Two former kindergarten pupils of Miss Weller—Nicholas Gill and Margarita Lee—carrying daisies, were attendants.

Mrs. Coolidge is Guest of Women's Foundation.

No event has added more to the charm of June days in the capital than the tea at Dean place yesterday afternoon held by the Women's National Foundation, with Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the Vice President, as the ranking official guest. The giant forest trees, which crown the summit of the hill on which the mansion stands are so thick in their midsummer foliage as to defy a high sun, while the broad veranda and the open doors of the residence afforded a perfect shelter. While landscape gardening has been neglected at Dean place for some years, the trees have been so cut away as to afford several splendid views of beauty points about the capital. The old planting of large beds of variegated hollyhocks near the house, and the clearing of shrubbery also enhanced the beauty of the scene.
