INTERNATIONAL LAW TOPIC OF SPEAKERS Dr. Otero of Colombia Declares for a Strict Policy of Non-Intervention.

REGARDED OF NECESSITY FOR PAN-AMERICAN UNITY Says Foreigners Should Abide by Local Laws—Others Address Conference Section.

Attacks on Sovereignty. "The instances are many in which the powers, contrary to the most elementary principles of international law, have intervened on behalf of their subjects, and have to that end attacked the sovereignty of Latin American states, claiming to place their action on the grounds of the unstable character of the internal order and on the little confidence they had in the administration of justice in these countries."

Support of Monroe Doctrine. Unqualified support of the Monroe doctrine and what he characterized as its complement, the Drago doctrine, was given by Dr. Manuel Cavalcanti of Brazil in an address on problems of international law peculiar to America.

Elaborates Argentine Policy. Dr. Enrique Gil, delegate from the law school of the National University of Buenos Aires, discussed pan-Americanism "in the light of the traditional international policy of Argentina."

Pre-eminently the Florida Route. The existing industrial secondary school," he said, "offers excellent opportunities for young people who are able to enter a higher institution of learning, but it depends the solution of all our international questions and doubts, viz: peace and unity, in order to fill with honor and glory the place which civilized humanity has allotted us."

regions of South America and regulators of the climate and the salubrity of the regions lying far in the interior of the continent. Source of Raw Material. "The forests are a source of raw material. In temperate countries wood is the chief product of the forest. In tropical forests, such as most of the South American forests are, the by-products, such as rubber, dyes, tannic acid, are frequently more important than the wood itself. South America, on a whole, is deficient in coal deposits and other mineral fuel and possesses only a limited and localized source of water power. Wood, therefore, must be not only the chief source of building material but also the main source of fuel in a large part of the continent. The forests of South America are very little known. A survey is necessary, together with a thorough study of the different species composing the forests and of their physical and chemical properties."
