In behalf of your readers you ask me to draw to the utmost upon my intuition; to summon all the gifts of divination the good God has given me; to be extra-clairvoyant, in order to foretell what the year 1914 holds in store for the beautiful, great and strong American nation.

There are few things man wishes for more than to glimpse into the future. Yet who can tell? Perhaps everything here below is but error and illusion. Still, who is there among us who has not "felt something in his bones?" Who has not conceived hypotheses regarding the future? Is there not just a little of the "divine" in us all? I believe the man who observes closely, who ponders well what he sees before him, and who puts the into the balance, can himself foretell events through the instinctive prescience of an en-
