

*****
 * DREAM MADE PALESTINE A PRODUCTIVE LAND *
 * The Rose of Sharon Blooms as Canaan Flows With Milk and *
 * in Days of Yore Honey Once More. *
 *****

A real "Rose of Sharon"—Type of Jewish girls who work in colony vineyards.

Jerusalem, Nov. 21.—The dream of Zionists, the restoration of Israel as a nation may never be realized, but whatever the outcome of the agitation, one thing is certain:

Zionism is rejuvenating the country which for countless centuries has lain dormant. "The rose of Sharon which for ages has been

The new Palestine—Wine cellars of Zechron Jacob colony, wilted and withered is blossoming as of yore.

The vine and fig tree of which the bible speaks, but which, in the recollection of many generations have only been a memory, are again a living reality. There are orchards, of olive, orange and lemon trees, and miles of vineyards.

The soil of Palestine is today the most productive in the Turkish empire and all because, something over a decade ago, an enthusiast, a dreamer, named Theodor Herzl, a Viennese journalist, wrote a book which he called "The Jewish State," and which was the origin of Zionism.

This new condition was made possible by the Jewish nation fund, collected by Zionist organizations.