

after the team reaches camp, and Joey is confident that he will have thirty men trying for places on his team before the week is ended. Any youth who has the slightest qualifications will be given a fair trial, as Tinker feels he is building for the future, and will overlook no opportunity to stock his roster with young blood.

Tom Seaton, the former Philly hurler, who was supposed to have been awarded to Brooklyn, started south with Tinker, and indications are that he will stick with the locals.

The case of Bill Killifer, signed by the Feds and then taken by the Phillies, has aroused the ire of President Gilmore of the third circuit, and the boss gave the club presidents full permission last night to fire at will on organized ball.

This means that the string will be taken from bankrolls and burned up. Offers will be made to any players the club owners want, whether the athletes have contracts with organized teams or not.

The extent of the warfare depends solely on the length to which the Fed promoters are willing to go in distributing their coin.

The line-ups of the Federal teams, given out today, shows a promising mixture of major and minor league players, with a few high-class semipro scattered through the circuit.

At first glance the rosters do not present any top-heavy array of big league stars. But this doesn't necessarily mean that the new organization has fallen down. It did fail in its efforts to land Speaker and Crawford, but succeeded in further wrecking the Phillies by taking Mike Doolan, and has a strong chance of landing Hans Lobert, one of the two veteran infielders left the Pirates.

If the Fed line-ups do not prove strong enough to attract attendance overtures will be made to stars now signed with major teams, and they will be lured away if money still has its same old power.

Following is the line-up of the Fed teams:
