

This change may not be a permanent affair, but it will last as long as the team can win.

Ed Collins and Joe Jackson each knocked three hits and Jack Fournier poled a double and a triple. Jack, however, nullified all this good work by a wild throw that gave Cleveland its three runs. He also made a mess of an attempted bunt.

As long as Jack can stand up to the bat and whang away at the ball he is a handy man to have around, but in the field he is somewhat of a handicap.

Red Faber wasn't allowed to finish the game, but he could have gone through nicely if Fournier hadn't pulled the wooly throw.

Five more games are scheduled for the trip and by taking the odd the Sox can make their showing fair for the jaunt. It will give them five wins and seven defeats.

Other out-of-town entries are on the fire. These include the Stutz cars owned by J. S. Thompson of Lacon, Ill., and J. Wilson of Morris, Ill. The former has already been working out at the speedway on Saturdays and Sundays. Speedway officials have also learned that Hunter Hobbins, a clever amateur pilot from Grand Haven, Mich., will be on hand with his Apperson car.
