

sonable amusement. The cure for lasciviousness is education. That's all. You don't believe it? How about this: Men and women are taught to look upon all of the opposite sex as possible sexual mates. Brothers and sisters are taught not to look upon each other as sexual mates. If the fires of passion burn so fiercely in the first instance, what about them in the second? Education, that's all. We teach our children that their brothers' and sisters' sexual purity is very sacred. If we teach our children that the sexual purity of every boy and girl is as sacred as brother and sister lasciviousness will disappear like mist before the rising sun.—C. F. Runyan.

APPROPRIATE

"What is your special fad now, professor?"

"Ah, in the vernacular, I am a 'bug' on entomology."

CLEVER THIEF WENT THRO' AND THEN CAME THRO' TO H. M. C.

Last Saturday's Day Book had the following little notice on the back page:

"Say, Friend Pickpocket

"I mean the one who so cleverly lifted my pocketbook on a Halsted street car Saturday morning—won't you kindly send back the pocketbook and my police card? If you do, I'll beg your pardon because there wasn't any money in it.—H. M. Cochran, Day Book."

Tuesday morning's mail brought a brown (looked like meat market paper) package to H. M. Cochran. On the outside was written "I lose money." On the inside of the package was the pocketbook which was nipped Saturday morning. Everything was in the pocketbook that belonged there. Also there was a note tucked in one of the compartments. It read:

"I got The Day Book in a saloon on Desplaines st." On the other side was written: "Out of work. I seen your add in The Day Book. April Fool on me."

It cost the sender six cents to mail the pocketbook back to the owner.

TO PROBE SCHOOL EXPENSES

Today a committee of the school board will begin the first inquiry into the method of the expenditure of funds by the city's educational department. This is the forlorn hope of the school board in their effort to pair down their budget so it will fit the revenue.

Yesterday the committee give out a statement that no employe need be afraid of his or her job as long as they are earning the money paid them.
