DOUGHBOY CALLED ARMY'S BACKBONE

Col. Paul B. Malone Encourages Rifle Practice Before National Association.

Out of every 100 men called to the colors of the United States in the wars of the future sixty-six will be infantrymen; out of every 100 men, provided the nation fights against an enemy with the efficiency of Germany, thirty-one American soldiers will be killed if promotion of rifle practice be not encouraged to a greater extent than in the past.

These assertions were made in an address by Lieut. Col. Paul B. Malone, late of the 23d Infantry, commanding that regiment in the famous night at Chateau Thierry, and now in charge of the school of rifle practice at Camp Benning, Ga., at the annual meeting of the National Rifle Association last night at the New Willard.

Col. Malone made a strong plea for the doughboy, "the titan of arms and the supreme arbiter of the destinies of nations," and said the new school at Camp Benning will teach improved efficiency in the use of the rifle and bayonet.

"The rifle is the supreme weapon of the infantry," he said, "and the small arms of the future. We must encourage civilian rifle practice, for out of such practice come the successful fighters of the future."

Col. Malone read Gen. Pershing's message of October, 1917, to the War Department, in which the general said that if the war was to be won for the allies every American soldier must be trained in the proper use of the rifle and bayonet.

Had Disregarded Rifle.

"Our allies had entirely disregarded the use of the rifle as an offensive weapon," Col. Malone said, "and Gen. Pershing saw that with the rifle alone could be won the victories which would end the war. When we arrived in France the settled policy of the allies was one of limited objectives—that is, pushing a trench, digging in and waiting for the field artillery to come up before starting forward again. Pershing and his vigorous use of the rifle stopped that, and after Chateau Thierry, where my regiment helped to stop the boches in their hands when going over the top and using them as handies for their bayonets, American soldiers carried them at the ready and were capable of exterminating machine gun nests whenever they started their nasty popping."

In a plea for the "doughboy" Col. Malone said:

"Our victory was all due to the proper use of the rifle in open warfare in the hands of the doughboy, the plain, unadorned 'footlocker.' Yet the doughboy is the supreme character in whose hands statesmen place those questions which national honor forbids to be settled by arbitration or by league of nations."

American Marksmen Excelled.

Col. P. A. Wolfe, executive officer in charge of the interallied rifle matches at Le Mans, France, late in 1918, told of American soldiers' outstanding marksmanship at the matches. Maj. Richard D. La Garde, adjutant general of the District of Columbia, reported on the work of the office of the director of civilian marksmanship.

Col. William Libbey of New Jersey was re-elected to the presidency of the association; Lieut. Col. William C. Harlike, U. S. M. C. of Washington, first vice president; Lieut. Col. Smith W. Brookhart, second vice president; Col. George W. Burch, third vice president; Lieut. Col. David M. Flynn of New Jersey and Brig. Gen. Fred H. Phillips of Washington were continued in their positions of treasurer and secretary, respectively.

Col. M. A. Winter, president of the Washington Rifle Club; Brig. Gen. W. W. Moore and Col. Morton C. Mumma were elected to the executive committee.

DEAN WILL EXPLAIN SMITH COLLEGE NEEDS

Miss Ada Comstock Addresses Club of Washington Tomorrow

The underlying reasons for the approaching financial campaign on behalf of Smith College, Northampton, Mass., are to be set forth by Miss Ada Comstock, dean of this educational institution for women, at a special meeting of the Smith College Club of Washington, scheduled for tomorrow evening at the Arts Club, 2017 I street northwest.

Miss Comstock, who is to be the principal speaker of the occasion, will explain why Smith College needs, and needs urgently, the $1,000,000 which the drive is intended and expected to raise.

Parents of all undergraduates of Smith living in the National Capital have been especially asked to attend this meeting, and a general invitation is extended to not only all club members, but to all alumnae and former students of Smith living in the Washington, which is the central point of one of sixty campaign districts.

Hostesses for Meeting.

Hostesses for tomorrow night's function, which will also partake of the nature of a reception to the visiting dean, and at which refreshments will be served, include Miss Edith J. Coon, Miss Frances Carpenter, Mrs. H. G. Nichols, Dr. Caroline Kurnhold and Miss Mary Colgan, president of the club.

During her stay in the city Dean Comstock will visit at the home of one of her classmates, Dr. Emma Lutz Erving, 1621 Connecticut avenue.

According to a preliminary statement issued by the Smith College fund committee, with headquarters in New York, the college was cradled in poverty, and only excellent administration enabled its financial resources during the ensuing forty-four years, to make possible its remarkable growth.

Outlined Academic Development.

When the present president, Dr. William Allan Neilson, was inaugurated it was decided that he ought to be relieved of the responsibility of financial affairs and devote himself entirely to academic questions. He outlined the scope of the desired academic development to the alumnae council, which took full responsibility therefor, assisted by the alumnae association. The sum at first hastily decided on, $2,000,000, has been tentatively changed to $5,000,000. The further review of the case places the minimum for imperative immediate requirements at $3,000,000. The national campaign begins Saturday, January 17.

WINS SCHOLASTIC HONOR.

J. Gibson Kincheloe One of 17 for Virginia University Roll.

J. Gibson Kincheloe of Upperville, Va., former student at Episcopal High School at Alexandria, Va., was one of the seventeen men from four states to win a place on the scholastic honor roll of the academy of the University of Washington and Lee University in the fall term of the 1919-1920 session, according to an announcement made by President Henry Louis Smith.

The seventeen honor men head a list of 450 students from all parts of the country.

CENTRAL TO PERPETUATE MEMORY OF ITS HEROES

High School Alumni Names Committee—Subscription Lists Soon to Open.

Fourteen men, who at one time or another attended Central High School, lost their lives in the military and naval services of the United States in the great war. The alumni of the school now propose to provide a memorial to these men, possibly a bronze tablet to be placed in the school building on Clinton street.

At the recent annual reunion of the Alumni Association the matter of raising funds by general subscription was discussed and the formation of a special committee to take charge of the enterprise was planned. At a meeting of the association's executive committee Tuesday night the following were named to form the war memorial committee:

Mr. A. Lyon, class of '85, chairman; Emory M. Wilson, class of '89; Miss Helen Coolidge, '00; Paul E. Lesh, '04; and Margaret Hudson, '14.

A meeting of the committee has been called for next Saturday afternoon, at which plans for securing contributions will be considered. At present more than $400 has been subscribed, almost wholly by the alumni. It is expected that upon the definite announcement of the opening of subscription lists this sum will be rapidly increased.

The fourteen who died in the war service of the country and in whose honor the memorial is to be erected are: Howard O. Cook, class of '88; Alan O. Clephane, class of '91; Bertram Collins, class of '09; Hiram E. Cash, class of '10; Clinton W. Newbold, class of '10; David Oettinger, class of '10; George B. Chew, Jr., class of '11; Leonard H. Ott, class of '12; Percy Stein, class of '12; Russell D. Tibbets, class of '12; Lawrence O. Wychman, class of '12; Chester W. Buchanan, class of '17; John W. Saxon, class of '17; and Everett W. Gottlieb, class of '18.
