HUNTER. In sad but loving remembrance of our dear brother, SMITH HUNTER, who departed this life two years ago today, October 9, 1914.
More and more each day we miss you. Friends may think the wound is healed; But they little know the sorrow. That lies in our hearts concealed.
There are thoughts that never perish, And how precious is your name; In life we loved you dearly, In life I loved you dearly.
And in death I do the same.
BY HIS LOVING WIFE ROSE.

I never knew the pain you bore, I only knew you passed away, And I would have been so glad, If I had seen him at the last, And held his dying hand, And heard the last word from his lips I would not feel so sad.

BREAD PRICES RISE AS WEIGHT LESSENS

Federal Bureau Shows a Steady Increase in Cost in Comparison of Figures.
Study of bread weights in various parts of the country just completed by the bureau of labor statistics of the Department of Labor shows a steady increase in price, through lessening of the weight, according to a report on the work issued today by the bureau.
Basing the price on sixteen ounces of dough as weighed at the bakery, the report shows that in this city the cost of the delivered loaf August 15, 1913, was 5.2 cents; August 15, 1914, 5.1 cents; August 15, 1915, 5.8 cents, and August 15, 1916, 5.9 cents.

Table with 4 columns: City, 1913, 1914, 1915, 1916. Lists bread prices for various cities including Atlanta, Baltimore, Birmingham, Chicago, Cincinnati, Dallas, Denver, Minneapolis, New Haven, New Orleans, New York, Portland, St. Louis, San Francisco, and Washington.

Variance in Sixteen Cities.
The following table, says the report, "shows the price of a loaf of bread weighed sixteen ounces before baking in sixteen important industrial cities of the United States August 15 of each year, 1913, 1914, 1915 and 1916. For instance, the weight of the five-cent loaf, as reported from Atlanta, varied so that the price of a loaf weighing sixteen ounces before baking was 5.8 cents August 15, 1913; 5.4 cents August 15, 1914; 6.1 cents August 15, 1915, and 6.3 cents August 15, 1916.
