Joaquin Miller, poet of the Sierras, and his daughter, who is his constant companion.

Oakland, Cal., Dec. 12.—Hominy and honey may once more be regarded as something good to eat. Joaquin Miller, the California poet, has made the discovery. Upon the homely diet of his forefathers he has entirely recovered from his recent illness and at the age of 75 years has undertaken what he considers the greatest poem he has ever worked upon.

Friends of the venerable bard have been surprised by his recent demonstrations of good health.
