Senator L. C. Going.

Little Rock, Jan. 17.—“Going’s got ‘em going.”

The new year opened in Arkansas with every saloon closed.

Whether any will ever be reopened is a question.

The answer is Going!

Senator L. C. Going of Harrisburg, to be exact about it, is the man who fathered one of the queerest laws ever enacted.

Under Going’s law no saloon can be opened—in either “wet” or “dry” territory—until a majority of the white men and women of the community sign a petition approving the sale of liquor.

In towns made “wet” by the colored vote the whites—women included—have thus a chance to veto the results of the election and keep the saloon out.

Prince and Princess Troubetskoy, who have just arrived in New York. The princess was Amelia Rives before she married.

AND HE DID

The young bride on a steamer was very much concerned about her husband, who was troubled with dyspepsia.

“My husband is subject to seasickness, captain,” she remarked. “Could you tell me what to do in case of an attack?”

The captain replied: “That won’t be necessary, madam; he’ll do it.”—N. Y. World.
