Attorney General Daugherty has proposed as a sentiment for the New Year that "no nobler resolution may be taken by any inhabitant of this republic than that he will live the life of a 100 per cent American."

Board of Trade Committee Reports Results of Study of Conditions.

That Congress has appropriated money for the repaving of streets in good condition in the District and neglected "mud-holes" and streets in the settled part of the city which are in desperate need of repair, was the sentiment expressed yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the streets and avenues committee of the Washington Board of Trade, in the board-rooms in The Star building.

Will Inform Congress Automobile Tour of the City to Disclose Defects Proposed for House Members.

The committee, under the leadership of George C. Shattuck, has been making an exhaustive study of the street condition in the National Capital. The members believe that members, in order to legislate for the real needs of the District, should take the time to drive through the city and observe the condition of some of the highways.

Rumor of U. S. Ambassador's Return From Japan Is Confirmed.

The White House confirmed reports to the effect that Ambassador Warren has decided to resign his post as ambassador to Japan at an early date. It was pointed out that while the resignation had not been received by the President, the latter has been advised by Mr. Warren that his personal affairs require his early resignation from government office, and that the resignation will be accepted.

Waiver to Resign, White House Says

It was added, however, that the administration felt Mr. Warren had performed an important task in Japan and that it was a friendly relations between Japan and the United States, and that if he felt he had done a consistent job, the President would be glad to retain him in the post. He would be permitted to return to his pleasure.

VICTOR IN BEAUTY TEST WINS DRESS, BUT GETS TAX BILL

Special Dispatch to The Star. BALTIMORE, December 30.—Being admired by throngs sometimes proves expensive, a Baltimore young woman has discovered.

She was one of the prize beauties at a recent fashion show here, and in addition to a check for $500, she was the recipient of a dress from one of the local department stores, which she wore in the contest. The dress was said at the time to be valued at $1,000.

Now Uncle Sam, as represented by Galen L. Tait, collector of internal revenue, is out on a check for $500 cash prize, but for the value of the dress as well. She has appealed from the assessment, claiming that the dress was a gift. The government inspectors, however, said that it was something earned, that it represented beauty capitalized, and therefore should be classified as other income.

The case has been sent to the law bureau of the internal revenue department at Washington for an opinion.
