

DR. HILL SPEAKS ON "OUR MISSION" TO THE S. OF A. R.

Calls Upon Americans to Combat "Enemies Within Our Gates."

Summarizing the acts and sacrifices which brought the United States to the prosperity and freedom it is enjoying today, David Jayne Hill, president of the District of Columbia Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, at the "ladies' night" meeting of the society at Rauscher's last night, called upon Americans to combat the "enemies within our gates, who are more dangerous to our republic than any external foe."

Dr. Hill gave a short review of the principles for which the American forefathers fought, and recited the beneficial results. The topic of his address was "Our Mission."

Excerpts From Address.

"While our society has its social side," he said, "and is based on the community of companionship coming down to us from our forefathers of the revolution, our main purpose is to maintain the principles of government inherited from the separation from Great Britain and the establishment of this republic."

"The fathers were both negative and positive. They were opposed to the rule of George III, and they objected to being ruled by an absentee government in which they were not represented—the parliament of England."

"But they were not fighting for mere negations. They were devoted to some positive principles that were new in the history of government. They had inherent liberties secured by the Magna Charta and the bill of rights, possessed by all Englishmen."

"Man's Inherent Rights."

"But they believed there were certain inherent rights that belong to men because they are human beings—rights which government had not given and could not rightly take away—such as right to life, to liberty, to the pursuit of happiness and to acquire and enjoy property as a means of happiness. They believed further that these rights should be guaranteed in a fundamental law, a written constitution which mere legislative acts could set aside, but which should serve as a standard to determine what is legal and what is not legal."

"They intended that there should be no sanguinary contest over these rights or guarantees. And so they put them under the protection of a competent judiciary to insure the application of fundamental principles."

"Rights Now Attacked."

"It is this system of guaranteed and judicially protected individual rights which is now attacked, secretly and openly, by the enemies within our gates."

"These are more dangerous to our republic than any external foe. We can defend ourselves against any foreign enemy. We must defend ourselves against this most insidious of all conceivable enemies—those among us paid and encouraged from abroad, or actuated by a sense of personal greed first to overthrow our institutions and then to take possession of this prosperous land, which has been made prosperous by the principles established by our fathers. This is our mission."

"The Nevins Trio furnished the music of the evening. Following supper, there was dancing until 1 o'clock."

Platform Occupants.

Among those who were on the platform with Dr. Hill were: George Thatcher Guernsey, president general of the Daughters of the American Revolution; George Richards Richards of the Sons of the Revolution; District of Columbia Society; Dr. J. B. G. Bulloch, president general of the Order of Washington; and Judge Reifensnyder of the executive committee of the Sons of the Revolution.

Announcement was made that a committee meeting to arrange a program for the joint patriotic celebration of George Washington's birthday on February 22 had been arranged. Plans will be announced at a later date.

Members of the reception and floor committee last night were: Meritt L. Dawkins, chairman; Claude N. Bennett, Dr. Thomas J. W. Bryan, J. C. K. Campbell, Eugene C. Copenhaver, Frederick Neal Carr, John Paul Barnett, Capt. J. J. Gore, Charles H. Jonas, Ben F. Larcombe, Jr., Dr. Herbert MacNamee, Frank Edward MacInnis, William A. Miller, Fred D. Owen, Charles O. Parks, Henry W. Samson, Sidney F. Smith, Eugene E. Stevens, Andrew J. Tracy, Robert C. Tracy, Capt. Richard J. Van Deusen, William E. Vaughan, Jr., Lawrence Washington and Thomas A. Weedon.

DOUBT REPORTED DRIVE ON REDS IN CAUCASUS

Both English and French Papers Discount Claim 200,000 Troops Will Be Sent.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, January 21.—Officials today declined to comment on the newspaper reports from Paris that the supreme council would send 200,000 troops to the Caucasus to oppose the bolsheviks.

It was said that no official word relative to the matter had been received from the peace conference.

The general attitude of the newspapers seems to be to refrain from editorially commenting on the report until further information has been received.

PARIS, January 21 (Havas).—Reports that large expeditionary forces are to be sent into the Caucasus by the British are not taken credence by the Temps. The newspaper says it is assured that the project contemplates sending only a few thousand units, and especially material for the peoples of the Caucasus, whose independence recently has been recognized. Such aid, it is stated, would enable these populations to fight the menace of a bolshevik invasion.

"Y" TO ASK $25,000 AND NOT $125,000

Committee Cuts Quota of Next Week's Drive Because of Situation Here.

Announcement, expected by those concerned to meet the approval of the philanthropically inclined public of Washington, was made today by Clifford L. Johnson, director of the Y. M. C. A. campaign to raise funds, next week, that the amount to be asked will be $25,000 instead of $125,000, as originally intended. In reaching this decision the committee of the board of managers in special charge of the campaign sacrifices a program of expansion and debt-reducing that, it is explained, would have greatly enhanced the value of the association to the young men of the community, whose applications for housing and educational facilities have swamped the present accommodations.

Reasons for Change.

The committee took into consideration the existing attitude of business and professional men and women, noted for their generosity, toward the constant appeals to them for money for one worthy cause or another, and concluded that the people should not be asked to stand an additional tax at this time, however urgent the necessity. The fact that the government employees are receiving salaries that are not commensurate with the cost of living also entered largely into the recommendation for reduction of the quota, and the great number of drives in the past, present

REV. J. B. HAMILTON DIES.

Brother of Bishop J. W. Hamilton Was Minister Fifty Years.

Word has been received in Washington of the death Tuesday at St.

Petersburg, Fla., of Rev. Dr. Jay Benson Hamilton, brother of Bishop John W. Hamilton, chancellor of the American University.

Dr. Hamilton had gone to St. Petersburg to recuperate from an illness. He served fifty years as a minister of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and was author of a number of books defending the Bible against what he considered destructive criticism.

He also drafted the law by which the retired minister is made a pastor emeritus in the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Dr. Hamilton is survived by two brothers, Bishop John W. Hamilton and Wilbur Dean Hamilton, a well known artist of Boston; a sister, Mrs. S. L. Parker of Northampton, Mass., and three daughters.

Alfred Parsons, Painter, Dies.

LONDON, January 20.—Alfred Parsons, the painter, died at Broadway, Worcestershire, Friday. He was noted as a landscape painter and an illustrator. He was born in 1847.

Expansion Program Abandoned.

It was originally planned to seek a sum that would permit of alterations to the building at 1723 G street northwest making accommodations for 1,000 more students in the school body, supply equipment for the laboratory and afford a means of remodeling 1728 G street northwest for the boys' department, when it would be forced to move from 1732 by the improvements for the educational departments.

"This project must now be abandoned temporarily," Mr. Johnson said today, "unless the friends of the association, appreciating the unselfish sacrifice made by the campaign committee, should respond to the forthcoming appeal for annual expenses by contributing a sum larger than is called for. In this event all money received over the allotted $25,000 will be devoted to the expansion program."

"No change will be made in the campaign organization," Mr. Johnson added. "The first meeting of the division leaders, team captains and workers will take place Friday afternoon, January 23, at 5:30 o'clock, and daily meetings will be held thereafter at the same hour, beginning Monday, January 26, and ending Monday, February 2, the day the campaign will end."

New Portuguese Cabinet Formed.

LISBON, January 21 (by the Associated Press).—A new cabinet has been formed under the premiership of Domingos Pereira, a democrat. It is composed of four democrats, four liberals, two independents and one socialist. Melo Barreto, former minister of foreign affairs, will resume his old portfolio in the new ministry.
