DR. ELIZABETH CORBETT DIES IN HER 83D YEAR

Was Sister of Dr. Wiley and One of Country's First Three Women Physicians.

Dr. Elizabeth Wiley Corbett, sister of Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, died at the Takoma Sanitarium yesterday, in the eighty-third year of her age. She was born on a backwoods farm near the village of Kent, Jefferson county, Ind., July 12, 1833. There were no public schools at that period, and very few private schools, but she learned well of her father at home. At an early age she began teaching school at Madison, Ind. When she had accumulated a little money she went to Antioch College, Ohio, then under the presidency of Horace Mann. Leaving Antioch College, she went to New York to study medicine. It was difficult to find a medical college at that time which admitted women, but she finally found a course in instruction open to her in a hydro-therapeutic institute. Having received a certificate from that institution, she decided to engage in her professional career in San Francisco. She crossed the Isthmus of Panama with her mother and brother, in 1858, long before the opening of a transcontinental railway. She pursued her professional career with marked success for twenty years.

"Walked" European Hospitals. She then went to Europe in the spring of 1878, and spent the spring, summer and part of the autumn in studying in the hospitals of Paris and Vienna. Returning from Europe, she entered the medical department of the University of Michigan in the autumn of 1878, and received the degree of doctor of medicine in the spring of 1879. Her return to San Francisco, she resumed the practice of medicine for the rest of her active career, except during the year 1890. She spent that year in Paris with her son, who was just completing his course in architecture in the Ecole des Beaux Arts. Returning again to San Francisco, she resumed the practice of medicine until the great earthquake of 1906. After that date she went to live with her son, Harvey Wiley Corbett, in New York city. It fell to her to take charge of baby Harvey Wiley at his birth, by reason of the illness of his mother. She was very proud of this chapter in her history, and by reason of her success with primitive nutritional appliances, claimed to be the "mother" of the pure food law. Dr. Corbett began her professional career when the woman physician was practically unknown. The two associated woman physicians of her time were Emily and Elizabeth Blackwell, sister of Harvey B. Blackwell, the husband of Lucy Stone. On retiring from her active practice, several years ago, Dr. Corbett was elected honorary life member of the American Medical Association. Dr. Corbett is survived by her son, Harvey Wiley Corbett, an architect of New York city, who designed the City Hall of Springfield, Mass., and the Maryland Institute of Baltimore.

UNITY OF ACTION URGED. Suggestion Made That Organizations Favoring Preparedness Co-Operate. A resolution urging co-operation and unity of action on the part of the many national and state organizations aiming for increased efficiency in the military and naval service of the United States by the formation of a central conference committee, through which a united and consistent appeal may be made to the public, was adopted at a special meeting of the board of directors of the Association for the National Service, held Friday at the headquarters, Metropolitan National Bank building. This action came about as the result of an investigation of the overlapping of energy on the part of the many defense organizations in the country, which has caused misunderstanding by the setting forth of different aims. The officers of the association are: president, Lieut. Gen. S. B. M. Young; vice presidents, Maj. Duncan C. Phillips and Guston Borglum; secretary-treasurer, H. H. Sheets, and legal counsel, Charles L. Fralley. The board of directors is composed of Messrs. Young, Sheets and Fralley.

Urged to Live Unselfish Lives. Members of the graduating class of the Maryland State Agricultural College, College Park, Md., were urged to go forth to lives of service to their fellowmen, by Rev. John McDowell, of Baltimore, in his baccalaureate sermon to the senior class yesterday. Wednesday commencement exercises are to be held.

MIDSHIPMEN SAIL FOR THEIR PRACTICE CRUISE First, Second and Third Classes, Nearly 800, Leave Annapolis for Summer Training at Sea. Special Correspondence of The Star. ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 5.—The midshipmen of the first, second and third classes, nearly 800 in number, sailed this morning on their annual summer practice cruise. The future officers are distributed aboard the three battleships comprising the cruising squadron, viz: Missouri (flagship), Ohio and Wisconsin. Capt. Edward W. Eberle, superintendent of the Naval Academy, is the squadron commander, with Lieut. Commander Thomas R. Kurtz as his aid. The commanding officers of the respective ships are: Missouri, Commander H. H. Hough; Ohio, Commander James J. Raby; Wisconsin, Commander Watt C. Cluervius. The ships, which had been in the roads for the last several weeks, weighed anchor shortly before 10 o'clock and steamed slowly toward the bay. They will go direct to sea, heading for Culebra, Panama, thence to the naval station at Guantanamo, which will be as far south as they will touch. From there they will proceed to Provincetown, Mass., which will be the main base of operations. Various ports along the New England coast will be visited, including a stop at Portland, Me. The cruise will last until the latter part of August.
