Millions of Feet Never Have a Corn

It's a Needless Deformity

THIS is to people who still suffer painful and unsightly corns. It is to say that joyful hours need not be wrecked in this way. And pretty feet need never be made ugly. Millions of people know this, and corns are a banished nuisance. You can prove it by a moment's effort. And from that hour you'll say good-bye to corns.

Not in These Ways

But you can't do that by paring. That's a risky operation, and it never ends a corn. You cannot do it by old-time treatments, harsh and inefficient. They are too uncertain. Soreness too often follows. You need not do it in a messy way. Or in any way that affects the healthy tissue. No agent will recommend such methods.

The One Right Way

A well-known chemist, after studying corns for some 25 years, invented Blue-jay. He selected Bauer & Black, who are world-famed makers of surgical dressings, to carry his method out. It comes in an ideal form. A pad protects the corn while the method acts, so the pain stops instantly. The wonderful wax which ends the corn is centered on the corn alone. A thin adhesive strip mean its finish, before it even starts to hurt. Every month, millions of corns are being ended this way. And the time must come when this will be the universal method. Don't wait longer. Watch the results on one corn. Then you will laugh at corns.

BAUER & BLACK, Makers of Surgical Dressings, etc., Chicago and New York holds all in place and makes the wrapping comfortable. Blue-jay is applied in a jiffy. Then you forget the corn. The bit of wax gently undermines the corn. Within two days the whole corn can be removed. Some old tough corns require a second application—about one corn in ten. But the results are certain. No corn can resist this method.

Prove This Tonight

Prove these facts, if you have a corn, before another day. It will mean perpetual freedom. After that, at the first sign of a corn, you will place a Blue-jay on it. And that will
