

said he was taking a bath then."

"Quite true," was the polite reply, "but the colonel has had his dinner since then and is now taking another."

How's this for chivalry. William Allen White, the Emporia editor, says everybody in Kansas is for Roosevelt. He told of a railroad man who sent him a note as follows:

"Hear you need money and want popular subscriptions. It's two weeks till pay day and here's my last dollar. I've got Teddy skinned; he only threw his hat in the ring, but here go my pants."

HE HAS SHAKEN $50,000 FROM THE OLD SOCK

Theodore L. Weed.

Eighteen months ago there were three uses for thick woolen socks in the United States. People either wore them, deposited money in them, or filled them with baked potatoes and tied them around their necks when they had sore throats.

Theodore L. Weed eliminated the sock as a depository for surplus funds. As manager of the national postal savings banks the people have come to trust him with money they used to put in the bottom of the old coal range and then forget about it until they
