

SPEAKING OF THE SEVEN WONDERS, HERE'S A LIST
OF REAL SCARCE ONES

The chemistry department of Cornell university is supplying a scientific monthly with a list of seven up-to-date wonders. Here is the list in the order of importance:

- Wireless.
- Synthetic chemistry.
- Radium.
- Antitoxins.
- Aeroplanes.
- Panama Canal.
- Chemistry.

Truly a list of wonders. But there are other wonders, just as wonderful if not more wonderful than the Cornell chemistry department's wonders. Here's a list:

The presidential candidate who doesn't use queer words to attract attention.

The man who knows what honeyfugle meant without looking it up.

The contractor who built the bungalow within the contract price.

The waiter who refused a tip.

The woman who is now entirely satisfied with the flat she moved into May 1.

The mother-in-law who thinks her sister-in-law's baby is as cute as her own.

The little boy who will step over mud puddles.

JUST THE SAME.

"What is the meaning of the word 'honeyfugle' that President Taft used?" inquired the puzzled young lady.

"Well, it's hard to explain definitely; but it means about the same as hornswoogle," answered the obliging youth.

"I'm as much in the dark as ever, with all this slang."

"I don't know how to explain it, but it means the same as flim-flam."

"Oh, I see," she gurgled. "It's about the same thing as bam-boozle."

A drop of ink makes millions think when written out on paper. But blotted on the table spread makes the good wife caper.
