

you remember the date of your grandfather's marriage?"

"It was in the spring of 1858, I think—it must have been because my father was born that Christmas."

"And grandmother was married in the summer of 1857. It didn't last long, this desperate passion, Will? But, dearest, do you know what grandmother told me once—it was just after our stupid quarrel? That when she was young no girl ever dreamed of quarreling with the man she was engaged to marry."

Will laughed as he kissed her. "Oh, well, I guess that human nature was pretty much the same in those times as it is nowadays," he said. "But, Mildred, dearest—"

"Will?"

"Think how lucky it is for us she didn't marry your grandfather. Because that would have made us cousins—and marriage between cousins is impossible in this state."

WOMEN TO SHOW UP INVISIBLE GOVERNMENT—BIG MEETING

Next the Woman's Trade Union League will show up the invisible government in Illinois and how it defeated the proposed law for shorter hours for women workers.

A big mass meeting will be held at the Garrick Theater, Randolph street between Clark and Dearborn, at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, July 13, at which Jane Addams will be the principal speaker.

Mary McDowell will preside and Gov. Dunne will speak. Aside from Gov. Dunne and Jane Addams, the other speakers will be Agnes Nestor, Mary McEnerney and Elizabeth Maloney, who were working for the short-hour bill at Springfield.

The topic of Agnes Nestor's speech will be: "Is There an Invisible Government in Illinois?"

It is planned to make this the greatest demonstration of working girls ever held in Illinois. Trade union girls will act as ushers, and all league members will wear the league colors, red and green.

Resolutions will be offered asking Gov. Dunne to include bills for the 54-hour week and the minimum wage for women if he calls a special session of the legislature.

Jane Addams' address will be on "Illinois' Long Effort to Secure Shorter Hours for Her Working Women"; Mary McEnerney on "The Working Women's New Responsibility—The Ballot and How She Should Respond to It"; Elizabeth Maloney on "Legislation and Its Relation to Organization."

There will be music. All seats free.

THEORY AND PRACTICE

"Don't swear," pa told his little son.

"Just hearken unto me.

There's no excuse—remember that—
For coarse profanity."

But pa stepped on a carpet tack
When getting into bed.

The business end was standing up
And this is what he said:

"— * ——— x ——— !!! ———"

"Now Johnny," said the mother of the young hostess to the little boy guest, "I want you to feel perfectly at home." "H'm!" growled Johnny. "I don't want to feel at home. I want to have a good time."
