The year book committee (Mrs. L. B. Stine, chairman) is completing the year book for the coming year. The chapter has studied revolutionary and colonial history, and for the past two years has been engaged in a history of the National Capital. The papers for the last session are being preserved in the chapter's archives. The text book, "A History of the National Capital," is being prepared to be presented to the library at Continental Memorial Hall. The historian announced that the scrapbook for which the members have been collecting material is to be commenced this summer and will be ready by the end of the year. The chapter decorated the statue of Franklin on Decoration day. Mrs. Rufus Barnard, chairman of the committee in charge, shortly will present the flag to the Gallinger playground, Miss Catherine Whitcomb, one of the members, being the director. A flag also will be presented to the beginning of the summer school of which Mrs. T. C. Homiller, a member, is the superintendent, when the flag church is completed.

The last paper in the series on the history of the National Capital was presented by Miss Reble Patterson Hamer. The subject was "The White House." Roll call subject was "Our Flag," and the responses were patriotic and historical. Mrs. Charles F. Robinson was to have given a recitation, but with Mr. Bobbing she went to her summer home on Onetida lake, New York. A social hour, with refreshments, closed the last meeting for 1916. A picnic is being planned for some Saturday afternoon during the summer months.

After a luncheon, gathered about an open fire in the big living room, letters were read from absent members and other friends, and music, stories, conversation and fancy work made the otherwise gloomy hours of the afternoon speed all too quickly. Ruffs for Everybody.
For gowns and gloves and caps and tippets are beauty's sauces, spice and sippets. So said the poet Hood a long time ago; and if we substitute ruffs, which are the tippets of the moment, we have a modern enough verse. Everybody wears a ruff this summer, and they add much to beauty, indeed. What kind of ruff you shall wear is a question you must decide for yourself. Tulle is becoming to one, silk covered with silk, and a loop. Sometimes it fastens under a bow. Sometimes it ends in long tassels which are looped or tied together. Perhaps the newest ostrich ruff is one of uncutted fronds. This sort is a bit expensive, but very soft and beautiful. Two shades or colors of ostrich are often combined. White is used with any color—blue or brown or green or black. Tan, too, is combined with color. Sometimes just the tips of some of the fronds are white or tan. Some of the new ruffs are made of taffeta silk, made into points, many of them, and arranged in a full collar about the throat. These are still becoming to some persons. They, too, are more durable than tulle.

Eggplant Patties.
MOLD the eggplant pulp to make patties or croquettes. If necessary roll them in flour to hold their shape. Dip them in egg, then in flour, then egg, and last in cracker crumbs. Fry in hot oil or fat.

Crystallized Mint Leaves.
LEAVE three leaves on each stem, then make the usual fondant strip, but boil longer. Dip the leaves in the hot sirup, then spread carefully on buttered paper and set in a cool place to crystallize. They will retain the original mint flavor.
