CHARGE CITY HEADS BROKE ZONING LAW

Dupont Citizens Call Upon President Not to Renominate Civilian Members.

Charging the civilian District Commissioners with violation of the zoning law, through which they ignored the rights of citizens of the District, the Dupont Circle Citizens' Association last night called upon President Coolidge not to renominate the Commissioners for their present posts.

The action followed a lively dis-cussion of the fight being made by the association to prevent erection of what they brand as a "tenement" at 21st and Massachusetts avenue by the firm called "2100 Massachusetts Avenue, Inc." Representatives of the firm, the architect and the financial firm, the architect and the financial house selling the bonds contended the proposed building was a distinctive apartment house and would be a credit to the community.

The resolution calling upon President Coolidge to name men for Commissioners who would be able correctly to adminster their duties as the zoning commission and Public Utilities Commission was introduced by Snowden Ashford of the zoning committee and was unanimously adopted. It severely condemned tactics taken by the Commissioners in the zoning of property on the site of the proposed apartment house, and likened such action to that used by the Commissioners in connection with the proposed stables of the Chestnut Farms Dairy on O street, which were tinally stopped by protest of citizens to the Chestnut Barnes Market Ma

The association also adopted a resolution by Capt. C. E. Emig for the zoning committee, which condemned the zoning commission for its "illegal" act, and approved a new petition being circulated among property holders which will call upon the zoning commission to "undo" what was done by it in October, 1922. At that time, the resolution set forth, the commission changed the zoning height of three lots on 21st street near the corner of Massachusetts avenue, from fifty-five to eighty-five feet in order that an apartment house might be erected. The change in height was made, the resolution to property owners in the vicinity. charges without sufficient notification to property owners in the vicinity. The sole petitioner for change in height of the zoning of the three lots in question, it is said, was an archi-tect, John M. Dunn. It charged the commission pro-ceeded in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the act of March 1, 1920.

BULLET IN BOY'S ANKLE

Dunbar School Company.

Frank D. Feeney, twenty-five, of 45 V street northeast surrendered to Wreath to Be Laid on Tomb in the police yesterday afternoon and was charged with assault with a dangerous weapon following the shooting earlier in the day of a member of a colored cadet company from Dunbar High School during a dispute over the alleged grazing of the cadet ranks by an automobile passing on 1st street between V and W. The wounded cadet, Armond W. Scott, jr., of 1922 11th street, son of a member of the bar, is at Freedmen's Hospital, where surgeons prepared today to remove a bullet from his ankle.

Police Informed of Shooting. According to information received by the police, the driver of the auto-mobile stopped his car when members of the cadet company shouted at him for driving his car close to the boys who were drilling on the street. A short argument ended with the drawing of a revolver by the driver of the car.

The shot, members of the cadet company believe, was aimed at the commanding officer, who made a quick move and avoided being struck. Scott was standing some distance behind the officer and because of the angle of firing received the wound in the foot.
