MONROE DOCTRINE OF BETTER DEFENSE

Plea for Powerful Navy and Shore Batteries to Protect U. S. Coast.

MONROE DOCTRINE THEME OF PANAMAN MINISTER

Resolution Adopted by Organization Representing the States in Session at New Willard Hotel.

The Monroe doctrine is threatened and that the people of all the American republics are closely interested in the question of national defense now before the people of the United States, was asserted by Eusebia A. Morales, minister of Panama, at the luncheon of the Navy League in association with the conference on national defense in the New Willard this afternoon.

He declared that the United States has served notice on the entire world that the American continent cannot be the object of conquest or armed aggression, and that the nations established by treaty and the nations existing by their free and independent existence. This declaration now faces threatening realities.

Purpose of Organization.

Explanation of just what organization has been formed to crystallize the wisdom of the American people in making a concerted demand upon the legislative and administrative arms of the government to provide such navy and coast defenses was given by speakers at the luncheon.

It is the sense of the Navy League of the United States that the American people in order to provide for their security at home and abroad, for the maintenance of the peace and for the inspiration their republic from its foundation, must create an efficient and un-American navy which will be a national honor and a national defense.

Framed by Committee.

The committee which drafted this resolution was appointed by John Calan O'Loughlin, president of the Navy League conference, and consisted of Mr. O'Loughlin as chairman, E. A. Bennett of New York, Robert Meser of New York and A. H. Dadmun, secretary of the league.

Among the speakers at the luncheon were Col. John Temple Graves, president; Senator Ashurst of Arizona, Rev. Randolph H. McKim, Simon Wolf, Dr. Eusebia A. Morales, minister from the Republic of Panama; John A. Logan, secretary of the Navy League, and former United States Senator; and Mrs. Mary S. Lockwood, a founder of the D. A. R.

Chairman O'Loughlin's Address.

He said, in part: "In the name of the executive committee of the Navy League of the United States, I take great pleasure in welcoming you to this conference. You are participating in and shaping—your are, in fact, creating—a great movement of vital importance to the nation."

REPUBLICANS TALK OVER 1916 TICKET

Are Insisting on Combination That Will Satisfy the Progressive Element.

FORMER SENATOR ROOT IS A STRONG FAVORITE

Sentiment Favoring His Nomination to First Place Increasing—Justice Hughes Hinted as Probability.

"Root and Borah," "Weeks and Hadley," "Burton and Cummins," "Fairbanks and any good progressive." This is the way the republicans are talking just now. Two features are conspicuous in the Pennsylvania gossip—one, the increasing talk about Elihu Root for first place, and the other, the tacit understanding that a pronounced progressive must be chosen for second place.

And here is another bit of political gossip: Pennsylvania is going to declare for Senator Penrose as her presidential choice. Absolutely; that's what's on the cards, for a verity. Not that Senator Penrose has any illusions about his candidacy nor seeks the ephemeral glory of honorary mention; there are utilitarian reasons for the course.

Blow Aimed at Gov. Brumbaugh.

It is said that Gov. Brumbaugh, who has been "also mentioned" for the candidacy for the nomination, is "in the head" with the Pennsylvania management, and this is one way to deprive him of his striped candy. For another thing, it has been a time-honored custom among Pennsylvania republicans to honor their senators with complimentary votes in national conventions. They did it for Cameron, for Quay and for Knox.

To be sure, that was in the good old convention days when bosses held their sway, and now the delegates are to be chosen at the primary, the amazing parallel given Senator Penrose for re-election at the primaries leads to the belief among Pennsylvania republicans that he is still the great power in the state.

Root Sentiment Growing.

The sentiment in favor of Root has been steadily growing for some time, according to the unvarying tenor of reports coming to politicians who are keeping in touch with the feeling of the country at large. It is realized, however, that pessimistic views as to his election are held by masses of republicans in the central west, and promotion of his candidacy for the nomination will be an uphill task.

There is thought to be no doubt that the progressive wing will be naturally accorded second place on the ticket and asked to choose their own man. Borah or Cummins is the name mentioned by eastern republicans. So will Hadley, if he can get Roosevelt's "O. K." and if his health permits.

Name of Hughes in Horizon.

So much for the gossip of the day. Now hear the sentiments of one big republican. Would that his name could be used, as he is of national-wide prominence and himself presidential timber. He says:

The company always has opposed the closed shop, and many prominent union leaders are doubtful if they can induce the company to agree to it now.
