but is essentially of dietary origin. Pellagra, the commission finds, is dependent on some yet undetermined fault in a diet in which the animal or vegetable component is disproportionately small and the non-leguminous vegetable component is disproportionately large. It does not depend in those who consume a good, rich mixed and well balanced and varied diet. Those afflicted with the disease should be fed an abundance of fresh milk, eggs, fresh lean meat, beans and peas.

Cannot Cure All.
"We are not to be understood as saying that all cases will, or can, in this or in any other way be saved," says the commission. "We fear that there will always be patients who even in their first attacks are, and will be beyond hope of recovery."

The commission recommends that the people of the south, particularly the poor, be urged to eat a varied daily diet, articles of food containing the leguminous proteins, especially during the late fall, winter and early spring months.

Better Winter Diet.
"The evidence is daily becoming stronger that the eventual eradication of pellagra will depend largely on the successful introduction of our common dried legumes into the winter dietary. A valuable step in this direction would be an increase in the cultivation of some of the varieties of beans and peas and their preservation in the dried state for winter consumption."

In Memoriam.

BIAS Sacred to the memory of NELLIE BIAS, whose soul took its flight October 26, 1914.
Dear, loving mother, you were a host; all this time I miss you, and I miss you. But often feel your spirit is near. To give comfort and cheer. HER LOVELY DAUGHTER, ALMA SIMMS.

KILROY In sad but loving remembrance of our dear mother and grandmother, SOPHIA KILROY, who died one year ago today, October 26, 1913.
One year ago, dear mother, your voice was forever still.
Your love was forever with me. With loving hearts we were consoled. "The life you lead was full of joy. And love, dear mother, the thought brings sorrow and pain. We miss you, dear mother, we are called. We will be with you again." HER LOVELY DAUGHTER, SARAH GRAHAM, AND GRANDDAUGHTERS.
