The Misfit

Breathes there a man with soul so tame that when the home team wins a game he doesn't throw a fit? Who doesn't help to make a noise or take his place among the boys who on the bleachers sit? If such there be go set him down as an incubance to the town, a brake upon its wheel; for any fellow is a crime who doesn't at the base ball time a glow of rapture feel. If he can view unmoved the score which shows us how the home team bore the foe when of the map, the soul within him is decayed; our councilmen should take a spade and plant that kind of chap. For he's the man who always grunts when we'd put on improvement stunts and pave the village streets, who always beefs about his tax, and sticks to pennies tight as wax, and prices downward beats. He is the skate who never gives much satisfaction while he lives, whose worth we can't discern; but when at last he cashes in, the people raise a joyful din, and costly fireworks burn.
