

Mr. Hatton and Pat Sullivan and just keep on as I am now."

"Mollie dear, you can't ever keep on as you are. You must go forward or backward and you will see before this school muddle is over that I am right."

"Don't you think we might go home and not wait for Dick?" asked Aunt Mary coming in from the other room. I looked at my watch and found it was 11 o'clock.

"We certainly can," I answered, and we hurried away.

I kept getting more and more annoyed at Dick as we walked home. Why had he said he would come for us and then not do so. He knew that Aunt Mary never stayed out so late. I was so interested in what Mollie was telling me that I did not realize how late it was and I am sure, Aunt Mary, bless her heart, did not call my attention to it until she felt that Dick was not coming.

"I think Dick is very inconsiderate," I remarked, "if he could not come for us he should have telephoned."

"He probably will explain when he gets home," said Aunt Mary.

"I'm tired of explanations," I rejoined.
